Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, Jan. 24—Trading on the local wholesale dairy produce markets continued dull and featureless yesterday, with little change in prices reported, with the exception of eggs, the undertone to that market appearing somewhat more unsettled.

In eggs, the heavy storms which have been distributed throughout Canada and which has tended to block roads lent a better tone to the market and while there was no improvement in demand indeed, there was less pressure to sell. Nominally in the open market, grade A large was quoted at 29 cents; medium at 25 cents and pullets at 23 cents per dozen, with case centers and offerers under a cent per dozen higher. On the Produce Section, however, Montreal quotations for fall prices were 27 cents, 25 cents and 23 cents per dozen respectively, with offerings at one cent higher.

The butter market remains dull with only a small turnover. On the open market today grade No. 1 was nominally unchanged 24¼ to 24½ cents per pound, while on the Produce Section, quotations were unchanged at 24¾ cents per pound bid. Sales on "Spot" were 100 boxes Quebec fresh, while one can future contract, 400 boxes, was sold at 25 cents per pound.

U.K. BUTTER STEADY

Ottawa, Jan. 24 (CP)—Cable advice to the Department of Agriculture here today said butter and cheese were firmer on United Kingdom markets yesterday.

Quotations: Butter—New Zealand 96 to 97 shillings per cwt. (30.04 to 30.35 cents per lb.) Australian 89 to 90 shillings per cwt. (29.13 to 30.04 cents per lb.).

With Schedule Half Finished Teams Where They Started In Closest Race in Years

Leafs Beaten in Overtime By Americs After Leading

RED WINGS WIN

Hold Three Point Lead in Section by Downing Rangers

By A. E. FULFORD

(Canadian Press Staff Reporter)

If there ever was a closer race in the National Hockey League than the one the Canadian Division is providing at the moment the fans who stared pop-eyed at the standings today would like some oldtime hockeyite to produce the documents and prove it.

"The closest race in years" has been overworked in describing tight league fights, but no one really is. The battling last night left only three points separating the first and last place positions, a numerical situation paralleling a team to team from the bottom to the top in the games.

With half the schedule finished the teams are practically where they started last November. On the barn floors of the Canadian Division which of the four teams will be eliminated from Stanley Cup competition.

Toronto Maple Leafs, only two points from the cellar and losing and losing steadily often the year started, complicated the situation by taking an overtime beating last night to Americans in New York.

Red Wings Moving Away

County Knyphte's team would have gone into the lead with Montreal Maroons again had they won but instead Detroit Red Wings took the game 3-2 on Joe Jerwa's goal and tied Canadiens, who played a 1-1 draw with Chicago Black Hawks for third place.

Compared to the situation in the Canadian Division, Detroit Red Wings are walking away with the American meeting. They went into a three-point lead over Chicago last night by defeating New York Rangers 4-3 in Detroit. Seven points separate Red Wings and Boston Bruins, the leaders.

Playing without Charlie Conacher who is injured, Leafs took their sixth game this year after holding a two-goal lead over Americans. It eight games they have won one, lost one and tied one.

Bill Thomas and Russ Bell, high scorers among the Leafs now, gave the Torontonians a comfortable lead with their goals in the second and third period goals, Thoms' coming, while Harry Oliver of Americans was in the penalty bench.

Joe Jerwa had a hand in the Toronto goal, passing to the Toronto wingman in error, when he attempted to clear his defence zone. He made up for that 26 seconds after the Bell goal by scoring the Chegwinden goal for Americs' first counter and became the hero of the game when Eddie Shore and Eddie Wiseman had sent the game into overtime.

Kershaw Injured

A penalty to Art Lesieur paved the way for the first goal of the Chicago-Canadien encounter, Tommy Cook, a penalty for the first time yesterday, scoring on a pass by player with Doc Romnes, Sammy Gottskey and Mush March.

That was in the 10th minute of the second period. Montreal couldn't do it up until Armand Mondou passed to Babe Siebert, who sent to Paul Haynes after four minutes of the third.

Wilf Cude, in the Canadien goal, had only 20 shots to handle compared to 38 Canadiens threw at Mike Karakas in the Chicago cage. The Hawk rookie was cut near the right eye by a stick in the third and the game was held up while he was stitched.

It took Red Wings half the game to get started in Detroit's game with Rangers when their wing Rangers were cuspleyed. Marty Barry and Wally Kilrea drove in rebounds in the mid-way through the second and Larry Aurie and Syd Howe added others in third.

Bert Connolly took Frank Boucher's pass for the first Detroit shot 48 seconds after Kilrea's goal and Boucher got the second 26 seconds after Bell Wings had scored their fourth.

TURNKEY SUSPENDED

TORONTO, Jan. 24.—(CP)—C. B. Heslande, Deputy Provincial Secretary, announced that the Acting Chief Turnkey in Carleton County Jail at Ottawa had been suspended pending investigation following escape of a prisoner over the week-end.

The prisoner followed a verbal report of Inspector W. R. Jamett, who went to Ottawa to investigate the escape of George Hickey, who made his getaway by climbing through a washroom window.

If fleet-footed Bill Cook could turn back all the pages of his hockey history and go over the whole game by game, he would probably mention that the toughest game of his life was played in Belleville, Can. BELLEVILLE "Y" CAGE SQUAD LOSE TO CADETS 26-22

Two Speedy Baskets in Dying Moments of Game Secure Win

LOCALS PLAY POORLY

Failed to Capitalize on Their Scoring Opportunities

Joe Stephenson's two speedy baskets in the very last moment of play gave the R.M.C. "Cadets" a 26 to 22 victory over the Belleville "Y" M.C.A. squad in one of the best of intermediate games to the O.H.A. Series played at the C.I. gym last evening. The game was started slowly and with a stiff defence set-up by both squads, there never being a difference to score of any more than four points at any stage during the game until Stephenson's two baskets broke the score in the last few seconds of play. The "Y" boys, who are leading nicely the better part of the defensive struggle and enjoyed the advantage of playing on their own the basilway mark, but sluggish and indifferent play throughout with poor basketball around their opponents basket. The "Y" boys had collected any chances the "Y" might have had in victory. The defeat places the "Y" in the third place position in the group standings.

McDonald High Scorer

Stephenson, with a wide-sweeping over-head shot, scored two points for the "Cadets" as McDonald, with a pretty shot from centre counted an even dozen points for the winners. Art Cole led the locals in scoring with thirteen points to his credit. T. J. R.M.C. set-up a splendid defence in front of their basket, while the locals seemed lost without the floor guidance by Manager Cay of the arena, both squads only for victory, so all that remains is to have a bumper house witness the bumis.

The Arena maintained the admission rate, however that the sale of tickets for the ball pot, at the gate, and the sale of refreshments stand at 6.36 p.m. sharp tonight, so those who usually frequent the Arena before game time, or also, the Arena will open to the public management is to eliminate the many drafts, that are caused by the opening of doors, and to prevent, as much as possible, the entrance to the ball park. Both squads will meet after starting line-ups for tonight, along with the numbers worn by the respective players. The numbers are: Belleville—Goal, Norman, 1; defence, Burton, 2; McDonald, 3; centre, Barriage, 4; wings, Carl Morgan, 5, "Pete" Morgan, 6; Art McCullough, 7; Art Cole, 8; Lewis, 9; Erath, 5, and Harry Morgan, 12. Subs—Wright, Goodwin, Childers, 7; defence, Barnes, 2, Morrison, 2 and Doc Reeden, 4; centre, Alexander, 5; wings, Bowles, Stephenson, 6, Fewster, 11, Childers, 7; Art Cole, 8, Everett, 11 and Charles 16. The referee is to be Jos Smith, of Kingston.

Two Canadian all jumpers, Karl Raadsvyl of Montreal, and Nels Nelson of Vancouver, were the first casualties of the 1936 winter Olympic games here. Both ski jumpers, were injured yesterday while taking part in the Olympic practice competition at Garmisch - Partenkirchen, Germany. Raadsvyl suffered a light brain concussion and Mcphraeton a sprained wrist. Both will recover in time for official Olympic competition 11 was later announced, however.

Besides the intermediate O.H.A. fixture at the Arena tonight, basketball lovers will enjoy two fast city basketball games. In the Senior Interschoolastic loop the Picton C. I. senior play the fast "quints" at Albert College, while Coach Hughes's B.C.I. basketeers entertain the St. Michael's five. In the first game of the juvenile series in the E.O.A.A. the Deacon A. C. of Belleville travel to Napanee to try of their hid. On Saturday, however, the Belleville "Y" intermediate cagers meet Queen's at Kingston in an important intermediate E.O.A.A. struggle.

For the third successive term J. E. Sherrit was the unanimous choice of the Belleville and District Rugby and Games Association as their President. Percy Joe and his side partners being unopposed for the onerous betterment of game facilities in and around the Bellevile district. The ordinary Saturday man not realize what the duties of the executive entail, in the matter of re-booking surrounding visitors and also the matter of ground upkeep. The paramount aim of the Anglers is be eventually have the Bay of Quinte and Trent Valley areas a natural haven for game fish and waterfowl, which they are so highly commended were. An year several the association labored hard to have the Ontario government proved assembly. Every fisherman and hunter should be a member and assist the organization in its endeavours. Already the club has petitioned for the re-stocking of numerous streams throughout the district, and all those who like bass, bangs and other game fish, and all for the common good of any sport, should become anglers and urged to join the association and attend the meetings held there monthly meetings any suggestions or an splitting matters.

"Duke" Smith, manager of the local Yacht Club hockey team and prime sponsor of the Bay of Quinte League, announced this morning that his charges would make their initial appearances of the season at Picton on Monday night when the Napanee squad on Monday night in a regular scheduled league fixture. The "Sailors" appear in Napanee this evening to open the league in final town with the league game slated for Belleville on Monday. At present the "Sailors" are leading the Bay of Quinte race by virtue of Duty 6 to 4 win over Rose Point. Picton aggregation, with Gerow-led outfit, however, are reported to be stronger and a real series is expected.

Playing away below form the Belleville "Y" intermediate cagers dropped a 26-22 decision to the fast R.M.C. "Cadets" 26 to 22 last night in the "Y" gym here before a fair crowd of Coach Marion, who is continue to his home through the series. His team was away subpar, we believe, as the locals could be expected to have failed to improve despite the fact they had played the very first two months. Fathers and Sons Night and the ability capitalize on scoring opportunities what "Y" squad has believed playing cost them the game and among the group of "Y" team will change matters considerably. The Belleville squad could get in some much needed practice, however. Of course the Belleville team go a sturdy defence, as Coach Lewis's squads always do and the work of Art Cole, Art Childers, wards in Stephenson and McDonald.

Some 50 delegates from the World School of the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church of Canada met in the Bridge Street Church, enjoyed an afternoon of skating at the Arena during the afternoon and yesterday afternoon. Three well-contested games of hockey were played in the Industrial league last eve, one being a tie. Over 3,000 rabid hockey fans witnessed the Peterboro' at Oshawa Intermediate O.H.A. game on Wednesday night. The Petes were minus the services of Roy Govert and Jack Hill, who remained in Peterboro in Belleville the week prior, which may have accounted in some measure for the 4 to 1 reverse suffered by the Petes. At any rate now that Govert and the local "Redmen" have both rimmed the Petes on their home ice the question that arises is as to whether Cherries and the "Redmen" stack up? The question will be answered tonight, when the Oshawa gang make their appearance of the season locally. Although the district has just emerged from its worst blizzard in many years, all brunk highways have been opened and the season's largest crowd is expected at the Arena, when these two teams clash tonight. A splendid card of fast hockey is slated by Manager Cay of the arena, both squads only for victory, so all that remains is to have a bumper house witness the bumis.

ROCHESTER CARDS FINALLY WIN ONE

Defeat Bisons 3-1 While Windsor Spits Indians by Same Score

(By The Canadian Press)

Having proved a nuisance in a financial way to the hapless Hamilton entry, Rochester Cardinals now intend to prove themselves formidable opponent by winning a few games, perhaps spoiling a few more in the process, for them.

The Cardinals, operated by the Frank Patrick brothers, Lester and Lyle, from the Rochester Club, went into New York last night and defeated Buffalo Bisons 3-1 in a scheduled International Hockey League fixture, preventing Bisons from advancing ahead of London in the fight for fourth place for playoff positions.

The road all the time now, the Cards felt as much at home in Fort Erie as anywhere, apparently, for Lorne Chabot, Fort Erie keeper in the first period and Bill Beveridge in the third, each checked Scored the only Buffalo goal in the long run so close was the Rochester checking.

No Chance for Playoffs

Rochester's victory, however, got nothing into the playoffs, but in the event they can they have an opportunity the odd rival and cause some grief.

In the only other scheduled game last night, Windsor Bulldogs defeated Syracuse Stars 3-1 in a listless tilt before 3,000 fans. Having undisputed possession of third place in the Western group, Windsor Bulldogs are chasing the Hoop Jack.

Falcons scored in the first period through Bud Cook and held on until the third when Goalkeeper stopped but brinky Bill Mackenzie, Frank Brooks and Ken Doraty counted in the final frame, when the Bulldogs rocked like a strong force.

The faster they dig up opponents for me, the better I'll be satisfied," said Ross today.

The welterweight champion will make his first start of the year, against a rough, tough Italian, a 148-pounder, in a 10-round battle in Philadelphia Monday. Ross will be spotting the battler from Newark about seven pounds as he will not weigh more than 141. Ross' title will not be at stake.

While the Philadelphia Manager Sam Plan will confer with Mike Jacobs, Ross' manager, relative the prospects of early spring entry into New York, Jacobs is hoping McMarnin will decide not to retire and consent to another engagement. They have fought three times with each battle, close, sensational and full of arguments afterwards.

If McMarnin quits boxing will be in a tough spot for an opponent capable of drawing important money. Ross said: "The Blimey is ready to take them all on, the faster the better."

FOXBORO, BETHEL WIN CONTESTS

West Huntingdon, Champs of Last Year Yet to Win Game

Elzbing, Jan. —(Special)— Foxboro and Bethel score wins in the second round of the Centre League schedule, which yesterday's games have yet to make their first win of the season. Trailing along at the tail end they must come through with three or four straight wins to overtake the rest of the field. Last year they did just that, taking five straight games in the same schedule to go through to the championship. Whether they can repeat that or not this year remains to be seen. In the first game of the evening Foxboro defeated Glenn Ross in a drab sort of game by the score of 5-3 with Chapelle and Foxboro getting his first counter in two years. Kolesh made it two and the flashy centre player Lee, who turned in a fine game was responsible for the other goal. Roy Brooks and Scott got the counters for Glenn Ross but the boys from the riverside were decidedly weakened by the absence of Jerry Fraser and failed to hit their stride until it was too late.

Lineups:

Bethel: Goal V. Dickey; defence Culhane and Cranston; centre, Stinson; wings, Ray Dickey and Earl Dickey. Alternate, Coppledick, Guay and Hall.

West Huntingdon: Goal Carlson; defence, McGee and J. McCowan; centre Mott; wings Cook and Fraser. Alternates Rodgers, Thompson and Rodgers.

Referee: J. Ackers and E. Wallace, Stirling.

Barney Ross After $100,000 Roll In Coming Year

Chicago, Jan. 24.—(AP)—Blackeyed Barney Ross, King of the welterweights, wants to roll up a $100,000 bankroll in 1936 by boxing as often as opponents can be dug up for him.

The Chicagoan earned about $60,000 in 1935 and his winnings from the 147-pound crown from Jimmy McLarnin, Irish-Canadian ace, are gagging at seven other bouts.

The welterweight champion will make his first start of the year, against a rough, tough Italian, a 148-pounder, in a 10-round battle in Philadelphia Monday. Ross will be spotting the battler from Newark about seven pounds as he will not weigh more than 141. Ross' title will not be at stake.

Dale Plays The Game

—BY—

Ann Forester

He went on, going into the distance as though he addressed someone unseen.

"I have a proposition to make to you, Frad. I suppose I'll have to do a bit of explaining. I suppose you've heard what Old Otty has to say about me. That fun just bore. That any own family have thrown me out. Well," he shrugged, "that's true. I had a little money of my own. That's gone. Not that it phased a devil of a lot of difference. The decking toll and I haven't got three months to live."

Brant turned his hard gray stare on her and the girl felt her eyes go wet with tears.

The man saw it and moved impatiently. "Oh, for the Lord's sake, don't, gal, sobby!" he said roughly. "I'm not worth it. I've been leading you. I don't want your pity! All I want is a drink—to keep going and to keep going I have to have some money. Now we're coming down to cases!" He turned around and faced her fully, and his gray stare held her as in a vise.

Dale was frightened. She regarded him with startled brown eyes.

"Coz, don't get me wrong. I'm not asking you to marry the dark lantern while I rob the town bank. It's simpler than that. There's quite a little money—a thousand to be exact—that I'll get when I marry. I'm broke and I want that money to help me go out on a blaze of glory. It's the only way . . . the only way . . . . . " He drew a whistling breath and went on after a moment. "Well here's where you come in. If you'll marry me I can get that thousand and I'll split it fifty-fifty with you. Oh, I know!" with a bitter smile at her shocked movement of repulsion, "you think no amount is worth it. But this is strictly a business proposition. Marry me—help me get that money and we split it. You go your way, I go mine. And in all events you'll be rid of me in three months. What do you say?"

DALE TAKES THE LEAP

As Brant Kendall stopped talking the hot silence of the day seemed to leap in and close down about the girl. Her whole world was shaken. The empty highway with its bordering line of telephone poles danced crazily before her eyes. Sandy's hands with its rough corner and pine shelves was as unreal as a canvas backdrop. The wooden shed before the place cast a long blue-black shadow on the hard-baked ground was part of this cardboard setting for an absurd drama. But the figure of the man slumped on the stool before her—that was real. And his eyes—sharp, devil-bright gray eyes; and that bitter twist of his mouth—that was real too.

"Took you off your feet, didn't I? It sounds crazy, I know, but it's really very much what you think about it. It's just a little money my grandmother left me in her will." Dale saw his face set into the fraction of time as though a beloved image had passed in review. "It was to be a little wedding gift when I married . . . . . " He broke off and repeated in a harder tone, "when I married." He rubbed a thin brown hand over his face. "Guess that's my sad story," his voice held the old mocking note. "I'll admit it sounds like fiction! isn't a prime movie you have a thousand already. But it's a darn big sum when you're broke. All right. How about it?"

"Why—" Dale found her lips were so stiff she had trouble in framing the words. "Why, sir you ask me?"

Brant flashed her a look which she could not read. "One reason being that you're the other fly caught fast in the sticky hole. Oh," he shrugged one shabby shoulder in answer to her unspoken thought, "there's plenty of women I could get. But I have some kinds left if no self-respect. Somehow I didn't want—that sort—starting in my grandmother's gift money." His bleakness lifted and scowled as though he had said more than he intended.

His voice was hard and impatient when he spoke again. "Well, it's a straight deal and quick. Your decision, isn't it? Perhaps the easiest way you'll ever make five hundred. What do you say?"

"Why—why—" Dale gave a little laugh, half angry, half bewildered. "How do I know what to say?" she asked distractedly.

He scanned her coolly. "Some shift in the background who'll object?" he chuckled at the white fury which blazed suddenly from her face.

"I'll have no more use for men than—than—"

"Than I have for women!" he finished harshly. "That makes us fifty-fifty. Come on, what's the answer? Make it snappy, I want to get a drink."

Dale stared unseeing at the black shadow of the mosquito across the road. Five hundred..... five hundred dollars..... It meant leaving this furnace of a town and a fresh start in the city. A fresh start.....

"Must we have Lady Macbeth in the sleep-walking scene?" came the man's mocking voice. "Also may I add that you take an incredible time to decide whether you are going to pick up the five hundred I have just tossed in your lap?"

He was right: she must be a fool to refuse. He was right.....

"All right" Dale could hardly recognize her own voice. "I'll do it."

The man unfolded his long body and rose. Looking up at him the girl felt a little stab of terror. How tall he was..... how strong.....

"That's settled. Let's get it over with. I'm going into town. I'll find Sandy and tell him to come back and watch the stand while you go get the license with me and put the thing through." He pulled out his watch and glanced at it, an extremely thin, gold affair contrasting oddly with his shabby clothes and unkempt look.

"Meet me up at the courthouse as soon as Sandy comes back." Brant walked a yard of pockets he left her and moved up the street in the direction of town.

Slumped on the counter, as though surprise had drawn the strength from her body, Dale watched him go. Her eyes were large and dark in her flushed face.

"To marry Brant Kendall..... to marry him! She repeated it to herself but no matter how she emphasized it she could not make the words mean anything. To marry Phil..... Oh, that could still bring a stab of unbearable pain and she put it quickly from her mind. But this was—what had he said?—just such a simple business proposition. Just a business deal—

"What do you know of Zora Drinov?" demanded Colt. "She is my friend, and she is in trouble," said La. "Yes, I know," said Colt. "She was with the chief of the Arabs when I found her. We escaped from them, and then while I was hunting, something carried her away."

"I had been searching for Zora," continued Colt, "until I lost my strength and you found me." "You found me," said La. "Yours will be the hand that will guide me to her." "What's this, sister, what's all this I hear.... what's the big idea? Is that right, what Brant says..... Say, you couldn't knocked me over with a feather! Say look'ere, girl, are you sure you know what you're stepping into? I like Brant, sure I like him lots, but he's a bum, you know. Just a high class bum, see, sister, you know what I mean—"

"I know, Sandy," the girl's voice startled the good-natured Waffle Kid, so changed was it from her usual soft tone. "You're good to think about me, but—I know what I'm doing all right."

There was a strange aloofness about her which silenced Sandy even as it had been wont, in the old days, to silence Lil Dee Vee. He subsided into unhappy silence as he watched her cross over to the mirror and coax her powder puff against her hot face. She let down her hair and it covered her neck and shoulders like a golden cloak—Dale had never cut her hair, she had needed those yellow curls for Little Eva and Fountaineroy and Willie Carlyle. She ran a small comb through the shining mass, tucked it into a knot in the back and pulled on her hat indifferently.

"All right, Sandy," she said in an expressionless voice, "I won't be any longer than I have to be. If I'm gone over night, you'll know that there's some I squeezed out in the pitcher in the ice chest."

She went out into the white glare of sunshine, a slender solitary figure walking up the highway through the blazing heat.

Sandy leaned on the counter and watched her with popping eyes.

"There goes the bride....." the Waffle Kid whispered unconsciously aloud. Unconsciously too he shook his head slowly. "The poor little kid ..... the poor little darn-fool kid!"

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE
"The Littlest Rebel"

Shirley Temple's newest and most appealing picture

As the tiny confederate who surrounds the Yanks with smiles, astounds them with songs and defeats them with dances, Shirley Temple returns to the screen in her newest and greatest picture, "The Littlest Rebel," which comes to the Belle Theatre for four days, Saturday and Monday, Matinee daily.

Ably supported by a cast which includes John Boles, Jack Holt, Karen Morley and the old time darling friend, Bill Robinson, Shirley plays her first great dramatic role in the story of the Civil War.

The story of "The Littlest Rebel," adapted from that ever popular play, deals with happenings in Virginia during the Civil War.

After Shirley's father, John Boles, is called to fight for the Stars and Bars, things go from bad to worse with his family. Loyal servants help to keep the family together, but when their home is razed into the flames of fire, Shirley and her mother, Karen Morley are forced to flee.

Meeting Uncle Morley succumbs to the rigors of war and in a tragic and affecting scene, Shirley and her father are reunited. He faces fatal and possible execution, when he is captured by Jack Holt, a Northern officer. But Bill's gallantry proves equal to that of the South, and he tries to help them escape.

When they are recaptured, both Boles and Holt must face the consequences of their act. The picture reaches its emotional climax, when Shirley Journeys to Washington with Abraham Lincoln (Bill Robinson) and pleads with the Great Emancipator, through Lincoln for the lives of her father and Jack Holt, who were guilty only of helping a little girl.

Supporting the picture include "Polly Wolly Doodle," by Shirley Chris and S. G. Humphrey, and "If All Thy Endearing Young Charms."

School Junior Festival

A selected program of varied dancing talent has been assembled for exhibition on the same program including Monday evening's Radio's assistance in a short broadcast by Beverley Reyes' "Talkie" in Stars," a clever and beautiful color cartoon. Somewhere in "Somewhere" the further adventures of "The Mystery Squadron," and the latest News of the World.

Saturday Morning Show

A special performance of Shirley Temple in "The Littlest Rebel" will be presented Saturday morning at the Belle at the same complete time as the regular afternoon performance will be held. Shirley, with the addition of the Children's hour on the stage, will have a special prize for those who get attending the morning show. The children's Vaudeville Revue and picture will be presented at the afternoon show.

Coming Next Week

The first 1936 model music comedy hit "Stars Over Broadway" with a grand all-star cast and the screen version of Charles Dickens' immortal "David Copperfield" will be the Belle tonight for the last time.

AT THE CAPITOL
"Shipmates Forever"

Ward With Thrills and Romance With Navy Background

Warner Bros. gave talking pictures to the screen. They also "discovered" Rin-Tin-Tin, Dolores Costello, Government and its various departments furnished the background for stories of human interest for scores of Hollywood productions in navy-logical lands.

Now comes the story of Annapolis, the Commonwealth producing institution "Shipmates Forever," which has its local premiere at the Capitol Theatre today with Dick Powell and Ruby Keeler in the leading roles.

This is a sweeping panorama film, packed with thrills, romance and infectious song. The life of the naval cadet is presented in all its vivid coloring. He is shown aboard the training ships, on the great battleships of the Pacific fleet at play and at work, as well as in love.

"Shipmates Forever" is the most romantic as well as the most thrilling of the service pictures.

Never has Powell been given such an opportunity to prove his versatility before the screen as in this picture. Not only does he sing many catchy airs in his inimitable manner, but his part calls for real dramatic action, to which he does more than credit artistry.

The son of an admiral and Commandant at Annapolis, he has risen to the top as a crooner in a New York Park Casino and is known throughout the nation. Forced by the scorn of his father, who tries to cleanse him into carrying out the traditions of the family, he enters Annapolis as a cadet, where he is unexpectedly hazed because of his family connections, but finally wins his way and his own heart's desire.

Miss Keeler also gives an exhibition of her dancing and vocal talents, one being the famous ballad, "Carnival Abulbul Amir."

Ruby Keeler has never more wholesome and charming than as the protected officer's daughter, who fights to keep Dick up to his naval standard as a cadet officer. Mary and the traditions she loves. Miss Keeler also gives an exhibition of her dancing, which falls naturally into the plot, she earning her living by dancing in a night club.

The majority of scenes were taken at Annapolis and aboard the U.S.S. Pennsylvania, flagship, of the Pacific Fleet, in order to get the real atmosphere of the Navy.

There is a strong supporting cast headed by Lewis Stone who plays the role of Dick's father, an admiral and Commandant at Annapolis. His work is polished, sincere and blended. Others who give exceptional performances are John Alexander, John Arledge, Eddie Nugent and Robert Light, as Dick's classmates; Richard (Dick) Foran, as a midshipman; Joseph Crehan, Martha Merrill and Mary Treen.

COL. PONTON HAS VARIED CAREER

Many Congratulatory Telegrams Received on His 81st Birthday

Dean of the local legal fraternity, one of the oldest King's Counsels in the province and one of the most active leading citizens, Col. William Nassau Ponton, K.C., is this week receiving the best wishes of his many friends on the attainment of his 81st birthday which he has served in this city on January 22.

Colonel Ponton was born at Sidney College, just west of this city in 1855, and still lives in the time-honored and wonderful home which has long been associated with early history of Belleville and district. The birthday, marked by no outward manifestation, was observed as previous ones have been by the usual day's routine business at his desk in the law firm of Ponton and Graham.

Perhaps in no other publication is a more full account given of his wide and varied career and activities than in the "History of the Grand Orange Royal Arch Association of Canada", published in 1932, and from which a brief summary is taken.

Educated in City

Educated in Belleville, Upper Canada College and the University of Toronto, Osgoode Hall, he received his Degree of M.A. in 1878, and was called to the Bar of Ontario in 1880, created Queen's Counsel in 1892 and is still active in the practice of law.

He is a member of the senate of the University of Toronto, a member of the Board of Governors of Upper Canada College, and a Bencher of the Law Society of Upper Canada.

For a third of a century Col. Ponton has served in various capacities on the Order of Royal Arch Masons and has been active in promoting some of the leading movements started by that body. His interest in all branches of the Craft arts as applied to local affairs has been life long.

During the Great War he was a member of the central executive of the Canadian Red Cross and for several years he was in command of the 244th Army Argyll Light Infantry Regiment. He is a member of The Belleville Lodge B.P.O.E., of the Bay of Quinte Chapter No. 7, and of The Belleville Rotary Club.

Col. Ponton was also Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Canada, A.F. and A.M. in the province of Ontario, 1931-1932, and Grand Z of the Grand Chapter of the Royal Arch Masons of Canada in 1910, 1930 and 1931.

During his many years' service in the interests of this city, Col. Ponton has been honored by being elected to many other civic bodies, notably the city council, as a alderman and member of the Belleville Board of Trade and other organizations.

His wide acquaintance and honor, extends far beyond the confines of the city in which he was born and where he has chosen to make his home. Col. Ponton's wide range of friendships extends throughout the Province, the Dominion, Great Britain, the Dominions, and the United States. It is from these friends that the many congratulatory expressions and messages of best wishes are being received this week.

FOREIGN KINGS REACH LONDON TO PAY RESPECTS

Child Sends Paper Flower Wreath to Windsor For "Dear King"

STREETS DRAPED

King Edward And Brothers Will Follow Coffin Afoot

London, Jan. 25 (CP)—The ranks of royalty converged on London in virtual full force today to pay last respects to the late King George.

While King Edward VIII dealt with a mass of state affairs awaiting his attention and the public paid homage to the late king of his lying-in-state in Westminster Hall, other kings, queens and princes from abroad came for the funeral service Tuesday at Windsor.

The sounds of hammering echoed in the streets of this capital as workmen ran up stands and barriers along the route to be followed by King George's funeral procession.

Tall masts, which had been erected in blue, gold and silver for the silver jubilee celebrations of the reign last summer re-appeared, this time draped in purple and black.

Preparations On Route.

Some shop windows were converted into grandstands, with tiers of seats commanding upward of $50 apiece. Other windows were barricaded stoutly against the anticipated pressure of Tuesday's crowds.

It was understood King Edward, his three brothers and the visiting kings would follow the coffin on foot from Westminster Hall to Paddington Station, whence the body would be taken by train to Windsor, instead of riding chargers as at the 1910 funeral for King Edward VII.

The clamor of the streets, in preparation for the event, contrasted sharply to the silence of Westminster Hall, where thousands more filed past the coffin during the second day of the lying-in-state.

116,068 Pass First Day.

Officials announced 116,043 persons passed the bier yesterday, the first day of the public procession after the late king was brought from Sandringham, where he died late Monday night.

The great Westminster Hall was closed but once yesterday between 9 a.m. and 10 p.m., to permit the Royal Family to escort Queen Mary of Norway, only surviving sister of King George, to her first view of the coffin.

King Haakon VII of Norway and Queen Maud headed the list of visiting royalty. King Boris of Bulgaria was on route from Sofia aboard a regular London express. King Carol of Rumania started from Bucharest in a special train of 11 coaches. King Leopold of Belgium was expected to arrive Monday.

Child's Tribute.

Prince Axel of Denmark was already in London, to be joined by Crown Princess Ingrid. King Zog found it impossible for him to leave Albania, and sent instead his nephew, Prince Salih, to represent that nation.

Hundreds of wreaths were arriving at Windsor where King George will be buried, including one made of paper flowers and inscribed simply in childish handwriting: "Dear King".

Water Main Bursts Under Building at Gerrard Street, Toronto

TORONTO, Jan. 25. — (CP) — Breaking of a water main below a building at Gerrard and Parliament streets, in the East Central part of Toronto, early today, loosed thousands of gallons of water in a stream that poured down Parliament Street for a mile to Eastern Avenue.

Firemen hurried to the scene to find themselves powerless until waterworks officials shut off the flow. Three families in one building were aided from their apartments. Policemen kept a huge crowd of onlookers back, fearing the building would collapse, and made certain the twelve occupants were safely out.

Heavy slabs of pavement were torn loose and carried by the flood for considerable distance.

The eldest of three sisters who live together, Miss McMurchy is said to have suffered previously from heart ailment and this is considered responsible for the collapse. Just before retiring last night Ella went in to see her sister, who had complained of not feeling well. She said she was alright and that "God would take care of me."

When police investigated the death they found the house very cold. Although there were three stoves in the house and fuel in the cellar, only a small coal oil stove was being used.

All three sisters are of age to receive the Old Age Pension but only two would sign at the time of receiving it as they felt it was "too much to ask of the Government."

ABUSE OF RELIEF CAUSES THIRTY TO BE CUT OFF

Failure to Report For Work And Laziness Cause of Dismissal

MAYOR NVESTIGATES

Warning that relief recipients must do their share in cutting down cost of administration, and that delinquents will be cut off immediately, Mayor Hill has given a free hand to the letter of the regulations was given today by Mayor Hill who has made this matter one of the most important of civic affairs since assuming office.

"In the future we are going to take this problem right from the bottom," stated Mayor Hill today.

Personal attention of the Mayor during the past week or so has resulted in the cutting off of individuals being taken off the lists. In every case flagrant disregard of regulations prompted this move.

"We actually found that six or seven of those cut off had got something to cut their own wood that had been supplied. The wood came in four-foot lengths. These men hired sawing machines to do the sawing. In one case the recipient put up an argument because the wood man wouldn't carry it upstairs in his apartment."

Any man who does not report for work when he is advised that his turn is due is also subject to dismissal from the relief, continued Mayor Hill. "Here again we have had some chickens, and they have also been dealt with. We intend to go on with our investigations until we are sure that "relief on relief are actual" deserving cases and are willing to do their share to help themselves."

Washington Puts Brake on Stock Market Buying

Washington, Jan. 25.—(AP)— Stung gided on ticker tape, officials watched today for the effects of the Federal Reserve Board's surprise action in jamming a brake on the stock market.

The new rule, applying to most securities bought on the New York Exchange, will require that beginning February 1, the buyer will have to put up 55 per cent. of the purchase price, instead of 45 as heretofore.

Apartment Flooded, Son Carries Mother Out on His Back

Toronto, Jan. 25 (CP)—A 60-year-old mother travelled downstairs and upstairs on her son's back in the Parsons building today, after fire had been trapped in their apartment by a sudden torrent of water. The son, when a water main burst at the corner of Parliament and Gerrard streets.

In the end, J. Dyckt had to take his mother back to the second floor when he found the water too deep on the ground floor to permit leaving the building. He had carried her on his back from their third storey apartment.

From the first floor the couple were taken out through a window by firemen and made their way to safety to the street by ladders.

Dyckt said the water was so deep in the lower hallways it was swirling and carrying silk hosiery and bones in its vortex.

Blocks of pavement were hurled into the air as the main burst with a thunderous roar. Streets were quickly burned to basements or low with the temperature a few degrees above zero.

Fire and High Smith was rescued by a second fire-fighter after he fell by his line breaking in a raging hole in the sidewalk.

Fire-fighters in houses close to the water spout were quenched by the flood.

BURIAL SERVICE WILL BE BRIEF IN CASTLE CHAPEL

PUBLIC HOLIDAY

Canada Will Observe National Day of Mourning

London, Jan. 26 (CP)—The funeral service for the late King George V in St. George's Chapel, Windsor, Tuesday afternoon will be brief and simple. The stately cortege will reach the little chapel about 1:15 and at 1:30 the impressive silence will be observed. This silent tribute to the late king will be made throughout the nation and in many parts of the empire.

The service will be conducted by the Archbishop of Canterbury, assisted by the Archbishop of York and the Bishop of Windsor. Other high dignitaries of the church will be present.

The opening sentences will be sung to the setting by Croft. The anthem, "The Lord is my Shepherd", will be sung to Sir Walford Davies' setting.

The lesson will be that well known passage from Revelations, "I saw a new heaven and a new earth", to be followed by the hymn, "I Heard a Voice From Heaven" by Dykes. The king's favorite hymn, "Abide With Me", will also be sung.

As the Archbishop of Canterbury, Primate of all England, speaks the committal sentences the coffin will be slowly lowered through the chapel floor into the royal vault. Then, the choir will render the anthem, "God Be In My Head", and the service will conclude with the Dead March from Saul.

Canada's Observance.

Ottawa, Jan. 25.—The proclamation setting aside Tuesday, January 28, as a public holiday to be observed in national mourning for His Late Majesty King George V, will not be altered. Prime Minister Mackenzie King stated last night this decision had been reached in cabinet council.

The general public holiday on that date was proclaimed in orders-in-council promulgated Wednesday of this week. Although there is no law compelling business houses to close, a great many large industries have already signified their intention of closing down on that day.

A two minute period of silence will be observed throughout the Dominion at 1:30 p.m. local time on the day of the funeral. That is the hour London time, the silence will be observed in the Empire's capital. Observance of the silent period at that identical time throughout the Empire had been found impracticable, as it would fall at different hours on the Pacific Coast.

Simultaneously information had been given the advices from London that the funeral service would not be proclaimed a national holiday, the Prime Minister said.

"It is the wish of Mr. Mackenzie King said, "that the people generally assemble in their churches and thus making the gesture on the part of the nation as a whole, and not confined to let the governments state as already proclaimed."

Clad in Bathing Suit Youth Parades Streets

Residents along Pinnacle street shortly after two o'clock yesterday afternoon gazed, stared unbelievingly at first and then went into shivery huddles with themselves as they became uncomprehendingly.

On one of the coldest days in winter, the mind of a youth, dressed unashamingly up the street, clad only in a light bathing suit, and apparently enjoying himself in the frigid air, was all too much. Only a light pair of sneakers protected the youth's feet from the snow covered walks.

Whether it was a lark, a one man best-to-nature movement, or a mental aberration resulted in action of other residents was not learned of employees of Filzer Garage, first to observe the sight.

Bareheaded Youths Get Resident "Down"

"I must be getting old. Or perhaps it is because I can't as good as it used to be. But the sight of our local Collegiate Institute youths passing about the streets, bareheaded and with coat fronts thrown open to the bleak bone coldest days of winter is getting me down. It's having a 'punch' on me," said a lady yesterday when she could be permitted to pass." mourned a well known local resident today.

A check up revealed that during these coldest days of winter bareheadedness is not confined only to boys. Girls, too, are observed trippling blithely along with locks flying free and bow chests in many cases exposed to the below zero temperatures.

"Be kind to your horse; give him a little help this cold weather," urges a well known local humane society.

"The fashion seems to be of late years to forget all about the old fashioned horse blanket, and leave the team or horse standing out in this zero weather shivering as the curb, and often bathed in perspiration after a hard pull.

One other humane act would be the warming up of the frosty bits before putting it in the horse's mouth in the morning," points out the local man.

LANGLEY'S TRUCK FORCED OFF ROAD

Toronto Motorist Held as One Causing the Accident

Forced from the highway by an approaching motor car, a Langley's truck, driven easterly by Clifford Murphy of Bolleville, turned over in the south ditch on highway No. 2 about eight miles east of Belleville yesterday afternoon. Although the truck was badly damaged, Mr. Murphy, the driver, fortunately escaped without injuries. Following the accident however, Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Ervine apprehended a man giving his name as Mr. M. Chaplain, of Toronto, as he drove his automobile into Belleville. Chaplain, it is alleged by Mr. Murphy, crowded the truck off the beaten highway and caused the accident. The driver of the automobile allegedly failed to stop at the scene of the accident. Charges of reckless driving will be laid against Chaplain, Constable Ervine stated today. Later in the day the Langley truck was righted and continued its journey to Kingston despite the damage sustained.

COUNTY AND SIDE ROADS IN ONTARIO ARE STILL CLOSED

No Respite From Cold Wave Expected Over Week-end
SNOWPLOWS BUSY

Traffic on Main Highways Back to Normal

(By the Canadian Press)

"Partly cloudy and cold today and Sunday with light snow in some districts". That was the best the Dominion Meteorological Service could offer Ontario for the week-end as the Province struggled to thaw out the effects of the worst blizzard in years.

Drivers met some minus signs on the thermometers this morning, with the lowest mark going to White River where 36 degrees below zero was registered. Fort Arthur was 34 below and Sioux Lookout was the same. At Toronto it stood at 18 below zero but in Toronto, the populace awoke to find it 10 above. Ottawa reported 14 below.

An army of men with shovels, and the aid of rotary snow ploughs slowly throughout massive drifts, was active on Ontario highways today trying to undo part of the damage caused by the week's blizzard which took at least two lives, threatened one settlement with a food shortage and left scores of others temporarily snowbound.

Under a snowdrift, 10-year-old Leslie Lester of Woodburn Village, near Grimsby, was found dead last night by his father, a farmer. Evidently he had been smothered when a valanche of snow from a 10-feet high drift as he was returning home from playing with a chum.

Earlier in the day, the body of John Millstar, 70-year-old Indian of the Kettle Point Reserve, a few miles south of Sarnia, was found west of Fort Franks on Lake Huron, had been found frozen to death in the snow. He was found a mile from his home.

Snowplows got through to Fort Franks last night, clearing the way for a truck which brought 100 tons of bread for the 60 inhabitants who had been isolated by the blizzard and faced a food shortage.

13 below zero was registered at Belleville. Trains were also back on schedule and most of the roads were clear.

Main highways from Stratford to London, to Kitchener and to Goderich were reported open and conditions were rising and the wind had subsided by dawn.

Country sideroads remained blocked around Clair and many farmers were unable to get to market. Main highways have been opened and the plow gangs turned to clearing rural roads of snow.

Bus lines were again operating in all directions out of Guelph but the county roads are filled with snow, kept farmers at home.

150 DEATHS IN SUBZERO PLUNGE

Weather Moderates But There is Promise of Cold-er Weather

Chicago, Jan. 25—(AP)— Slight moderation in the Arctic-like weather which has held most of the United States in an icy grasp for several days was forecast today as the tabulated list of dead in the worst subzero days of the 1935-36 winter exceeded 150.

Even while the slightly warmer prediction was issued, the mercury began dropping in the Northwest states, birthplace of most wintry storms.

Milwaukee observers reported an unofficial six degrees below zero at midnight. The mercury failed to rise to above zero today, but added another mild day Sunday with a new subzero plunge.

International Falls on the Canadian border is in Northern Minnesota and 15 way from there that readings of 40 cause the observers to establish its claim to the doubtful honor of the coldest spot in the United States.

Most of the states east of Illinois reported slight warming in climatic conditions. Fears of a milk shortage in Rochester, N.Y., were relieved with the reopening of heavily drifted highways.

CARRIED COFFIN OVER SNOW ROADS

Pallbearers at Napanee Funeral Suffered Frostbites

Napanee, Jan. 25—Whipping past fly through Deseronto Tuesday, a sub-zero blizzard blocked the cemetery roads and forced the men of the pallbearers, forcing the latter to carry the casket containing the remains of Thomas Bonisteel, well-known Napanee barrister, from the gate to the grave. Throughout the ordeal, W. J. Wiggins, George D. Robson, E. J. Walters, Thomas H. Bleasdell and A. A. Burkholder and John Hambly.

Rev. Harry Pawson, of Trinity United Church, of which deceased was for many years a member, conducted the services.

The burial service of the Masonic Order followed at the graveside of the craft to which he had belonged for nearly 45 years, circled the body to the grave, the officiating master, W. Bro. C. E. Hemlick, C. B. Rodden and Geo. F. Walton, of Union Lodge, No. 9, A.F. and A.M., conducted the last rites of Masonry.

Owing to a blizzard which raged throughout the day, the last services were completed at the residence. The remains were then borne to Riverview Cemetery for interment.

Trenton and District

Trenton, Jan. 25 (Special)—A congregational meeting of the members of King Street United Church was held last night in the church parlors. The treasurer, W. H. Vacancies in the official board were filled by five elders to the session. They were: R. L. Fraser, A. E. Cuff, P. W. Fairman, H. Crowhurst and W. I. Hubbard. Mr. Saylor was introduced by Mr. George Cobley, chairman of the evening. A vote of thanks was tendered the speaker by Kenneth Crews and James Reddick.

Mr. Arthur M. Blakely is spending the week-end in Brampton.

Mr. R. Y. Wemyss spent the past few days in Toronto.

LIGHT and SIGHT are inseparable partners. Recent investigations, and studies of better lighting in (United States) school rooms reveal increased progress in scholastic work . . . . even as the visual correction by proper glasses has long been known to greatly improve general health conditions.

SNOW AVALANCHE SMOTHERS YOUTH

Leslie Lester, 16, of Hamilton Going to Play With Friend, Victim

HAMILTON, Ont. Jan. 25.—(CP)—Ten-year-old Leslie Lester became the second amateur victim of the storm that has lashed Ontario most of the week.

He was smothered to death last night, when a miniature avalanche of snow—a 20-foot snowdrift covered him, while he walked from his farm home near Woodburn into the village ten miles west of here, to play with a friend.

His father, Herman Lester, found the body, still warm, three hours after the youngster started for the village.

Coroner J. Clendenning of Winona, who investigated, believes the boy chose to walk along the high crest of the drift rather than on the road and that he slipped and rolled down the side of the snowbank into the ditch, a drop of seven feet.

The coroner thought his rolling body dislodged a section of the snowbank which slid down over the child as he lay, perhaps momentarily stunned, in the ditch. Before he could struggle free of the heavy blanket of snow he was smothered.

72-Year-Old City Directory Reveals Interesting Facts

Large Number of Carters And Teamsters in Olden Days

In a further perusal of a Belleville Business Directory of seventy-two and more years ago other names are found of once prominent business leaders of the community, this city who have long since passed on to their rest. A survey of the yellowed pages reveals that during that period Grain and Commission periods "vans and edged tool manufacturers", blacksmiths and carriage builders, importers of fancy crockery and allied products, mainly from England, and gunsmiths, all struggled for trade and recognition in their respective lines. Not least of the representation made was among the butchers, most of whom advertised their particular stalls on the open market.

Among those are included: S. N. Bennett Stall No. 1; Edward Britton, Stall No. 11; James Chaffey, Stall No. 10; Francis Clements, Stall No. 7; Alfred Ellis, Stall No. 6; George Gibson, Stall No. 5; James Granger, Stall No. 8; James Lannigan, Stall No. 4; Lawrence O'Brien, Stall No. 9 and Michael Welch, Stall No. 12.

Carters and teamsters were well numbered, including the following: David W. Brown, Coleman Street; Wm. Bordley, West Church; Robert Bunting, E. John; Thomas Comerford, W. Geddes; Bernard Conway, W. Coleman; Andrew Duncan, W. Church; Henry Fanning, W. Front; Thomas Hendy, W. Front; Peter Hill, W. Coleman; Thomas Jones, W. Front; Joseph Lambert, W. Pinnacle; James Mullen, W. Moira; Thomas Mullen, S. Thomas; James Noelan, W. Ann; G. C. Hoblin, W. Pinnacle; Daniel Hyde, W. Ann; John Martin, E. Pinnacle; John N. Stout, Dundas; Levi Taylor, W. Coleman and Henry Taylor, W. Church; S. Wade, W. Grier and Carl D. Taylor, Front.

Chemist and Druggists were not so heavily represented and numbered the following: Apothecaries Hall, E. Front street; E. K. Chandler, Front street; E. Holden, Front and W. Front; M. W. Sawyer, W. Front and A. A. Taylor, W. Front.

Listed among the builders of Belleville were included Alexander Brown, S. Mill Street; John S. Bell, Front and Pinnacle; Nelson, E. John; James N. Nosworthy, N. Bridge; S. O. Sherman, W. Ann and Starling and Arkin, Grand Trunk Station, all of whom were advertising as general contractors.

Civil engineers were few in number according to the advertisements, and were Thomas E. Evans

STORIES OF THE KING

Every story which comes from those who were privileged to be at some time with the late King George in those last few days at Sandringham reveals a lovely personality. His last words to the members of his council on that last day when he made such pathetic efforts to sign the document naming members of the Council of State, "I am sorry to keep you waiting like this" showed the simplicity, courtesy, majesty of the king. His last recognition was a smile and a nod.

His awaking from coma to ask "How is it with the Empire?" is another of those revelations of the glory of human personality and of the sense of personal devotion to duty. Many a Britisher has toiled and struggled for his country but there is none but would give the palm of praise to His late Majesty in this regard. What man could serve and carry out his duty as the late King did? He was indeed as he tried to be, and as he expressed himself in his radio message, the father of his people.

If there is one thing for which the world ought to be grateful to science, it is for the development of radio which brought this devoted personality into the hearts and bosoms of the millions of his people and of the rest of the world. King George could not have been so well known had there been no radio, but with it his people indeed met one who was a blessing to mankind. They can not forget that tender sympathetic voice of their liege lord.

The late King's fame can never fade. He has no need of legend and tradition to swell the story of his name. Every simple unvarnished truth about the sovereign is a ray of light illuminating this great unselfish personality which the world had taken to its heart.

ROBERT BURNS

One hundred and seventy-seven years ago today there was born the greatest singer of the northern world if not the entire world, Robert Burns, the bard of Scotland and humanity.

One hundred and forty years after his death his fame continues to grow for the warmth of his personality and the simplicity and directness of his art. He was the interpreter of man to the world.

Canadians are not of the kind who forget the debt of mankind to the poet. In most homes are copies of his works, well-fingered and worn, because often read. And in the institutions of learning he is remembered. One has but to cite the fact that Prof. Franklin Sayler, author of a life of the poet, and dean of Northwestern University, Evanston, Illinois, will deliver three lectures in Hart House Theatre, Toronto, on Jan. 29th, 30th and 31st, the first one on Burns' personality, the second on his reputation and the third on his art. This series of lectures is provided by the Alumni Association of the University and any graduates of Varsity are privileged to attend. Toronto University remembers to pay due honour to the poet and man Burns. And that is a duty of education. Burns is one of those who are among the greatest benefactors of the race, his message being of no age but for all time.

WINTER'S RULE

Winter got in one of his deadly thrusts this week-end. The big white and swirling snow, the storm king sought almost successfully to tie up the cities and the countryside. For the time being he made traffic impossible to many on side-roads but in a day or two the way will have been made clear. On the highways the lines were kept open with the mighty modern ploughs which in steady pace keep the ways open for the mighty caravans of truckers and the cavalcade of automobiles.

Belleville suffered little as the department of public works rose to the occasion and cleared the roads and the citizens responded and cleared their walks. The city had largely overcome the blizzard before the day was far advanced.

On sidestreets there is no general plan for keeping the routes clear, many farmers were faced with difficulties, not being able to get cars through, the snow ploughing for some of not quite possible for teams with light sleighs to get through. For some days these were handicapped and perhaps will be for a little while yet.

Modern means of transportation can be easily crippled for the time being but soon they find their way through. This week's storm was not as severe however as a storm later in the season several years ago when certain little used roads were left as they were blocked, until the snow retreated before the advent of spring opened them. Generally these blockades are soon overcome.

A place for everything, everything in its place.—Franklin.

LONDON CALLING

Jan. 20, 1939

"Raise me up a little, How the wind is sobbing!
Yet, I surely heard them talking down below;
Some one seemed to whisper, 'It is London calling.'
Why is London calling? Daughter, let me know."

"Go to sleep, my father— let me smooth your pillow—
Ah, how loud the night wind whistles in the flue!
They are at the wireless; it is London calling—
Calling out the station, father—not to you."

"Ere I took my sick-bed, where they say I'm dying,
They were saying war clouds threatened us once more.
If the King is calling, I would rise to hear him—
I would rise to serve him, as I did before."

"Try to rest, dear father; you are old and weary,
You have served him truly, and his father, too.
Rest; the King is silent—it was London calling—
Calling out the station, father—not to you."

"Lay me down again, dear; now the light is falling,
Something in the night wind tells me it is so—
Tells me that my summons came with London calling—
That the King may need me, and I have to go."

Joseph Garvey in Toronto Globe.

MARKS OF THE ROYAL FAVOR HAVE BEEN BESTOWED ON BELLEVILLE, two of her sons having been Knighted, Sir Mackenzie Bowell, one-time Premier of Canada, and Sir Gilbert Parker, noted author of world-wide fame. Belleville seems to take this double honour lightly, for there is not even a bronze tablet displayed in public to remind citizens and strangers that this was the home town of two such illustrious men. The house where Sir Gilbert Parker lived while here has been practically demolished and turned into two houses for rental. Sir Gilbert's body rests beside that of his wife in the Parker mausoleum in Belleville cemetery. Sir Gilbert's brother visited Canada, sat in the Mother of Parliaments as a member of that august body, hobnobbed with the great men of the Empire, and at last wearied and sad and sick of the disappointments and disillusions of life, came back home to rest for aye in that beautiful spot overlooking the sparkling waters of the Bay of Quinte—after a life of accomplishment and of value to Canada. Sir Mackenzie Bowell was a newspaper man, then a parliamentarian, and he rose in his political career and was at one time at the point where he became the Premier of Canada, following at no long interval, that distinguished statesman, whom all the world delighted to honour, Sir John A. Macdonald. Sir Mackenzie Bowell's parliamentary record is free from spot or stain, he was honest, upright and faithful at all times to the great trust reposed in him. He was plain, frank and had no tricks, hence made enemies, but to himself he was always true, to his ideals and his country. Sir Mackenzie Bowell was a credit to Belleville and the citizens of this progressive city delighted to do him honour, while he was alive—Can it be that in death he is forgotten?

THE NEW YEAR HAS STARTED WITH ALL THE EARMARKS of conforming to real old fashioned Canadian standards, with plenty of cold and snow. A blanket of snow on the land is good for the land and an aid to good crops and prosperity for the farmer, and the prosperity of the farmer is the keynote of general prosperity. January has imported a brand of weather which may be labeled Canadian weather No. 1 hard, but not too hard.

Picton and District

Picton—With a steady west wind still blowing, and snow still drifting into hard piles Prince Edward County is virtually snow bound. Official temperatures reported from the office of Fred Wheeler, official weatherman are as follows. Thurs. —low 10 deg. below at 9 a.m.; high 2 deg. above at 4 p.m. Steady northwest wind blowing all day. Friday—7 a.m. 3 deg. below; 9 a.m. 5 deg. below. —West wind blowing.

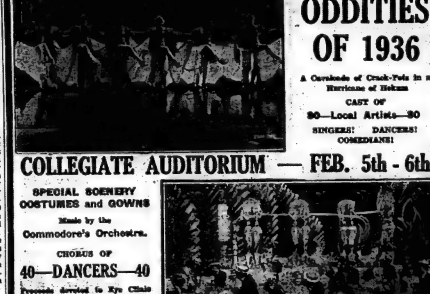
All crossroads in the County are yet impassable and the highways are fence high in many places. On Thursday a doctor was urgently needed at Salmon Point, ten miles south west of Picton. The snow plough followed by the doctor's car left Picton at eight in the morning and did not return until 4.40 in the afternoon. The plough could only go a little way ahead and then back up—all—the—way. Burford's transport with Lawrence Burford driving from Toronto, was due in Picton at eleven Thursday night, but did not arrive until eleven Friday morning. Mr. Burford reported the highway very deep in places.

Mrs. Fred Shannon is very ill with heart trouble at her home, Maitland street. Miss Muriel Pitt is with Mrs. Shannon.

Last Wednesday afternoon, the firemen were called to extinguish a small blaze in the basement of the hospital. The call was put in as a preventative measure, as the fire was extinguished when the firemen arrived. No damage resulted from the blaze.

The radio license inspector visited Picton this week, and as a result more than a dozen radio users will have to pay the usual fee for operating a radio without a license.

Mrs. Carmel McLellan is ill at her home, Maitland street. Mrs. John McLellan is suffering from a severe attack of measles, which are quite prevalent here.



Mr. C. O. King accompanied the Collegiate boys to Wellington, on Wednesday night, where they defeated the Wellington team.

Mr. George Hart of Toronto is registered at The Royal Hotel this week.

BRIGADE AVERTS A SERIOUS FIRE

Partition of Apartment Over Bank Catches Fire During Night

Shirley, Jan. 23 (Special)—A fire which might have become quite serious was discovered in the early hours of Friday morning when dense clouds of smoke aroused the household in the apartment occupied by Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Ellis over the Bank of Montreal. Several of the local firefighters were soon on the job and the fire which started in a partition between the floor joists was soon under control. Flames had gained a start on the joist between the partition and under the floor. The fireplace was badly damaged as the flames began to tear away the tile and brick to get at the partition behind. Whether the flames actually got started is unknown but the damage was reduced to a minimum by the prompt response of the local fire department under the direction of Fire Chief James Lagrow. This is the second fire in the village in a month, the last within the village and another fire on the premises of Mr. J. A. McMullen north of the village which destroyed a drive shed and main stand along with two cars and imported on Thursday, Jan. 23rd. An efficient fire department is a great asset in the community in these days of zero weather, when many of the residents strive to get all the heat they can from their stoves and heating plants.

50 Years Ago

Jan. 25th., 1886.

Since the water in the Moira River began to rise the day before yesterday it has gradually risen until the situation began to assume proportions of a flood. Lots on both sides of the river are driven from home and still the water keeps creeping up. Only those residing in the flooded district can form any adequate idea of the damage and the suffering which results. This morning there was almost a general exodus from the west side of Bridge Street and on the east side of the river from the Queen's Hotel south. The demand for vacant houses is great and far exceeds the supply. The majority of the sufferers are without means and it is the poorest part of the city that is inundated. The lower part of the city or what is known as "The Flats" and the "Victoria Flats" is where the suffering is chiefly at present. The water is on Front Street from the wharf up to the Queen's Hotel and is still rising. The Commercial House is flooded on the ground floor, reaching up to the second step of the stairs in the main hallway. William Carter, the boatman, had to move out last night. The floor of the Ald. Clarke's blacksmith shop is covered with several feet of water, that of Young & Co.'s badly off and Mayor McIninch's shop also flooded. Dickens & Sanderson's boot shop has only a foot of water, but the men are still at work, boards having been put in to keep them out of the water. Roy's brewery and in fact every industry along the east side of the river below the upper bridge is suffering or compelled to shut down. At ten o'clock this morning the water lacked but a few inches of being in No. 1 fire engine shed and the floor of the Grand Opera office. The water is backed up so that the dam near Walker's Foundry is out of sight. The river is constantly bringing down large quantities of anchor ice which is the cause of all the trouble. Mr. John Bell has charge of the ice and the use of the large building on Pinnacle street, formerly used as the Grand Junction depot, as a place of shelter for the horsemen. This morning water began to invade the furnace room of the Government building. A pump was used and the premises kept clear of water. A rise in temperature has happened and in consequence a slight fall in the river will probably occur. This is to be devoutly hoped for as the flood threatens to paralyze the trade of the city. The great difficulty has been to supply coal. The direct route of Pinnacle Street being almost impassable, a road has been made up to the bay, and a long detour via Lingham's mill has been rendered necessary.

MICHAEL O'SHEA DENIES CHARGES

Tells Commissioners of Incident in Room at Hotel

Toronto, Jan. 22—(CP)—Lapsing into a rich Irish brogue in his first denial, Constable Michael O'Shea yesterday told the Royal Commission investigating Toronto police affair the numerous accusations against him were false.

The towering 3rd-round policeman assured Judge J. J. Coughlin and Edward C. Rose, commissioners, there was "not one iota of truth" in former Constable W. J. Watt's allegation O'Shea was party to many thefts from stores and warehouses in the downtown area. He declared he had more backbone in his little finger than Watt has in his whole spineless carcass. His manhood was questioned by Watt's statement O'Shea often asked him to enter shops and warehouses with him at night because O'Shea had no backbone.

Specifically, O'Shea denied entering Russell's hardware store, Remnie Seed Co. - warehouse, the Murray-Kay shop, Cluxley's Ltd., the Ada Dyrgovda Warehouse, a candy shop, a corset factory, Agnew-Surpass shoe store and John Burn's shoe store. He denied several other incidents Watt reported in connection with thefts of stolen goods from hiding places in O'Shea's cars.

Watt swore he entered the Burn shoe store with O'Shea and helped the latter find two pairs of size 11 shoes on the shelves.

"Sure and why would I be taking size 11, when it's size 10 O'm wearing?" O'Shea asked, turning with a smile to the commissioners.

Explains Incidents

O'Shea explained two incidents regarding his conduct as a police officer. In 1927 he talked to a girl he knew and she asked him to find her a job. He took her over to a hotel to ask a Mrs. Kerr to find the girl a job. Mrs. Kerr was then examined by her and O'Shea declared he and the girl were asked to wait in a hotel bedroom nearby. He learned later former Constable John Hall, whom he met at the desk, notified his superior officers, with the result Inspector W. J. Johnston and Hall Inspector Parrish came to the hotel room. O'Shea denied former Deputy Chief John Pogue's testimony it was the latter, who accompanied Inspector Johnson.

"Pogue dies, when he says he came to the hotel room," insisted the constable. He denied he was stripped in his underwear, that there was beer in the room, or that the girl was in bed. He had removed his jacket because of the heat, he said, and the girl was sitting on the bed. There was no impropriety between him and the girl, he declared.

TWO MOTOR CARS BURNED IN SHED

Apiary Equipment Owned by A. J. McMillan Is Destroyed

Stirling, Jan. 24.—(Special) — Fire of an unknown origin destroyed the drive shed, containing the car, the property of Mr. A. J. McMullen on the 8th Concession of Rawdon, about noon on Thursday, January 23rd. The loss included all Mr. McMullen's apiary equipment, cap pails and pans in large numbers, milk cans and many valuable tools. Two cars parking in the shed were also destroyed. The cause of the fire is unknown. Mr. McMullin is believed to have been the last one in the shed, about 11.30 a.m., and he declared he made a trip into Stirling village and home again, and going to start one of his cars to make the trip, when he saw the situation. He took the trip with his nephew and while in Stirling learned the news. Fire brigade left the village about 11.30 a.m., and advanced to a stage beyond expectations before they arrived. Men worked in the bitter cold and in protect the structure of the building, but the shed was a total loss. The extent of the damage has not been definitely learned and is reported to be only partly covered by insurance.

Further Seat for Trial On Conversion Count

BRANTFORD, Ont., Jan. 24. — (CP)—Ethel Cetrov, furrier, today, was committed for trial on two charges of conversion or two fur coats and one concerning giving false reports to the police. Police claimed Cetrov reported a robbery at his store and that the information was false.

J. A. D. Selmin, K.C., defending, argued there had not been enough evidence presented by regular police officers for a higher court, the evidence to date being merely circumstantial. Worship felt the number of incidents, put together satisfied him committal was in order.

LAVISH SPECTACLES AS PRINCES OF INDIA CELEBRATE JUBILEES.—The Maharajah of Baroda, one of the world's richest rulers, is pictured sitting on his golden throne at ceremonies that opened his diamond jubilee durbar at Baroda, India, on Jan. 2. The aging monarch of Baroda is no W72. He has succeeded the throne of his ancestors since he was 12. — Except the Nizam of Hyderabad, the immensely wealthy Aga Khan as the owner of racing horses. He is not known to the general public, but in India he is pictured often. The Aga Khan is one of India's most influential Moslems and has been so since he was nine. In those days, the Aga Khan was considered the richest man in the world. Today, however, he is not quite so rich. He became spiritual head of the Shiah Imami Ismaelis and of the Khoja community of western India. In time, robes he is celebrating the fiftieth year, the second Jubilee of his reign. The Aga Khan is the forty-eighth in direct descent from Ali, nephew and son-in-law of the prophet Mahomet. His word is divine law to millions.

Stirling and District

Stirling, Jan. 24.—The church basement of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was well filled on Wednesday evening Jan. 22nd, when the members of the congregation gathered at one of the best attended annual meetings held in the church for some time. The meeting was called to order by Rev. J. A. Koffend, who opened the devotional period with the singing of two hymns which were known lavorites of the late King George V. A period of silent prayer was observed for the bereaved Royal family. The Scripture lesson for the evening was read by the minister from the 103rd psalm of St. John followed by a brief address of Christmas of thrice, which was a most timely topic. At the conclusion of the devotional period, Mr. C. F. Baker was appointed chairman for the evening and Mr. Arthur Jamieson secretary. The minutes of the last annual meeting were read and adopted. After which all branches of the church presented their yearly reports which were of the most encouraging nature.

The following reports were given in their respective order: Mrs. Brewer's report by Mrs. Nolan. Women's Missionary Society report, Miss R. Drewery. Supply report, Mrs. T. H. Mathews. Choir report, Mrs. Nolan. Sabbath school and Bible class reports were given by Mr. H. Bell. Mission Band was given by Miss Spry. Budget report Mr. J. H. McCoe. Ladies' Aid, Mrs. J. M. McCoe. Mr. Tom Mollet addressed the gathering on behalf of the session. Discussion arose of the Young People's Society and the following committee were appointed to superintend the re-organization of this branch of the work. Mrs. J. M. McCoe, Mrs. C. N. Baker, Miss Isobel Murrey, Mr. Roy Eggleton and Mr. Duncan Montgomery. Mr. Percy Wilson was appointed to the board of managers along with the re-appointment of the two retiring members of the board, Mr. Carman Pitchett and Mr. Percy Craighead.

During the evening many worthwhile addresses on the future welfare of the congregation were set forth. At the close of the business evening a sincere and hearty vote of thanks was tendered Rev. and Mrs. Koffend for their untiring effort in all church work, and also to Mr. Clifford H. Baker for the splendid manner in which he conducted the meeting. The meeting was closed with prayer by Rev. J. A. Koffend and the ladies of the church served lunch. This was a meeting of great interest to all associated with the church and the reports revealed a marked progress in all phases of church life. A spirit of deep interest prevailed as the reports were read. The pastor and congregation will be the guiding factor in congregational matters for the coming year.

Session, Messrs F. T. Ward, Robt. Eggleton, R. W. Meiklon, J. M. McCoe, Board of Management, Mr. C. N. Baker, chairman. Messrs. W. H. Anderson, Boller Johnston, Vernon Matthews, Roy Eggleton, Carman Pitchett, Percy Craighead, T. McCoe, and Mr. H. Mollins. Sunday School superintendent Mr. Robert Eggleton. Baker, Miss Isobel Murray; Messrs. Roy Eggleton and Duncan Montgomery.

The Late King George V.

One of the many displays of sincere sorrow at the passing of the late Sovereign of the British Empire is exemplified by the arrangement in the window of F. T. Ward's furniture establishment. The entire window was cleared of its display and a magnificent full face study of the late King George V. was placed draped with a large Naval ensign upon which appears the crest of the House of Windsor, resting on the right hand of the late King and good painting of His Majesty. This arrangement under the cover of dark last night and morning, demands by its very simplicity a decent and reverent study of all those who pass by. Mr. Ward is responsible for this display which speaks for the sincere village. The thing older than the above mentioned in the window is like of the various organizations within the community that share which heartily in the sentiment. The following names are included: Canadian Legion No. 256, Stirling Village Council, Education, Stirling Fair Board, Women's Institute, Community Welfare Club, Stirling Hydro Commission, Fire Department, Boy Scouts, Cubs, Girl Guides, Bowling Club, Tennis Club, Hockey Club, Horticultural Society, Superintendents of village, Rink Commission, Business Men. All fraternal organizations, Citizen's band and citizens.

Miss Winnifred Ward Reg. N., and Miss Margaret Anderson Reg. N., have returned to their homes in Stirling after attending Mr. E. Bailey on Bellefville Ontario Hospital. Mr. Bailey, who underwent an operation for acute appendicitis is reported to be progressing quite favorably along the road to complete recovery.

Mr. Thompkins, supt. of Kingston District of the Bell Telephone Company is supervising the re-construction of the company's system within the corporation. The project is quite extensive in its scope taking in the removal of all overhead wiring on the Front street.

Today in school Miss Kitty was telling us lucky we were to live in such a good environment to grow into fine, caring, Envronmental Men of the 2 grate molders of character, and the 2nd is heredity, which means the various traits and mentle gifts that you inherit from your fathers. The Chinese respect their ancestors to such a extent that it is a religion with them, but we could all be glad to possess a fraction that we can be proud of. I am sure that most of the boys in your own families have had various ancestors in some way. He who may of passed their time in jail or on the moors? Now each of you can tell the class of some notable personage in your family? she said.

Saying the fiddle is an honerable occupation, I'm sure, but it's mostly distinguished, such as being a grate composer, Miss Kitty.

No we speak of ancesters we mostly refer to living relatives, Kitty said. Ancesters are relations I have preached to me in the life of whose portraits now hang on the walls or grace my family album. She said, nodding pleasing over his head, saying, My grandmother was an ancester, because I ever even saw him, and he's got one on his grave.

Then he was no doubt a grate man, and died for his country, Miss Kitty said. Now, Benny, is it the flag of the Mystick Order of Beetles and my grandfather was the Royal Exalted Scroll told we're not meddles home to prove it.

But my ma was quite a cornster, Or I think we'd need bendys go to the arithmetic lesson, Miss Kitty said.

Wich, we did feeling against it.

Train Child To be Left By Self

Being Alone Aids Him to Become Mistress, Says Miss Crunelle

By LISA CRENELLE

MABEL, WAS so talented in painting, dancing, sculpture, even in singing that she had it in her to do almost anything. She was simply cut out for success.

But she never "made it". No, it wasn't lack of concentration, this time, or laziness, lack of ambition or discouragement at home.

Mabel never accomplished anything simply because she could never bear to be alone.

As a small child, she always had someone with her—her nurse, her mother, her aunt, or maybe just the little girl next door. She was an only child, and her mother couldn't bear thinking of her little Mabel alone and idle. There always must be someone with her, someone to amuse her.

Dependency Bad

Perhaps Mabel's mother feared to be alone herself. Maybe that was why she dreaded it so for Mabel. Whatever the case, psychology has soon apt to with the same weakness in their children.

At any rate, if all through your childhood or girlhood or boyhood, constant companionship has been provided for you, even forced upon you, you find it hard to gain confidently get on without it, no matter how old you are.

Mabel is a vicious master, and the habits of childhood are particularly hard to escape. And the habit, of wishing to be alone is one of the worst handicaps you can wish upon any child.

We all know enough Mabels among both sexes to realize what a pitiful situation theirs is—continually running away from themselves, depending always from Dick and Harry to relieve their loneliness.

Leave Child Alone

We have seen enough of these unfortunates to appreciate how unfortunate they always are for underneath, how little they actually have, and how terrifically they exhaust themselves.

And perhaps we have observed, too, that those dependents rob us almost always immature, that there is no growing children by them.

We all know that a child who has been overprotected, excessively sheltered, or cruelly will not thoroughly mature. These various pressures will be lessened.

It is the same, however, with a child who is not accustomed to being left to his own resources. He develops no resources of his own simply because he doesn't have to, lacks independence just as the dominated child does.

From earliest infancy, every child should be left strictly to himself for certain hours each day, without constantly interfering with suggestions as to what he shall do or being offered him, even if he asks for them.

Gasoline Truck Struck From Behind by Car

Applying his brakes to avoid colliding with a sleigh, which police alleged carried no lights after sundown, was the cause of an accident that occurred about four miles west of Belleville on highway No. 2, shortly after 6.00 p.m. last evening.

Following investigations Motorcycle Patrolman W. H. Delaney stated he found that a Gorgie Lehigh gasoline truck, being driven easterly by, C. T. Corby, 31 Cedar Street, was forced to stop abruptly owing to the fact of a sleigh, the property of the Montreux Dairy being driven across the highway without the proper lights displayed after sundown, appeared in front of his vehicle. When the truck stopped suddenly, however, the automobile travelling in the wake of the truck, and driven by Roy Woodcock of Belleville, crashed into the rear of the gasoline truck.

The front of the automobile was completely demolished following the collision, but personal injuries are reported to have been sustained, stated Officer Delaney today.

Dance

Owing to the terrific blizzard and snowstorm last night, Wednesday and Thursday, the country roads were nearly all impassable. The C.N.R. train made its trips, however, and the Trenton road, although heavy in spots was in a fairly good condition. Doctors had difficulty in making their calls in the outlying districts, although in the village was in keeping with the weather as the pub-mens part. The school attendance was below par and a few of the schools suffering from a distance had their faces blanks and fact frozen, which necessitated First Aid treatments by the teachers, a part of their day's duties.

Mr. W. N. Simmons has been confined to his home suffering from an attack of influenza.

Mrs. Joseph Carr is also recuperating from an attack of the prevailing epidemic.

A special meeting of the Village Council was held on Wednesday evening, January 22nd, 1936 business was transacted. Municipal Insurance and Road work were the principal items with which the Board had to deal.

Wednesday afternoon, Daniel Lawrence while at work, at the pulp mill, had the misfortune of his about-face. The injured man was taken to Dr. D. W. McMullen's surgery for treatment.

Owing to the extreme cold the hockey matches, (Frankford and District League), which were to be played on Thursday evening, January 23rd were postponed.

Mr. Lloyd Hanna is confined to his home through illness.

Mr. J. E. Prentice, driver of the Frankford-Belleville stage, was unable to make the trip on Thursday morning, owing to the heavy snowdrifts.

The Carnival which was to have been held on Friday evening, January 24th, was postponed on account of the sub-zero weather and the snow-blocked country roads.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

"It's a Great Life"

And "Forced Landing" Two Smart Features.

The life of the young men who make up the population of less than two thousand O.C.C. camps throughout the nation is brought to the screen in dramatic fashion by Paramount's "It's a Great Life", which opens Monday at the Capitol Theatre.

The producers have not made a fresh, never-real sort of picture about the O.C.C. Instead, while showing the hum-drum workings of camp life, the film can stand alone on its merits as a dramatic entertainment, as well as for the manner in which the entire cast presents the story.

The principal dramatic roles belong to Joe Morrison, Jean Kelly, Donald Keith and William Frawley, but the picture acquires balance through the work of Charles (Chic) Sale and of three juvenile stars, Baby LeRoy, David Holt and Gloria Ann Wylie.

Morrison, cast as a small-town boy who is unable to find work, leaves his mother and grandfather "Chic" Sale to join the C.C.C., after saying goodbye to his childhood sweetheart, Rosalind Keith, who is a neighbor and the sole support of the three children—her two brothers and sister.

En route Morrison meets Paul Kelly and persuades him to join the camp. They go through a series of adventures together, with William Frawley cast as the hard-boiled lieutenant in charge of the camp. Since Kelly receives thirty dollars per month, twenty-five of which must be sent to his family, and Morrison he has to family, Morrison arranges for the checks to be sent to the girl back home.

Others participating are Morrison and Kelly, who are rivals for the girl's sweetheart. There are some fine dramatic moments in the picture after the story reaches this point, a realistic fight against a forest fire provides one of the story's thrilling moments.

Morrison, of course, is heard in singing sequences and again proves that he is one of filmdom's finest tenors, as well as being an excellent actor.

"Chic" Sale, cast as an enfeebled Civil War veteran who insists he's as spry as he ever was, turns in one of his flawless performances as usual.

He provides the patriotic appeal which leads Morrison to go to the camp, as well as contributing his inimitable style of village character comedy. There is a sequence in which, simply by fussing with his disreputable old pipe, he succeeds in achieving absolute eloquence in his pantomime. His effort at hanging a picture on the parlor wall is another such noteworthy bright spot. In short, though Sale's part in the story is of secondary importance, his unique clowning helps lift the drama out of the ordinary class.

AT THE REGENT

"The Littlest Rebel"

Shirley Sparkles in New Film

When a little girl and her happiness are involved, the Blue and the Gray are all friends.....and no one is Shirley Temple's "The Littlest Rebel," proving a case in point.

The picture, adapted from that immortal play of the Civil War, opens a three days engagement at the Belle theatre today, with a matinee daily except Tuesday, when two evening performances will be presented.

As the tiniest Confederate in Virginia, the dimpled darling of Dixie wins the first big dramatic role in "The Littlest Rebel."

John Boles and Karen Morley are her parents. Separated by the war, they are rejoined just before Miss Morley succumbs to the rigors. Boles, though he fears apprehension as a spy, undertakes to deliver the child to her aunt in Richmond.

He is trapped by a Yankee officer, Jack Holt. But Holt, surrendering to Shirley's charms and wiles, to help them through the line when their plot fails, both Boles and Holt are in hot water.

How the little girl uses her charms on the President of the Union to save her dearest friend, is revealed in the tender dramatic climax of "The Littlest Rebel."

Bill Robinson, the colored genius of tap dancing, is again Shirley's partner in the companion in the picture. Between them they manage some deft and charming exhibitions of footwork.

Prominent in the supporting cast are Guinn Williams as a Yankee soldier, Willie Best as a faithful retainer, and Frank McGlynn, internationally famous for his Abraham Lincoln characterizations.

Grand Short Treats

A grand program of short treats have been assembled for exhibition on the same program including Mickey Downey's favorite of the Radio and stage in a smart Revue, "Rabbit in Brass," the Okani World News reel and "Somewhere in Dreamland" a delightful comic-color-Kartune in color.

Performances start today and Monday at 2.30, 7.10 and 9.15, on Tuesday evening at 7.10 and 9.15; no matinee performance will be presented on Tuesday. The feature attraction will start daily at 2.18, 7.46 and 9.55 p.m.

QUINTE BRANCH W. I.

The January meeting of the Quinte Branch W. I. was held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Les Purdy, Front of Thurlow. A large number of members and visitors were present and a profitable afternoon enjoyed. The president Mrs. Jas. Carbotte, was in the chair and the meeting opened in the usual way by singing the Ode and repeating the Lord's Prayer. During the illness of the Secretary Mrs. R. C. Mitchell read the minutes of last meeting which were approved. After routine business and discussions had been disposed of Miss Ethel Reid, Secretary for January, capably took charge and community singing was indulged in for a time. The Roll Call "How Thank You" was then well and wisely answered and the list of ideas passed along. The report of the Girls' Work Party for the year 1935, held in Belleville in October was given by Mrs. Roy Connor and was very heartily heard. Mrs. Taylor brought some excellent patchs back to the Home branch and was given a hearty clap by the members.

A musical solo by James Maidment playing the guitar and Roy Snider the violin with a choice of subject and a real treat. The boys were heartily applauded for their ed. A paper on "Historical Research" by Mr. S. Anderson more than delighted the ladies as it was based on our own home city, Belleville. Mr. Taylor read a letter from the year 1816, and of what it is to-day 1936. This was good as are all the advancement of our fair city depicts the progress encountered in days gone by. Again the boys delighted the gathering with more music.

After the singing of the National Anthem and prayer the ladies retired to the dining room where the tables were daintily laden and Mrs. Purdy and her assistants served a delicious lunch.

AMELIASBURG

The members of St. Alban's Church Guild were entertained by a surprise party at Mr. and Mrs. Boyd's home the evening of Jan. 15th, in Ameliasburg.

The guests of honor were completely taken by surprise. A good time was spent by all during the early part of the evening as address was read by Mrs. Fred Fisk and the gift presented by Mrs. George Lough.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Boyd,—

We, the members of St. Alban's Church Guild, have come to delight in your new home, to show you our esteem in which you are held, to express our appreciation and attendance at church as well as the splendid help you have been to the Guild in every way. We ask you to accept this table in the spirit in which it is offered.

Signed on behalf of the congregation, Mrs. Harry Lough, Mrs. Fred Fife.

And Mrs. Boyd made a suitable response in a few well chosen words. Dancing "For they are jolly good fellows" was heartily sung and enjoyed. All joined in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Boyd much happiness in their new home.

Rawdon and District

RAWDON.—Owing to the blizzard on Thursday and the very cold weather, the mail carrier, Mr. Fred Hall, was unable to complete the mail on Route No. 3. Several of the side roads are piled full of snow. The mail was consequently suspended until the men could shovel out the roads.

A large number of men from Wellman's community spent Thursday morning shovelling snow in preparation for the funeral in the afternoon. Because of their efforts the funeral hearse and several autos had to be guided along the road. Some of the horses at the cars were unable to operate under their own power.

Wellman's held their Congregational meeting at the church on Tuesday evening with a good attendance. Rev. J. R. Beckel presided and Mr. Frederick Beckett was appointed Congregational secretary.

Splendid reports of all departments were given, showing the church business in a thriving condition. Mr. George Heagle reported for church treasury; Mr. Frederick Beckett reported for the Young People's Society and a generous offering that evening will finish paying for the re-decorating which the Young People sponsored last autumn.

Mr. Howard Wallace gave the report of the Sunday School, and Mr. Carl Clancy the Missionary and Maintenance.

Mr. Ed Todd reported for the stewards and Mrs. Clifford Clancy for the Aid.

Mrs. T. Clancy gave the work of the Women's Missionary Society and Mrs. Geo. Maybee the Mission Band.

A musical number was given by Messrs. Omar Dracup, Frederick Beckett and Miss Lucille Dracup. Miss Priscilla Cook rendered a piano solo and Miss Grace Dayman a reading.

The officers of the church were elected as follows: Stewards—Messrs. Fred Shaw, Georgie Heagle, Charles Morton, H. V. Hoover, John Pauley, Stewards—Messrs. Robert Wallace, Ed Todd and Charles Dunham. Church Treasurer—Mr. Geo. Heagle. Pianist—Mrs. John Heagle. Assistants—Miss Lucille Dracup, Miss Lessie Mr. Angus Todd. Trustees —Mr. Wilfrid Sine, secretary, and Messrs. Clancy, Geo. Heagle, Fred Snarr, Charles Dunham, Clifford Clancy and John Pauley.

Mr. John Heagle of Wellman's had the misfortune to badly gash her finger on Tuesday evening a cord. She was immediately taken to Belleville Hospital for treatment and she is now recuperating at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Burkitt, Shirley.

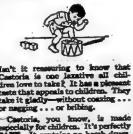
MASTERS IN THE ART OF CLEANING



Scenes from Shirley Temple's sweetest and happiest picture "The Littlest Rebel", featuring John Boles, Karen Morley, Jack Holt and Bill Robinson at the Belle today, Monday and Tuesday evening

Are some babies born BAD?

Do your eyes jump to the conclusion that your baby was "born crabbers" when he doggedly refuses to take a laxative?

Perhaps the answer is that the little fellow doesn't like it. And, if you "force" him to take it you can completely upset his digestion by the struggle.

Isn't it reassuring to know that Castoria is one laxative all children love to take? It has a pleasant taste that appeals to children. They take it gladly—without coaxing . . . or nagging . . . or bribing.

Castoria, you know, is made especially for children. It's perfectly SAFE. It contains no harsh drugs, no drastic ingredient. It is prepared solely for a child's needs—not an adult's. It won't cause griping pains. It works in only one way—it gently stimulates the muscles in the lower bowel. And helps the system to start functioning normally again.

Thousands of mothers have adopted Castoria as their children's laxative—from babyhood to 11 years. Why not join them? Keep a bottle of Castoria on hand always. Your drug store has it. Ask for the Family-Size and save money.

SLIGHT RELIEF FOR ZERO BESIEGED CITY

Relief came to a zero besieged city and district today as cold north winds, which have swept the province for the past two days, abated, with a following decrease in temperatures during the morning. Although zero weather were still registered, the contrast between coldness of the fore part of the week was marked. Temperatures have had reached the five below mark at eight o'clock in the morning, but a gradual decrease was noted during the latter part of the day. Road conditions were also being improved as the result of steady work on the part of plows and scrapers through the county.

King Leaves for Ascot For Quiet Weekend

LONDON, Jan. 25.—(CP Cable)—The King left London today to spend a quiet week-end at his Ascot residence in Fort Belvedere, Sandalls, Ascot.

It has been the private residence for some years past, giving him an opportunity to recover from the strain of his official duties and to indulge in his hobby of gardening.

The duties imposed by the illness and death of his father during the last eight days have been the most exacting of his reign to date, and he is expected to seek complete relief from them over the week-end in preparation for the funeral of the late King George V on Tuesday.

FEW VENDORS ON SATURDAY MART

Drifted Roads Keep Farmers at Home; Butter 36c

The housewife went to market this morning, but in most cases returned home with an empty basket, or depended upon supplies from the grocery store to tide the family over the week end. Today's market was the smallest of the year, with buyers far outnumbering sellers. On the fruits market only a handful of vendors were offering staple products of eggs, butter and a small amount of poultry. Travel cautiously impressed by snow drifted roads, stayed home, making supplies from kitchens to nearby wood piles. Eggs, the fruit that were offered, were a little firmer today, with the average price being 36 cents for pullets and 39 for "extras". Butter showed little change. A few were offering two pound rolls at 74 cents, although in most cases 30 cents per pound was asked. A few lone chickens commanded from 22 cents to $1.00.

Livestock sales also showed little change, in spite of the difficulty of getting supplies from outlying districts. In the grain market no change was noted.

SLIGHT RELIEF FOR ZERO BESIEGED CITY

Relief came to a zero besieged city and district today as cold north winds, which have swept the province for the past two days, abated, with a following decrease in temperatures during the morning. Although zero weather were still registered, the contrast between coldness of the fore part of the week was marked. Temperatures have had reached the five below mark at eight o'clock in the morning, but a gradual decrease was noted during the latter part of the day. Road conditions were also being improved as the result of steady work on the part of plows and scrapers through the county.

King Leaves for Ascot For Quiet Weekend

It has been the private residence for some years past, giving him an opportunity to recover from the strain of his official duties and to indulge in his hobby of gardening.

The duties imposed by the illness and death of his father during the last eight days have been the most exacting of his reign to date, and he is expected to seek complete relief from them over the week-end in preparation for the funeral of the late King George V on Tuesday.

Malrobic Expected To Resume Operations In Near Future

The shares of Malrobic Mines have been the outstanding feature in strength on the Toronto Stock Exchange in recent sessions. From a reliable source it is learned that a definite announcement will be forthcoming which would permit resumption of operations at its property located in Malartic township of Quebec. Much surface work was done years ago on the property and a shaft was sunk to a depth of 260 feet on a shear zone 1,000 ft. in length and 12 ft. in width.

In August, 1933, a well-known engineer examined favorably on the Malrobic following an exhaustive study of the property. The report concluded, in part, as follows:

"The exploration work which has been done on the surface has disclosed favorable geological conditions which are associated with gold production for a length of 1500 feet in which the presence of a concentration on about its indicated over a length of from 300 to 500 feet in the vicinity of the shaft. The existence of gold ore, some of which is of a commercial grade, gold ore to the extent indicated is known to be present to a vertical depth of at least 260 feet. The ore results obtained both on the surface and in the shaft warrant further development in the hope that the present exposures can be duplicated both in length at new horizons, and in depth."

Since the property was shut down by lack of funds, the control district has grown considerably in importance. Recently a block of shares obtained by Canadian Malartic and of the very favorable indications secured by diamond drilling at such properties as Sladen, East Malartic and others.

Ferron Gold Mines—Production To Start Early In February

Due to some unavoidable delays the mill at Ferron Gold Mines will not be ready to operate before another two to three weeks. The mill is expected to have a daily capacity in excess of 150 tons daily and it is hoped to have a second unit in operation within a few months. This would bring production up to about 300 tons daily. Ferron Gold Mines Ferron in the large mine class.

On the basis of 300 tons daily, Ferron could earn substantial per share earnings in view of the annually estimated net over 2,000,000 shares. Calculating millheads at $12.50 and recovery at $11.50 per ton with anticipated recovery of 97 per cent. Ferron could earn well over 7 cents per share on its capital stock.

Based on an interim report published last October it is calculated that ore reserves may be considerably estimated at well over 200,000 tons of ore. Semi-monthly official reports published by Ferron Gold revealed that not only have total ore lengths been added to, but that grade has been better than that previously reported. For instance, December drifts last year tested at $70 tons having a grade of .63 oz. or $21.70 per ton.

Public interest at the moment is largely centred in the metal stocks, with the gold issue being the favorites. Buying of securities as International Nickel, Noranda and Falconbridge has been the most conspicuous feature in the base metal section. Nickel was the most active stock of the group, selling up to 46 and Falconbridge to 18 1-2. Tech Hughes, Wright Hargreaves, Rea, Lamaque, Sylvanite Long Lac also showed gains of 5 to 20 cents each.

Base metal issues were firm. Search Light Red Lake, Ventures, Falconbridge and Sherritt did better. Falconbridge advanced about 30 cents to $7.80. In the Silvers prices were quoted. Beaver Consolidated was the most active of the group. Royalite was off 1-2.

Belleville Goalie Stood Between Team And Larger Score

Displaying not much speed and general hockey ability the Oshawa "Chevies" blanked the Belleville "Redmen" 2 to 0 in an intermediate O.H.A. fixture staged at the Belleville Arena before 1,000 satisfied fans last evening. The local squad excelled through the play of practically the highly-heralded Motor City aggregation in view and consequently turned in a splendid display of defensive hockey against the attack of the powerful but collection of individuals gathered together by Coach Jim Gallagher. The game was marked with plenty of speed and a numerous penalties up by both teams with the result that goals were a premium throughout, Oshawa's only two tallies coming in the dying embers of the game. Had either side scored a goal in the local forwards were badly left in arrears.

Once again the rear guard of the "Redmen" stood out as the most outstanding factor of the game, especially as goalie Don Morton kept out the proverbial million pucks, as he was given superb support by Ingram and Bennett on the defence. Repeatedly Morton outguessed the Oshawa forward line as they bombarded the Belleville citadel as he was given plenty of opportunity to show his wares and McDonald who continually threw themselves into the fray and completely Oshawa crowd. The visitors displayed a splendid passing attack and carried on the play for the locals, but Coach Hancock's charges were repeatedly cut asunder by the superb work of the local defence and Morton.

Oshawa showed a stellar defence in Rowden, who repeatedly led the visitors on dangerous sallies and Doug. Maundrell, with "Squeak" Morrison distributing well at centre, native defenceman Salter, in the Oshawa net, was seldom tested, but came to the fore when called upon by the locals, but it proved to be the superb work of Gerang on the "Chevries" that kept the "Redmen" from the score sheet. Obliston, Smith and Barrett carried the attack many a mile for the visitors as they tried time and again to penetrate the local fort without results. "Boo" Rowden, Oshawa's veteran pivot star, Obliston and Barrett were the best for the visitors as Claridge and Barnes played a stellar game for the winners at times.

Morton In Goal Stars

Don Morton, local goal-tender, literally kicked out sufficient rubber to retard a flock of cross-ties time while he was given ample support by Ingram and McDonald on the defence. Cy Barriage looked the best of the local forwards, as he tried, by hook or a time to beat Salter, but without results. "Speedy" Ali Louis dished out all the best forward tossed over the boards by Skipper Thomas, but by at the night the honors was on the right side of the local ledger, as the Oshawa team scored the only good, going both ways. Carl and Pete Morton proved profitable in fact as did the highly-heralded "Chevries", but accomplished little as they repeatedly dropped the puck with the slumdy Oshawa defence. As the score would indicate the Belleville defence worked overtime to keep the score at a low level, as the sport-starved fans thronged the initially swept down the ice when in possession of the puck. The game was one of the best witnessed locally in years and keenly interested but the more prowess and speedier team won the day.

The Play

Oshawa opened hostilities by staging a burst of speed that kept the play in the Belleville zone until Maundrel tested Morton with a wrist shot that raged up and down the ice as both teams applied pressure in place of speed, but no score resulted in the initial period, that saw Morton star, when he repeatedly beat the fast-shifting Oshawa forwards as they applied the pressure. St. Louis came to the rescue of the Belleville in this period, when he brought Salter to his knees with a hard low drive, but the frame snubbed scorsless. Morton satisfied the fans as he came to his knees with a timely stand to open the second frame. Play was fast and furious as both teams tried in vain to break the deadlock. Barriage raced in close, but was not in position to shoot as he was returned and tested but Morton down to save. Morton did across the goal-mouth to toss out Maundrel's shot and the period ended with the Oshawa-ites headed back to Smith, who rifled the rubber into the Belleville net before even the spectators had realized what had happened. It was a hollow goal. Try as they might the locals could not even the count as the second period ended with the "Chevies" still on the offensive.

Oblisbon opened the last frame by feinting his rubber from the left end and fooling Morton, who saved, but a throw by play "Pete" Morton to Barriage to Carl Morgan, Keller beat the latter on the goal, but the play was now in Belleville. Belleville was purely on the defensive at this time, but Salter was defangled by his team-mates back-checking. Morton again saved by leading Maundrell and Obliston from close in, but second Obliston passed to Gerang to Cooper, the local blue line with Cooper speeding in, drawing Morton to the corner and straight passing the rubber behind him for the second Oshawa goal and the game for most of the night. Barriage gave fans some hopes as he raised a close one that Morton saved in fine, but the damage had been done and the "Chevries" had proved the best Oshawa in a well played game, that did not redect on the efforts of the locals, all of whom turned in splendid accounts against a team that has been touted as the best sextet in the Dominion and under the tuition of a proven coach, Jim Gallagher. Local fans were well pleased and satisfied with the result of the game.

TORONTO LEAFS CAN BE THIRD

If Defeated by Detroit And Canadiens and Americs

(By the Canadian Press)

It would be rather shocking to see Toronto Maple Leafs, the 1932 Stanley Cup winners, Canadian National Hockey League's Canadian Division cellar tut the distinct possibility existed that they will be there before Monday.

Leafs have dropped to only a theoretical last place in the week-end battling that found Montreal Maroons that sends shudders along the spines of loyal Toronto fans who had come to think their Leafs invincible.

Leading Charlie Conacher's scoring threat, Conny Smythe's team to-night meet Detroit Red Wings in the Motor City and must win from the team they haven't been able to down in the three other games this season.

If they don't and Montreal Canadiens and "—" York Americans win their sympathetic tonight and Monday the title will be tied with Montreal Maroons out ahead by two points. It would be the second possible thing to a four way tie in the division.

Canadiens meet Maroons in Montreal tonight and Americans take on the Montreal Forum here tomorrow evening. New York Rangers play at Chicago in the fourth game of the week-end program the first for the home team that hasn't found two teams to play games on successive nights.

Leafs main hope for victory lies in the goal-getting ability of Bill Thoms, Conacher and Buzz Boll who have taken over the team's scoring burden since Harvey Jackson injured and Harvey Jackson entered a prolonged slump.

Jackson will work tonight with Joe Primeau and Bookie Pratt. Charlie Conacher is back with Red Wing president checkers more determined than he has previously it is likely Joll and Thoms will lead the scoring glory coming the Leafs' way.

"PAPERMEN" WIN FROM HORNETS

Second Game of Trenton Loop Postponed Due to Blocked Roads

Trenton, Jan. 25.—(Special)—In the first game of the Trenton and District Hockey League game played here at the arena last night, Hinde and Dandie swamped the lowly Cramer's Hornets by the score of 9 to 1. Had not Ben Bowan in the Hornets' goal been on his toes in the first period the Papermen's forward would have run a lot more goals that they did, as was only one goal was scored by them. The first came after Hinde streaked down the left boards to 1st one go from outside the defence to fool Bowan completely. Speare of the Hornets was the only player of his team that gave Hendburg in Hinde and Dandie nets any trouble. In the second game, Hinde and Dandie scored four. The first one by W. O'Malley after going through the Hornets' team. Then Mallis to score Hinde and Dandie's third and fourth. Hinde scored the fourth out of a scramble. At the same time Arthur Mallis made a slipped a pass over to Hood to score their fifth. The third period showed that the Papermen were even though it was all Hinde and Dandie's goals. Hinde was given right back up the ice and scored the pass-interference by Bowan. Bill Sloan of the Hornets scored Hinde and Dandie's fourth goal. They went to clear the puck to the corner, Final score Hinde and Dandie—6; Cramer's Hornets—1. Line-up:—Hinde and Dandie — Goal —A. Hendburg; defence, O. Bowan and W. O'Malley, Wings—D. ERIC PETTINGER UP WITH LEADERS

Scores Two Goals and Assist as London Defeats Pittsburg

London, Jan. 26 (CP)—Big Eric Pettinger who saw his younger brother, Gordon, graduate to the National hockey through his sensational scoring leadership in the International Hockey League, was a powerful and strong contender for the position of Canadian scoring champion.

The former Regina was so instrumental in the two goals and game Norm Locking the game that brought London Tecumseh a 4-3 victory over Pittsburg Yellow Jackets last night that some experts visioned Pettinger as a threat to even the best the western veteran. Like Gordon, who jumped from the Detroit Olympics to the Montreal Maroons in the new year, Eric has had several trials under the big guns.

His three points last night gave him a total of 22, eight points back of Marcel Dumas, Pittsburg Yellow Sound product who this week was transferred to the Montreal Maple Leafs. Pettinger tied Dumas for the third period to put the Tecs in the lead that they two minutes later and after Scotty Cowley had registered a goal in the fight with an unassisted equalizing drive. Pettinger then played the play to add away the decision.

The win placed the Tecs in undisputed possession of second place in the eastern section, moving away from Pittsburg and Windsor and kept set hopes of Pittsburgh pulling even with Windsor Bulldogs for third place in the western group.

1700 ITALIANS REPORTED KILLED

Addis Ababa, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Ethiopian authorities claimed today that 1,700 Italians had been killed in the northern front battle southwest of Makale. They said "800 others, many of the Asaitian detachment, had surrendered."

Ethiopian headquarters ran directly counter to an Italian official announcement which said the battle, in the Southern Tembien mountain region near Makale, had resulted in an "complete Italian victory".

DAY BY DAY

They came, they conquered, but they failed to impress. We refer to Coach Bill Hancock's Oshawa "Cherries," who downed the locals 2 to nil last evening. True enough the Hancockites were speedsters on the ice, they displayed a team, that had had the coaching of a man, who knew his hockey, their combination play proved that, but the lads off to the locals, they got the powerful Oshawa crowd from rolling up a massive score, as would be expected for a team, that had been in competition in senior company since away last fall. The Oshawa "Chevries" may have won a hockey game last night, but the Belleville "Reds" won a moral victory in subduing the classy Motor City crew as they did. True enough the "Cherries" displayed a masterful passing game and their front lines carried a little too much speed for our boys, but after all was said and done, the Belleville players found themselves with something or other in squashing the score as they did. It must be remembered that the locals practically held the Oshawa aggregation scoreless in low last night, which is something in itself.

Last night's game is history just as history just we hope the locals learned a lesson from the visitors' style of play. It must be admitted, as it is by the "Redmen" themselves that the style is too fast aired. What we noticed however was the lack of power for the attack of the visitors. When the puck-carrier saw, that his wings were covered he had the habit of trying to shoot the puck to the locals' net, thereby giving the locals the advantage of their secondary speed on the offensive. Another thing that was noticeable when he went down the right boards in the 2nd period, he went right back up the ice and scored the passinterference by Bowan. Bill Sloan of the Hornets scored Hinde and Dandie's fourth goal. They went to clear the puck to the corner, Final score Hinde and Dandie—6; Cramer's Hornets—1. Line-up:—Hinde and Dandie — Goal —A. London, Jan. 26 (CP)—Big Eric Pettinger who saw his younger brother, Gordon, graduate to the National hockey through his sensational scoring leadership in the International Hockey League, was a powerful and strong contender for the position of Canadian scoring champion last night.

The former Regina was so instrumental in the two goals and game Norm Locking the game that brought London Tecumseh a 4-3 victory over Pittsburg Yellow Jackets last night that some experts visioned Pettinger as a threat to even the best the western veteran. Like Gordon, who jumped from the Detroit Olympics to the Montreal Maroons in the new year, Eric has had several trials under the big guns.

His three points last night gave him a total of 22, eight points back of Marcel Dumas, Pittsburg Yellow Sound product who this week was transferred to the Montreal Maple Leafs. Pettinger tied Dumas for the third period to put the Tecs in the lead that they two minutes later and after Scotty Cowley had registered a goal in the fight with an unassisted equalizing drive. Pettinger then played the play to add away the decision.

The win placed the Tecs in undisputed possession of second place in the eastern section, moving away from Pittsburg and Windsor and kept set hopes of Pittsburgh pulling even with Windsor Bulldogs for third place in the western group.

1700 ITALIANS REPORTED KILLED

Addis Ababa, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Ethiopian authorities claimed today that 1,700 Italians had been killed in the northern front battle southwest of Makale. They said "800 others, many of the Asaitian detachment, had surrendered."

Ethiopian headquarters ran directly counter to an Italian official announcement which said the battle, in the Southern Tembien mountain region near Makale, had resulted in an "complete Italian victory".

The Gananoque Canoe Club is preparing a strong team of paddlers to send their four canoeists to the Olympic games next summer. Of the eight paddlers to represent Canada in that Olympic aquatic sport, the Gananoque Club will supply four of the contestants. It is estimated that $1,400.00 will be needed to defray the expenses of the paddlers and that some 80 percent of this amount has already been raised. All associate aquatic bodies are coming to the rescue of the Gananoque paddlers and doubtlessly their objective will be realized long before it is time for them to embark. The Gananoque Canoe Club is one of the most active in the Dominion and a credit to a small town as they are, "Can," incidentally the local canoeists expect to branch out more prolifically next summer and stay a long in the gaits along their own course for district competition.

All National Hockey League games scheduled in Canada for Tuesday night have been postponed out of respect for His late Majesty King George the Fifth, whose funeral will be held Tuesday. All objector dates will also be cancelled it is was announced today.

Last night's senior intermediate O.H.A. hockey fixture between St. Michael's and the R.C.I. in the Soo at Queens grown was cancelled. As a result of the Soo Greyhound squad the Collegians has been withdrawn from further competition in the O.H.A. series. The withdrawal necessary due to failure on the part of some students to attain the high academic standing. As a matter of fact when Coach Wilson of the Collegians entered into the picture it is high time that the boys got down to business and as far as the Collegians are concerned it will be sports. Athletics are quite alright in their sphere and doubtlessly they would attend to them, but primarily schools are for learning and if scholastic standing is not forthcoming the three athletic-minded students will be forced to quit studying, the senior sports will be returned. In the meantime there is no more intermediate O.H.A. hockey in the Soo, while the junior series, the C.H.A. is still in full swing as academics will be allowed to play on the school team in the future.

PENALTY SHOT SHOULD BE A CROWD PLEASER

Distance Could be Shortened to at Least Ten Feet.

MAGNATES LAX

Rigid Enforcement of Interference Rules Would Bring More Tries

Toronto, Jan. 25 (CP)—Agreement is general among hockey's magnates that something should be done to put more life in the game and to give a potential crowd-pleaser the National League hasn't exploited fully.

They are almost equally unanimous it should be a shortening of the distance from the goal-line to the circle from which the penalty marksman shoots—now set at 38 feet. If any change is made the goalkeeper's chances aren't going to be improved.

Brought down from the west last season with a guarantee that in no way would have hockey fans sitting on the edges of their seats Frank Boucher, Rangers' star, has hasn't thrilled as it might.

Boucher's lack of goals is not more to do with that than anyone else. They turned aside so many of them so brilliantly that the fans in the crowds lost all expectation of any player succeeding in driving one into the net.

Three successful shots in thirteen years is the record compiled with one in thirty-nine during 1934-35, have been the only ones registered, and the goalies are beginning to worry about it. Something else to keep them awake nights. That is the rigid enforcement of the interference rules which would nullify attempts will be awarded.

Dick Irvin, coach of the Toronto Maple Leafs, and Red Dutton, player-manager of New York Americans, have had considerable experience with the play out west, agree the distance should be shortened. Sylvio Mantha feels the same way about it. None of the three has ever been a goalkeeper.

Shorten Distance.

Irvin and Dutton think the distance should be 28 rather than 38 feet. Dutton more conservative Mantha would shorten it by 5 feet, so how it works that way and shop the goalie will have a chance.

Irvin also suggests the puck should be placed on the spot where it is stopped by the goalie. This probably would result in a scramble around the net and another chance for the team which suffered by the first penalty shot.

A little practice would do penalty shooters no harm, Frederick Frank Calder thinks. The league head points out some players didn't hit the puck right on the first penalty shot. Some can't get the puck off the ice. Others don't get over at so how can they expect to make a penalty shot be sure.

There is fairly general agreement among most critics of the game that the penalty would improve matters by gaining the fans' approval for the idea. They like to see a player deliberately try make his play. If it is stopped by the goalie. This probably would result in a scramble around the net and another chance for the team which suffered by the first penalty shot.

Rigid Enforcement

Rigid enforcement of the interference rules would be the best way to make the penalty shot a success, they say. Then the crowds would get a chance to see the stars in action.

Dale Plays The Game

BY—

Ann Forester

The man spoke and she answered him, but she had not the slightest idea of what either of them had said. Now he had her by the elbow. He was piloting her up the steps into the dark, stuffy cavern of the building. This was the office of the county clerk—imitation golden oak furniture, amazing depressingly unvarnish.... The dried-up clerk ushered into life and interest with Brant Kendall's first words. Dale was painfully aware that the middle-aged filing clerk had managed to stay at her with drooping jaw. That the flashy young stenographer at the desk by the open window had twisted about and was eyeing her with curiosity.

Brant Kendall, the shabby ne'er-do-well, getting a license to marry the scion'al! Well, did you ever ...!

His shame flushed her Dale even while she told herself that she didn't care. She stared back at them with level brown eyes, taking a fierce delight as she made their gazes drop. She gave a glance at the Brant Kendall as he filled out the license blank. He was expressionless except for the line of his mouth.

It was a play.... a play in which she was acting. For a strange detached moment she seemed to stand outside of herself and see the picture they made. Brant Kendall, thin and brown and hatchet-faced, distinguished in spite of the shabby khaki. Herself, an incongruous figure in that sober office, a slender, yellow-haired girl in a flimsy yellow dress, a girl whose wide brown eyes had looked too long on the seamy side of life....

Dale signed her name to the license with a hand that shook, and learned for the first time that she was marrying Brant Stuart Wheatbee Kendall, formerly of New York.

In a dream she accompanied Kendall to the office of the Justice of the Peace across the hall. A row-ty room, with light-struck from books and dismal steel engravings. A fat, untidy man in a belt, dark suit and a great-stained vest faced them across the desk.

The small eyes of the J. P. like colorless crumbs or glass in his spongy face, went to the girl slowly, and Dale found her nails driving in her palms.

Sick distaste rose in her. What was this crazy thing she was doing?..... Marrying this shabby stuffy room jumped and quivered with her nauseating revulsion. She must run away—she must hide.... Then she found that Brant Kendall was nudging her. She was to stand beside him in front of the desk. The justice had put the license down.... he was fixing....

A queer breathlessness had fallen on the shabby room. The two men who had been lolling at the steps through the hall and asked to act as witnesses, stood in embarrassed silence against the wall. They were gripped by the sense of watching at a drama. That slender girl there in a dress that looked as if it were stained with nothing with such white-faced composure.... how dark and tragic her eyes in her pale face..... her yellow hair made a bright spot in the dingy place.

And the enigma they knew as Brant Kendall.... never had they seen such a look on his face..... a startled widening of the eyes as the first sentence the judge spoke .... a relaxing of his grim mouth .... which made him for the moment into a younger, happier Brant Kendall. Her husband for all she is life.....

Dale's gaze clung desperately to a splash of gravy on the judge's vest. Married..... she was being married..... but it wasn't true. It really that the words of this untidy fat man could mean anything? Why didn't he put his suit cleaned?..... There was no excuse for wearing gravy..... Why were they looking at her so expectantly? Oh.... the were waiting for her to say something. The judge had asked a question.... She spoke.

That was all right. She had said the correct thing. A ring..... The judge was looking for change..... then there was always a ring at a wedding. But she had none. She wavered her only five cents in San Francisco, Phil had asked her to find some money. Oh, Phil.... her heart was breaking.....

Brant Kendall was stepping forward, his face dogged. Mechanically he, it was. His fraternity ring.....

That is was over, as simple as that. She had married. Brant Kendall was speaking to the judge, and his voice held a rasp.

"All right, Pickering—go ahead and get the thing through, and for the love of heaven make it snappy!"

Taking the girl by the elbow, he heard her into the warm dusk of the hall, away from the curious eyes. Dale felt trembling. As they moved toward the entrance of the building she twisted the unfamiliar ring around her finger. A sense of panic had seized her.

Oh, it was a wicked thing they had done—this travesty on marriage! It had seemed a clever stroke of retaliation before, but now she knew it was terrible! Her knees felt weak. She stumbled as they went down the stairs, but when the man reached out to help her she pulled her arm away as though his touch burned her.

His white teeth flashed in the dark pallor of his face. His voice was mocking.

"Well, that's that. Thanks for helping me to put it through. Pickering ought to have the money in a week at the outside. You'll hear from me as soon as it is due."

She shivered violently, though they had reached the front steps, and the hot glare of the afternoon flared at them like a blast from a furnace.

"Here——" She slipped the ring from her finger and held it out to him. "This is yours."

His eyes were hard. He shrugged. "Oh, that you please with it. It's yours. I gave it to you just now in holy wedlock."

"Oh, can't!" Dale said in a low, shamed voice.

For a moment they held the tableau in the dusky doorway. Brant Kendall was white under his desert tan. Somehow Dale knew that he was suffering.

With a swift movement she opened her handbag and dropped the ring within it. Then, resolutely she went down the steps alone and walked rapidly along the street, which danced crazily about her in the glare of sunshine.

CHAPTER II.

THE MAN IN THE DARK

Sandy's curiosity had reached the bursting point when Dale snatched the lunch counter. But the bright-lipped silence of the girl bottled up the little man's questions. For two strained hours Sandy stood the pressure, then in self-defence he left the counter in charge of Dale and started up town to the pool room.

Just outside of the town he saw a man walking slowly along the highway, followed close at heel by the drooping figure of a collie. Recognizing Brant and the faithful Major, Sandy hailed him jovially. Brant Kendall was the other man turned around and the little Scotchman saw at once the expression of dismay. Brant Kendall was in trouble—terrible. The whole outline of his face seemed sharpened by suffering. His eyes were bloodshot and haggard. The man was beating down on his uncovered head and Sandy felt his heart leap in alarm.

"Say Brant—" He groped quickly for words and looked up anxiously at the taller man. "You hadn't ought to be walkin' in this hot sun without a hat. You'll get a stroke, sure."

Brant Kendall shook his head impatiently. "I'm all right Sandy," he said thickly. "Let me alone."

"Aw, now, Brant——" he pleaded Sandy. "You'll make yourself sick. Listen—come on back with me. Le'me take care of you."

For a moment the other stared down at him with bloodshot eyes, as though he had difficulty in seeing him. Then violently he flung off the hand the Waffle Kid had laid on his arm.

"Let me alone, can't you?" he said savagely. "Do you want to drive me mad?"

He turned and strode away through the stunning heat, and at his heels went the panting collie, with head and tail drooping despondently.

Sandy looked after him, his face clouded like an anxious monkey's and he shook his head dismally.

"The darn fool!" Sandy remarked to the desert at large. "Oh, the poor, darn fool!"

When Dale left the lunchroom that evening she turned away from the town and all sight of it into the barren country which surrounded Spit City. Just now she couldn't bear to meet the curious eyes which would meet her on the way back to the hotel. The whole scene had taken on a sad beauty with the dying day. The land swam in mellow light. The grasswood and mesquite were casting long, pale shadows on the hard trodden ground.

On a flat topped boulder the girl sat down and taking off her hat pushed her hair back from her hot face. There was balm in being alone like this, in being able to relax and know that no curious eyes were trying to force through her guard. Sick realization was dawning on her. Her wedding day..... her to meet the curious eyes which would meet her on the way back to the hotel. The whole scene had taken on a sad beauty with the dying day. The land swam in mellow light. The grasswood and mesquite were casting long, pale shadows on the hard trodden ground.

ROYAL PREROGATIVES ARE CONSIDERED

OTTAWA, Jan. 25.—(CP)—While a king lay dead in England and a new monarch sat on the throne of the British Empire, the Supreme Court yesterday considered royal prerogatives and their exient in Canada.

N. W. Rowell, of Toronto, Dominion counsel in the constitutional appeal, introduced the subject yesterday in arguing three Dominion laws based on Geneva Labor conventions were valid. He traced the royal prerogative from days when the king was absolute until yesterday his discretionary powers have almost disappeared.

In Canada, said Mr. Rowell, the king's prerogative, for instance the pardoning of criminals, is exercised by cabinet.

Agricultural Notes

SOME NOTES ON GEESE RAISING

The essentials to success in goose raising, according to the Dominion Poultry Husbandman, are good open range and an abundance of inexpensive grain or clover. The geese should start to lay about the middle of March, and the eggs should be set as soon as possible. It is advisable to sprinkle the eggs with lukewarm water once daily when set under the mother geese on the day hens, and twice daily when set in an incubator. Goslings require warmth after hatching and should be left under the geese in the incubator for about two days.

When the goslings are ready for feeding, place a good start mash in a brooder in order that they may pull the tender shoots. After the first few days they should be fed bread crumbs moistened with milk. When they are about one week old give them a moist mash composed of equal parts of bran and middlings, oatmeal, bran and shorts, feeding three or four times a day for about two weeks.

Give the goslings a good start, then turn them out on good pasture, and discontinue the feeding of mash. Geese should be housed in cool cold rains, confined at night until the weather gets warm, and always have a plenty of shade and fresh water.

BEES and WASPS

(Experimental Farms Note)

When watching wasp or bee drive home its weapon, one gets the impression that it is the sting of a fiendish glee. Such an impression, however, is not correct. The bees rarely, if ever, seldom attack except upon provocation of some kind, but unfortunately it is not always the guilty party who suffers. Bees and wasps are very similar in habits. In each there are many species in each group, some of which live together in colonies, others which lead a solitary life. The honeybee is the best of the social bees; its colonies often consist of seventy-five thousand to one hundred thousand individuals, each of which are subordinate to the welfare of the whole. The formation of a colony of honeybees is continuous from year to year. The bumble bee is another type of the social bee, but its colonies contain fewer individuals than the honeybee and are not continuous, since it is only the queen bumble bee that lives the winter, and each queen starts a new colony in the spring. In addition to the social bees there are numerous species of solitary bees that make their nests in many different places, but never form colonies, although a few of these may congregate and build their nests in one locality. A considerable number of species of the cutter that take semi-circles from the leaves of plants, whether from bushes. These pieces of leaves are used for nest building.

The Family of Wasps

There are also social and solitary wasps, the social wasps forming colonies, and some build their nests either in a suitable cavity in the ground or in hollow logs or walls, while others build in the open, suspending their nests from the tree branches or trees or the eaves of buildings. The wasp colonies break up in the autumn and new ones start each spring. The solitary wasps build in the ground or in some suitable cavity elsewhere. One common type is the mud daubers who make its nest of mud, attaching it to the rafters of buildings or some other convenient place. Wasps and hornets as synonymous with bees, but the latter is usually applied to those wasps which build their nests in the open. Both bees and wasps are beneficial insects. Many bees of course are well known, but hornets and solitary bees are useful for pollinating those plants, the seeds of which are useful in that they prey on other insects that are injurious. Many benefits derived from these insects far outweigh the occasional sting or predatory path that may be inflicted by them.

Promising Year for Export of Poultry

"Possibly Canada has never enjoyed a more promising outlook from an export way for any agricultural product than it does at present for Canadian poultry, particularly frozen poultry," stated the Dominion Department of Agriculture. "There is, as a matter of fact, very little competition in the way of finished, quality poultry, such as Canada should be able to supply.

"Britain herself is making very little effort in this direction, because of the foreign complex Poland and Hungary are the foremost competitors at present. Poultry from Canada and the other Dominions enters the British Isles duty free, while that from other countries has to bear a tariff of five pence or six cents a pound. There is no

EXERCISING THE BREEDING EWES

(Experimental Farms Note)

The matter of exercising the ewes flock should not be considered negligible. If strong lambs are to be had, pregnant ewes should have exercise. Fun at all times. If necessary, spread hay on the snow so as to force them to move. This will help to keep them well and healthy. Avoid crowded quarters. Not only are they unsanitary, but they are the cause of many abortions.

Spring Seed Supply Should be Prepared

Now is the time for farmers to take stock of their spring seed requirements, states the Dominion Seed Branch. Those who have sufficient seed of their own should dispose of them as completely as possible, making sure that they are getting the varieties recommended for the part of the country. Farmers who have their own seed should have it properly cleaned and graded before the spring rush.

Assists Monarch From Horse as Crowd Surges in

Cheering thousands jammed the streets in front of the grandstand Thursday to see the royal party mounted and pushed directly ahead. It was Veterans' Day at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, in 1919. In the picture a personal favor is made to this country by the then Prince of Wales, now governing monarch of the British Empire.

Through the seething mass of humanity, the little darkie is apparently impressed with the ovation he was receiving from the inhabitants of a great province and turns his head out en masse to do personal honor to the prince. Unaware of the danger, the prince, rode a slight figure on a good steed, stiffly on his horse.

Suddenly, fortunately for the prince, the crowd, as if with one thought in mind, surged forward. The Prince was completely hemmed in, the crowd being powerless to trample those directly in front.

With one motion the Prince seized Lieutenant Colonel Ross, his nearest spectator who had been standing next to him, and he shot quickly from the saddle, was assisted to the ground, and then, with equestrian classical form, he leaped back through the crowd, made his way to the grandstand where he had been expected to make personal presentation of awards of war medals to returned war veterans.

Today Mr. C. L. Kellett, late of Toronto, is a member of the Royal Life Saving Society of Canada. Mr. Kellett was the Canadian National Railways life guard, called how he had assisted the prince to safely alight from the ground that day from the saddle. Mr. Kellett was standing near the prince when the Prince leaned forward, and he was dismounted.

"He was so close that my knees actually brushed as I helped him down," he said, "and for a moment it appeared visibly shaken by the rough handling. But he quickly regained his turned and walked hurriedly off, while the reporters came and I had to tell them how the incident occurred," stated Mr. Kellett when interviewed at his office in the North Station today.

Mr. Kellett, of Toronto, Mr. Kellett has been employed here for the past five years.

With the Boy Scouts

I promise that I will do my best to do my duty to God and the King Queen Frankie.

The Scouts of the British Empire mourn the death of His Gracious Majesty King George V, not only as their Ruler to whom they had promised loyalty, but as their Patron and consistent supporter.

His late Majesty, King George V, was Patron of The Boy Scouts Association, and his sympathy and practical interest in the Movement was a constant cause of encouragement and inspiration to all its devotees. It is interesting to recall that on Obtaining Day, June 22nd, 1911, a special place on Constitution Hill was reserved by Lord Kitchener on the King's instruction for a party of Boy Scouts. This included a Canadian contingent, together with 100 picked English Scouts, an the whole in charge of the Chief Scout himself, who led the party in cheering their newly crowned Majesties."

The first direct contact on record between the King and Scouting was at Aldershot on July 14th, 1910, when he reviewed 2,000 Scouts. The Windsor Rally took place on July 9th of the following year when, as one paper records: "The day was a triumph for Kingship and Scoutcraft" and "a triumph for the Chief Scout." Two weeks later the Rally reviewed 2,250 Scouts in Edinburgh, when again he expressed himself "both verbally and in writing in his unqualified approval." In the New Year's Honours list of 1911 the Chief Scout was created a Baronet, in recognition of his great work, and Lord Rowallan has since been conferred by His Majesty on the Chief and upon other prominent workers in our Movement.

It would be hard to estimate the value of the practical encouragement of our Game shown throughout our history by the late King, and because of this we especially mourn his passing.

MOURNING

Mourning, when worn by members of the Association in uniform should take the form of a two-inch crepe band around the left arm above the elbow. It is requested that all Scouters and all Rover Scouts wear this during the period of mourning (i.e. until July 20th) or until further notice. Wearing of mourning by Cubs and Scouts is optional. It is requested that special Scout entertainments, banquets, parties, etc. be postponed until after the funeral, but regular meetings should be held with suitable observances included in their programme.

EDWARD VIII A SCOUT

Our new King, Edward VIII, is no stranger to our Movement. The Chief Scout's book "Scouting for Boys" was with their permission dedicated to him and to his royal brother, the Duke of York—both of them boys of Scout age at the time. We have invested the position of Chief Scout for Wales and on numerous occasions, in all parts of the world, he has been found to be on his Scout uniform or in other ways personally himself with Scouts and Scouting. Each of us, therefore, will be particularly happy to reaffirm to Edward I promise that I will do my best to do my duty to God and the King."

There are many reasons why Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are the most satisfactory means of arousing the kidneys and the action of the liver, kidneys and bowels.

1. They act promptly.
2. They do not lose their effect on the system and you do not have to increase the dose.
3. They are marked by half a century of outstanding success.
4. They stir up the torpid liver to properly perform its functions of eliminating poisonous waste matter from the system.
5. They encourage the kidneys in their arduous work of filtering the blood.
6. They relieve constipation and hasten the movement of the food mass through the body.

With this in mind you can readily understand why Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills prevent as well as relieve a multitude of ills, and why they find a place in the great majority of homes as the family regulator.

The timely appearance of an informal biography of H. M. Edward VIII will be welcomed by library borrowers. Frazier Hunt, neighbor of the former Prince of Wales on his ranch in Alberta, has written an entertaining narrative in his book "The Reckless Prince". Of him he has predicted "Edward, Prince of Wales, as Edward VIII may easily wield even greater influence than did his illustrious grandfather, Edward VII. It is not at all impossible that he may regain some of the lost powers of Kingship."

At present, the Library has arranged an interesting display of books and periodicals pertaining to the Royal Family.

An omnibus volume containing some of the compiler's favourite literature is presented in "The Woollcott Reader". Among the selections, seven of which were originally published as separate books, is a biography, a play, four shorts, two long stories and one short story. Alexander Woollcott has called his book a collection of "the minor masterpieces from the literary cellar of my own day which has given me the deepest and the most abiding satisfaction." The volume includes all of M. Barrie's life of his mother "Margaret Ogilvy" which has always proud and pleased to discover herself, unconsciously disguised, as the heroine of one of Barrie's short stories". "The Dolly Dialogues" by Anthony Hope is a piece of writing which Woollcott predicts will outlive his other books "because it is written in between". Among other works included are Lytton Strachey's "Cardinal Manning", a short story by Sally (H. H. Munro) whom Christopher Morley has said "There is no greater compliment to be paid than to say that he is more than to hand him Saki without comment". Works by Richard Hughes, Davis and Evelyn Waugh are also included.

Hans Zinsser in his book "Rats, Lice and History" set out to write the biography of typhus fever, he discovered, however, that it was necessary to write some twelve preliminary biographies, so that his eventual biography consists of but four chapters dealing with persons upon which Dr. Zinsser wanders are those of science, art, literature, pacification. On this last subject he has some of the stock arguments since from his point of view "the world is not square drums, uniform and glory but dirt and disease". His commercial on Gertrude Stein, James Joyce, T. S. Eliot, Maurois and Lytton Strachey are both vivid and interesting. The book abounds with humanitarianism and humour.

A traveller acquainted with far away places and strange peoples explores an uncharted land within himself in his book "Asylum" by Norman Seabrook, whose travel books "Jungle Days", "Adventure in Arabia" and "Magic Island" won for him a place as a writer of vivid and engrossing narrative. Mr. Seabrook's book both human and strange. In order to cure himself of a long-standing case of alcoholism he had himself committed to a "home" or private hospital. "Asylum" is the story of his stay there, of the friends he made among inmates and staff of the institution. "Its tempo, atmosphere, and daily rituals, are described with a vividness and the usual preconceived wrong notions of what goes on in such places—and the gradual return to the novitiate I once undertook in a Whitby asylum for inebriates". The book previously appeared in serial form in the Atlantic Monthly.

Although we talk glibly about nerves, not many of us, unless we have made a special study of the subject, know much about what nerves actually look like or how they function.

Nerves travel to every organ, to every tiniest part of the body. They are the recorders of impulses from the outside world, and they are the messengers of impulses that we are in contact with external things and which respond to internal things and also transmit nerve impulses from one place to another. Nerves are co-ordinators and regulators of the multitudinous and complicated activities of vegetal as well as mental systems.

Scientists do not as yet know what a nerve impulse is, or how it starts. But that it behaves like an electric current is known and accepted beyond question.

Nerves, technically called neurons, consists of a nerve cell in which is a central portion, called the nucleus, and other processes. From the nerve cell runs a nerve fibre — the axone — and also fine and there is a branching of nerve endings — the terminal arborization.

Furthermore, although these nerves enclose axis-cylinder — but do not touch — with the sole exception of the brain cells, which are larger connections with other nerves by means of branches from the cell itself or its main fibre. These are the dentrites and collaterals.

In other words, the nerve cell, with all its branches, is a wonderful structure which varies in shape and size, but which, essentially, is patterned after the typical form described.

Nerve impulses travel at great speed — as fast as a hundred miles per hour, but the rate of 90 feet per second is more common rate per second.

The "nerve" is the name given to the place where the ends of one nerve interlock with those of another. The energy passes across this synapse.

Now, an interesting theory has been formulated about synapse junctions. It is based on the fact that in a state of sleep, synapses open up, as it were, thus creating resistance through which nerve impulses cannot gap. The result is that nerves no longer more or less disconnected, have a chance to revitalize themselves, thus accounting for the feeling of well being of being refreshed after rest or sleep. In any case, nerves are not to be trifled with, even if they are strong and resilive. Knowing something about the way they operate often creates respect for them.

From a knowledge of nervous system never ceases, even during sleep, but of course being one of being stimulated and kept alive, one might say, by this ceaseless activity.

We even think when we sleep thinking, of course being one of the manifold activities of nerves, as is proved by the fact that we dream. Incidentally, everybody is supposed to dream at night even though he does not remember he does so.

Never be careless about those nerves of yours, for once they become disordered it is no easy matter to put them right again.

KINGS, COMMONERS GATHER AT ROYAL BIER

Westminster Hall Doors Close for Some Hours And Reopen at 7.10 a.m.

Causes Consternation in Long Queues Drawn Up

251,116 PASS SUNDAY

King Edward VIII to Wear Naval Uniform in Funeral Procession

London, Jan. 27.—(CP-AP)—Crowd Britain's national nightmare past the bier of King George V commenced at the last day of the lying-in-state in Westminster Hall today after early morning scenes in which mourners protested an early closing of the chamber doors. More than 100 persons were hospitalized by the catafalque.

The delegation of mourners marched to the 10 Downing Street to object because the entrance was closed since 7 a.m. Others arriving after had been announced before being reopened with the gates standing open wide.

The protesting marchers, led by a woman, went to Downing to query Prime Minister Baldwin but Scotland Yard complained later the hall was closed to allow "cleaners to perform their duties."

Return to Palace

The new King Edward VIII's ministers, gathered in Buckingham Palace after spending the weekend at his Fort Belvedere country home of the late Sovereign, arrived at Dover aboard a British destroyer and came to London by special train.

Authorities estimated at noon today more than 251,116 persons had filed through Westminster Hall since King George's body was moved to begin last Friday.

Police said the crowds were much larger than those for the lying-in-state of Edward VII, George's father, who died in 1910.

Although announced to remain open for most of the night, the doors were shut at 3:40 a.m. (10:40 p.m., Sunday, E.S.T.) causing consternation in long queues drawn up for the last day of the lying-in-state.

London police stood shoulder-to-shoulder across the entrance and maintained silence, declining to answer excited questions from the crowd.

One woman, who had come from the country to pay last respects to her late sovereign, protested angrily and the cry of consternation into Downing street in an attempt to see Prime Minister Baldwin.

The way to No. 10 Downing Street, headquarters of the government, was blocked by police.

A Downing Street official said the order for closing the doors came through the office of works but the government disclaimed responsibility for immediate explanation.

A previous announcement had said the hall would be open until 6 a.m., (1 a.m. E.S.T.) and would reopen at 8 a.m. (3 a.m. E.S.T.) today.

Scores of persons continued to arrive after the doors were shut until at last the workers again swung open at 7:10 a.m.

Subways Run Through Night.

London's subways ran throughout the night to enable the crowds in the city to carry the thousands who visited the catafalque.

The queue, at one time stretching for four miles and lining both sides of the Thames near the Lambeth bridge, was said by authorities to be the greatest ever known. A total of 251,116 persons viewed the bier on Sunday.

Meanwhile officials worked out to the most minute details the plans for the homegoing funeral.

Edward VIII, new king-emperor of the British commonwealth of nations, spent the week-end at his Fort Belvedere country home, but found little rest from the press of state business he caught up after the death last Monday of his father.

The first of young monarch arranged to return to London later today to receive the condolences of Prime Minister Baldwin and other government representatives and Fifty Commoners.

Tonight he will give a private dinner at Buckingham Palace for Royal visitors and heads of foreign delegations to the funeral, expected to be swelled by the arrival of the King of Romania, Belgium and Denmark, the President of France and the Crown Prince of Italy.

Students March on Cairo to Protest Negotiations

Cairo, Jan. 27 (AP)—A widespread action of resentment against the British-Egyptian treaty negotiations developed into a clash today between demonstrators and police as Damanhour in which five students were wounded.

One student was reported to have been killed and 20 others injured, unverified immediately.

The Damanhour clash arose as a heavy force of Egyptian cavalry dashed to nearby Giza while 1,200 students marched on Cairo in connection with the strike.

The bridges between Giza and Cairo were opened in an attempt to block the flow of students into the city.

One group of students at Dulak made a bonfire of the furniture of the School of Applied Arts.

Fired On Rioters.

Cairo police were reported to have fired on rioters in the streets of Damanhour, wounding an undetermined number.

The student strike came just as a deadlock threatened proposed British-Egyptian treaty negotiations.

Nehas Pasha, leader of the Wafd Nationalist party, campaigning for greater freedom, had agreed to formation of a neutral cabinet to replace the present government of Premier Tewfik Nessim Pasha and to immediate opening of negotiations with Britain.

Nahas dealt a crushing blow to Premier Nessim's Ministers must have a majority representation in a new cabinet before the party can proceed to negotiate with the British—a declaration opposed by other Egyptian parties.

Egyptian, nominally independent North African kingdom and former protectorate of Britain, recently received British support for a return to self-government under its former constitution, but Britain maintained control of foreign affairs and right to military occupation.

Churches Pay Tribute To Life of Late Monarch

Religious And Family Life of King George Fifth Extolled as Example—New Conception of Kingship His Gift to World

United in a great sorrow the churches of the Empire and throughout the Empire in music which touched the heart of millions, in sermons which inspired the souls of subjects, and in prayers the late King George the Fifth was held on the 22nd King, and as an example as a man, not only for his royal office but for the devotion to the duties pertaining to the regal position he was destined to fill, for the true religion of the kingship, for the great part he has played in the establishment, we pray for days full of care and anxiety, for his tender solicitude for the people, and for his influence upon the rulers of the earth, but also for those personal qualities which made him revered at home and beloved and honored abroad, for his simple faith in God and his happy marriage, his highly religious patterns, his devotion to fatherhood, we held as an example to the world of men and women.

In the churches of Belleville on Sunday there was the dominant note of sadness, the sense of loss and what his life has meant to mankind. The prevailing air of grief was expressed in the organ music of the masters which grip the heart-chords, as Chopin's Funeral March in B flat minor, Mendelssohn's Funeral March, and the Chopin Funeral March. Psalms and allars were draped in mourning colors of royal purple and black, portraits of the late King were set up in the decorations in some churches. Congregations were large.

Tabernacle United.

At the Tabernacle United Church on Sunday morning, the service consisted of with two minutes of silence, the congregation standing with bowed heads. Rev. R. B. Naylor spoke with impressiveness regarding the life and work of the King. "Today," he said, "we gather beneath the shadow of a great loss in the passing of our late Sovereign Lord and King George V. Earlier Sovereigns of Britain have had their names inscribed indelibly into the brief hurried last quarter of a century, have passed into the realm of immortality. The greatest and greatest event of all was the war, that world-calamity which we pray may never be repeated. Through all the King's strength inspired his people in the trials which tested their faith and commonality. Nor was that tremendous series of events the sole or first purpose in his life. When he came to the throne there was confusion in the relations between the two ancient Houses of Parliament. The end of the war did not bring peace to mankind. The Empire suffered with the rest of the world from the spirit of grief was testing to which civilization has ever been subjected. Through all these years the King enjoyed more and more the respect, admiration and love of his people. His steadfastness and dignity made a perpetual appeal to the sentiments of the British Commonwealth of Nations world in the end, overcome the difficulties in a way more permanent more than that. Death Voted for Pair In Poison Slaying

Mineola, N.Y., Jan. 26.—(AP)—A jury of twelve men voted death for Mary Frances Creighton and Everett O. Applegate for the poison slaying today of Applegate's absent wife, Ida.

Applegate, 36, who admitting intimacies with Mrs. Creighton's 15-year-old daughter, Jean, but denying any part in the death of his wife, smiled, when he heard the verdict.

Mrs. Creighton, 32, who testified she administered the poison for Mrs. Applegate, sat with bowed head, pale but calm.

The jury contended Applegate's $68-pound wife was poisoned after she discovered her husband's relations with Mrs. Creighton and her daughter in the "doghouse" home shared by the two families.

AMERICAN FALLS DRY FOR 3rd DAY

Large Crowds Visit Scene to View The Unusual Spectacle

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Jan. 27 (AP) For the first time in the memory of man, the thundering falls of the American Falls were stilled for the third consecutive day today.

With a forecast for continued cold and more snow, the falls may be dry for days, a mere trickle in the channel above the American falls and the full flood waters to a mere trickle. The Canadian falls is gushing all the water.

The ice jam in the upper river held no immediate danger to property owners, police said.

Sorrowing Queen Remembers Others

London, Jan. 27 (CP)—Despite her own grief at the death of her royal husband, Queen Mary today remembered the grief of others and sent a telegram of condolence to the husband of Dame Clara Butt, famed concert contralto who died last week.

Dame Clara was buried today in the churchyard of North Stoke, a little village of Oxfordshire where she had lived in retirement.

Queen Mary's message to R. Kennerly Rumford, husband of the late singer, said: "Please accept my sincere sympathy in your great loss." It was signed "Mary." Dame Clara had often sung at the royal residence by the Queen's command.

ELDERLY COUPLE STRUCK BY CAR

Mr. and Mrs. Denis O'Reilly, Brighton Township, in Local Hospital

Trenton, Jan. 27 (Special)—Mr. and Mrs. Denis O'Reilly, elderly couple of Brighton township, were injured while walking on the highway two and one-half miles west of Trenton this morning when a car driven by Richard White, merchant of Trenton. The victims were rushed to the Bowerman hospital by McNair's ambulance of Trenton, after they had been admitted at the scene of the accident by Dr. Parker Hall of Brighton. Dr. O. H. Stobbs attended Dan Hall on their admittance to the hospital.

Mrs. O'Reilly sustained a fractured leg and hip, while Mr. O'Reilly suffered from multiple bruises and lacerations and internal injuries are feared. The couple are in a serious condition due to their advanced age, it was learned today.

The accident occurred shortly after Coming Constable Frank Atkinson and Trenton Officer Fred Rinchet of Brighton had left the charges have been laid against the driver. It is understood that White was proceeding easterly, being accompanied by Clifford Bowers of Peck and the driver stated to the police he did not see the couple due to the fact that the sun was behind him at about by a high wind, causing drifts and bad driving. Every possible aid was given the couple by Provincial Officer Rinchet and every assistance given in determining the cause of the accident. Mr. and Mrs. O'Reilly have been visiting friends and were returning home when the accident occurred. The hospital reports today that the condition of the injured couple was fair.

KING PROCLAIMED IN MANX TONGUE

London, Jan. 27 (CP)—Following a traditional ceremony dating from mediaeval times, Edward VIII, eldest son of King George V, was proclaimed King of the Isle of Man today.

The freeholders of that tiny island in the Irish sea assembled on Tynewald Hill, St. John's, after Mass in St. John's Chapel early today. Clad in their ancient robes they then marched up the hill. The coroners of the island, the members of the 17 Manx parishes, the clergy in their consecration robes, the mace bearer and representatives of the House of Keys, the Manx Parliament, were all present.

At the hilltop the ancient rite of reading the new king's name was decided over by the Bishop of Sodor and Man, attended by his sword-bearer, the Lieutenant-Governor and Lieutenant-Governor and the Attorney-General, represented by P. M. Le Mothe.

In ringing tones Sir Montagne then read the proclamation by which the House of Keys accepted the British Sovereign as their overlord. Once more the trumpets were sounded and the proclamation became born into cheers for Edward VIII in their ancient Celtic tongue.

The proclamation was repeated back to an age when Manxmen lived under Viking and Scandinavian monarchs of their own. Seized as a feudal principality by the Plantagenets in the 14th century, the Isle of Man remained in the possession of their descendants, the Earls of Derby, until it was purchased for the British Crown in the last century.

FORMER KAISER IS 77 YEARS OLD

Postpones Observance of Birthday on Account of King's Funeral

Doorn, Holland, Netherlands, Jan. 27 (AP)—Wilhelm of Hohenzollern, former Kaiser of Germany, became 77 years old today in his customary retreat and sojourning first health.

The observance of his birthday anniversary was postponed until Friday in respect to the late King George. King George, who will be buried tomorrow at Windsor.

Nothing has interested the former Kaiser more during his exile, his year, informed sources said, than the decision of the nation he ruled for 30 years to take the great step once more.

His daily routine goes on unInterrupted. He rises early, proceeds to his daily exercise, usually chopping wood, walks in a nearby park and then turns to his scientific studies.

News of Wilhelm's activities, however, grows more limited yearly and it remains for Princess Hermine to interest the residents of Doorn. More than once she has organized and plotted fairs for the benefit of the town.

There are still those, she has written, willing to buy a piece of wood chopped by the hands which once held a sceptre.

Halifax will begin the cannonade and preparations have been completed.

The ancient Citadel Hill, built almost two centuries ago as "Warden of the honor of the north," the permanent forces will parade, in order to "present arms" will ring out and then the command "Troop" will then be ordered to "rest arms" until the remaining 69 guns have been fired.

At 11 o'clock Tuesday the non-permanent forces and war veterans will parade in the armouries for a memorial service to the late King.

BRAMPTON HOME SWEPT BY FIRE 2 BURN TO DEATH

UNKNOWN ORIGIN

Milkman Carried One to Safety After Being Severely Cut

Brampton, Ont., Jan. 27 (CP)—Mrs. George Broddy and Mrs. R. H. Travis were burned to death here early today when fire of unknown origin swept the Broddy home.

The fire department of Brampton, about 30 miles northwest of Toronto, was unable to save the home or body of Mrs. Broddy from the resulting blaze.

George Broddy and Mrs. Emma Brewster were rescued by George Claridge, milkman. Claridge heard screams coming from the house. Together with the occupants he battered open the front door.

They found Broddy unconscious in the hallway at the foot of the stairs. They carried Broddy to safety while another man, James Brewster, ran to give the alarm.

When the two men returned sheets of flames were pouring from the building. Claridge mounted a ladder to the bedroom window and found Mrs. Brewster unconscious, overcome by smoke. Claridge then carried her down the ladder to safety, despite a badly cut leg, received when he kicked in the window.

Firemen found the body of Mrs. Travis, widow of Rev. Thomas Travis, in bed. Cause of the upstairs fire of the home. She was badly burned.

Both Mrs. Brewster and Broddy were taken to the hospital. Broddy's burns and later removed to Peel Memorial hospital for treatment. Mrs. Broddy's body was believed to be still in the cellar of the home where it fell through the floor when it burned it because of the flames.

TWO DAYS MORE OF COLD WEATHER

Cold Wave Shows Signs of Moderating in Some Areas

By the Canadian Press

A cold wave that struck hardest at Manitoba today held sway from the Atlantic seaboard to the Canadian Rockies.

Winnipeg, Man., and Saskatoon tingled in a temperature of 36 degrees below zero and minus signs were marked up on thermometers all across the country.

White River, Ont., was a good deal warmer than usual but even there it was eight degrees under zero.

Haileybury, Ont., came forward with a reading of 10 below zero and London, Ont., had it six below.

Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal were all two below zero and Moncton, N.B., was two degrees down.

The weatherman held little hope of early relief. At Toronto the Dominion - Meteorological Service forecast "conditions cold for two more days at least."

St. Thomas, Ont., reported a week end snowfall that brought with it the threat of further drifting on the roads. A temperature was seven below there this morning.

WEATHER

Toronto, Jan. 27 (CP)—Synopsis: Pressure is relatively low from Manitoba to Ontario and off the Middle Atlantic Coast, but continues high over the greater portion of the continent. WALTER HANDLEY IS NEW MASTER

Former Belleville Boy Heads Masonic Lodge in Toronto

Walter H. Handley was installed on January 24 as Worshipful Master of Prince of Wales Lodge No. 630 A.F. and A.M. Toronto West Central. The lodge is a charter member of the Lodge which is in a flourishing condition, numerically and financially. At the installation ceremonies there was a large attendance of members of the Masons of the four Toronto Technical Schools and also from the Toronto Club of Printing House Craftsmen. Mr. Handley, who is printing instructor in the Central Technical School, Toronto, which position he has ably filled for many years, is an old Belleville boy, having learned his art printing here in this city. Miss Handley of the teaching staff of the Oakwood School for girls, is a sister and numerous friends will congratulate "Walter" as he is familiarly known, on his Masonic advancement. Among the felicitous communications received during the evening was one from E. T. Cherry, of Belleville, a former employer, who paid high tribute to the character and conduct of the new Master of Prince of Wales Lodge.

POLICE COURT

Samuel Roy Chambers, alias Ron Garrett, the gay Lothario home address as Hamilton, was arraigned before Magistrate R. J. Butler, K. C., this morning on a charge of theft. He was asked for his case was further enlarged one week.

"There, charges of theft against this young man pending until we are heard from next week," stated Crown Attorney H. C. Hagerty, K.C., and the request was granted. Arrested under the name of Ross Garrett, Chambers was taken into custody late last week following numerous complaints regarding the theft of jewellery from residences on the West Hill. A quantity of the loot, which the police claim was taken in Chambers' hotel room, has already been identified by various citizens, but a number of gold watches, rings and other jewellery is still in the possession of the authorities and awaits a rightful owner.

A Frankford youth donated ten dollars and costs, to the city's coffers after pleading guilty to a charge of speeding. The young man was arrested after a disturbance has been reported in a local restaurant.

The dirty, against motor vehicles operating in the city streets in defect after sundown is continuing locally. Today two motorists paid fines for driving their vehicles; after sundown, and not displaying the proper lights.

POLICE BLOTTER

Local citizens today complained to police regarding the relative large transports parking on local streets over the week end. These large transport's are becoming a menace, stated one irritated citizen today, "unless a practice will be discontinued as soon as the proposed one hour parking law goes into effect", assured a city official, who was present in the police station at the time of the complaint.

Cold north winds and snow kept the farmer at residence at a low ebb in Belleville over the weekend, only eleven weary travellers signing the transient register over the week end, five on Saturday night and six on the night of the Sabbath. One lone icebriate shared the cell block with the transients on Saturday night but was allowed to return to his Frankford home on Sunday after promising to return to Belleville in time for police court, when charges will be laid.

No local accidents of a serious nature were reported by the Motorcycle Patrolmen since late last week. All trunk highways leading out of Belleville have been kept open by the use of snow ploughs and the roads are all reported to be passable by motor.

LIFE OF KING IS SERMONS THEME

Churches Throughout Canada on Sunday Held Memorial Services

(By the Canadian Press)

Almost without exception the theme of sermons yesterday in the churches throughout Canada was the life of the late King George V, and the inspiration for service. What could be drawn from the late Monarch's White career. His regal qualities as a ruler and his domestic virtues as a family man, a devout Christian and one who bore with fortitude and humility all his heavy responsibilities as sovereign over one quarter of the people of the globe were emphasized and lauded.

At St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Ottawa, the Governor General attended divine worship and read the lesson. Here and elsewhere the preacher reminded his congregation of the late King's life and what it exemplified.

In the Roman Catholic churches special prayers were said for the repose of the King's soul, while a message written by Archbishop Forbes was read out at all masses in the Capital.

Throughout the Maritime Provinces memorial services were held, a number of them under the auspices of the Canadian Legion, and attended by bemedalled veterans.

Similarly in the central provinces memorial services marked the first Sunday following the death of King George. At each congress prayer was offered for blessings on his successor, King Edward VIII.

Western Canada also went to church and heard words in praise of the King's reign. The message be uttered to the Empire on Christmas Day was recalled, while the manifestation of affection according him last May on the occasion of the late King's Silver Jubilee was remembered as a spontaneous tribute from a devoted people.

Tuesday being a day of National mourning, it is likely that special services will be held in most Canadian churches, with the period of two minutes silence being observed at 1.30 p.m.

MANY THOUSANDS ETHIOPS KILLED

Three-Day Fighting Along Jungle Front Fiercest of War

(By Mark Barron)

(Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press)

With the Italian South Army at Dolo, Jan. 26.—(Via Nogaldieci, Italian Somaliland, Jan. 27.)—Italian machine gunners have killed several thousand Ethiopians in Ferfer, three-day fighting all along the jungle front in the vicinity of Sadet, on the border of the British Kenya Colony.

A partly motorized Italian division is fighting its way up the valley of the Dawa Parma, paralleling the Victoriafeo column which swept up the Ganale Dorya to Neghelli.

The Ethiopians, commanded by Ahmes Sawa, a Greek soldier of fortune, fell into an Italian trap and were moved down by the Fascist rain of fire.

The Sadel battlefield is important as the oasis for a vast region for southern Ethiopia. It was captured and occupied by the Italians during the last ten days.

Col. George A. Drew to Speak At Get-Together Banquet

Sixteenth Annual Foregathering of Councils to Occasion

Col. George A. Drew, K.C., of Toronto, one of Canada's most popular and forcible after-dinner speakers, will be the guest of honor, and the speaker of the evening at the Sixteenth Annual Get-Together banquet to be held at Masonic Hall, Quinte on Thursday evening of this week.

This annual event has become an important feature of our civic life. The first of these banquets was held in January, 1921, when the members of the County Council of Hastings were entertained as the guests of the City Council and the Chamber of Commerce. Every year, since that time during the January session of the County Council the occasion has been repeated. The affair has been a tangible evidence of goodwill and many hours of strong inspiring force for co-operation between city and country and for harmony in all relations.

The practice has been to have some well known speaker, prominent in public affairs to deliver the principal address of the evening. In this connection the program committee has at various times secured cabinet ministers, former premiers, university principals and professors, as well as a Mayor of Toronto and the American minister to Newfoundland to Canada.

To this notable list Colonel Drew will make a worthy addition.

PARTY SCHISM IN STATES FEARED

"Al" Smith Attacks New Deal of The President

Washington, Jan. 27 (AP)—New deal bitterness over the barbed attack of Alfred E. Smith clearly near a battle point today with concerted counter-attack set for Tuesday.

The speech of the one-time "happy warrior", swaying a responsible American Liberty League dinner audience Saturday night, left a question over the whole capital. Whether he would go beyond his indicated intention of taking a "walk" during the election campaign and actually work for a deep party schism, or whether his position alone would result in this end, went without finswer.

There was no question, however, about the depth of new deal ire. There was no question but Smith's charges of Socialism, his snap at "Washington or Moscow", and his assertion that his erstwhile friend, President Roosevelt had thrown most of the 1932 Democratic platform "in the wastebasket" would draw heavy and continuing fire.

Smith Criticisms.

Above the volley of Smith's criticism of the new deal these points stood out:

1. Smith made clear, in seven distinct references, that he did not intend to leave the Democratic party.

2. He stated flatly he would not "even lift my right hand to secure any nomination from any party at any time" but did not say unequivocally he would not accept a nomination if it were placed in his lap.

3. He called upon the party to "re-establish and re-declare the principles" of the 1932 Democratic platform.

4. He asserted significantly if the Democratic convention endorses the Democratic administration those who believe as he does could either become hypocrites or "take a walk, and we will probably do the latter."

5. He urged Democrats in Congress to follow a six-point program, which consisted for the part of advice to stop doing things he intimated they had been doing.

CORNWALL DUCHY YIELDED TO DUKE

London, Jan. 27—(AP)—The Sunday Express says the Duchy of Cornwall will be turned over by King Edward to the Duke of York, to aid the latter financially in his increased duties as heir-presumptive.

This move was viewed in some quarters as the strongest indication the bachelor King intends never to marry, the paper said, for the prosperity of Cornwall since it was established by Edward III has always been the property of the heir to the Throne.

It was suggested that if King Edward had any intention of marrying, he probably would keep it for a possible son and heir, in accordance with custom.

(The income from the Duchy of Cornwall was the sole State revenue for the Prince of Wales. In 1927 it paid him £72,817—about $365,000).

TALE OF A CAT

There was a cat went up and down to seek a dinner through the town:

1. At last— the answer to his dream; a bottle—bulging with sweet cream.

2. He cleans the cap quite through and through; then ponders what is best to do.

3. "I know a way to get it all!" Thinks he, "I'll make the bottle fall."

4. The cap gives way when he does upset it. "Alas" says Whiskers, "watch me get it."

5. He thinks he'll wait his thirst to slake until the milk has made a lake.

6. But suddenly his spirits fall— he hears a footstep in the hall.

7. "Caught!" cries Whiskers. "Scram—make room! I think I hear impending doom."

LAST ROYAL FAREWELLS

For four days subjects of His Late Majesty King George Fifth have been passing by his bier in the 800 year old Westminster Hall, the scene of some of the most momentous events in British history. They have not been privileged to see that benign and dignified face which they knew so well, but nevertheless they pass by with a relentless and unhaling tread, thousands upon thousands every hour.

A legendary king of Scotland whose life had been evil is credited in tradition as having caught a glimpse of the future and having cried in bitterness of the line which stretched unending of those who had suffered under him and whose descendants were yet to control the destinies of kingship, "What shall the line hold out to the crack of doom?"

The unending line of men and women and children who pass through Westminster Hall by the catafalque is a line of subjects united by loves, loyalties, memories of one who widened the bounds of empire through the devoted service he gave in his royal office. Were all the subjects of his beneficent reign to file by the royal catafalque, years would roll by, and even decades would pass before the last man had bidden farewell. The line would diminish slowly as the oncoming generation would add to the file passing the royal bier.

These thousands upon thousands see but the casket wherein the king sleeps in well earned rest, covered with the white and gold silk of the Royal Standard, and the emblems of sovereign rule—the crown, orb, and sceptre, but these and their memories bring back the thoughts of that life of love and devotion for the empire of "my dear friends" as the King called his people just a month ago in his Christmas message.

On Tuesday the farewell will be bidden as the king is laid to rest with his fathers in historic Windsor Castle. Simplicity will mark these last rites at St. George's Chapel in that ancient pile of the kings. Just before this the funeral cortege through the streets of London will be the formal tribute of the nation and the kings and Presidents of the greater part of the world as King George rides on a gun carriage to his everlasting home at famed Windsor.

In these days the Empire does not forget the widowed Queen of King George in her bitter grief of loss, the new King, who has borne his difficult new tasks, overcast with gloom in the death of his father, his sister and his brothers. With them an Empire weeps and grieves.

MINING LEADER GONE

Noah Timmins, whose name will indelibly be associated with the mineral development of Canada, has passed away in Florida, his death causing a shock to his numerous friends. He was favored with no small place in the mining world, thanks to his enterprise and energy, and good fortune, which he helped to make.

The word "gold" has a resistless appeal to men and women and it is with the gold industry that he brought himself to fame.

Mr Timmins' successful efforts have made the way of progress more easy for those who are in the industry of mineral development which is one of the leading factors in national importance.

DAME CLARA BUTT

Death has laid a heavy hand during the past few days on outstanding personalities who have been known to the entire world, the latest being Dame Clara Butt, one of the greatest contraltos of all time who passed away at London at the age of 63 after a lengthy illness. She had made her debut at the age of eighteen in 1892 in the Royal College of Music before the then Prince of Wales and others. Her popularity became worldwide. She was of commanding figure on the stage, standing six feet and two and a half inches.

She is said to have possessed a great personality, simple in her tastes, interested in her home life, easily approachable and one who thought first of service to her country and to the world and then of herself. Her service during the great was will never be forgotten by veterans of that conflict. She sang for the Red Cross, organized concerts for relief of distress among artists who were poverty stricken as a result of the national emergency, and for funds for needy women.

Dame Clara Butt had a happy family life with her husband, her son, and daughter. She had from earliest years wanted to be a singer. Opportunity and work gave her her heart's desire.

She was made a Dame Commander of the Order of the British Empire for her services to her country in 1920.

Notwithstanding the sight of all the miseries which wring up and threaten our destruction, we have still an instinct that we cannot repress, which elevates us above our sorrows.—Pascal.

GEORGE V

In sorrow the drums roll,
And far guns thud slow on the breeze;
Men march in the snow to mourn —
The old King who loved salt seas.

The King had a quiet mind;
Enjoyed plain things: sun in the trees,
Dogs, horses, the children's smiles,
And white sails on wind-swept seas.

The sailor who weathered storms.
The wise King, rests now. It shall please
God, surely, to grant him still,
His joy, sailing on new, bright seas.

MURDER MYSTERIES SEEMS TO HAVE SPRUNG INTO POPULARITY with a flood of murder stories reaping a harvest as "best sellers"; even Agatha Christie, English author of mystery stories, has caught the fever and leads off with "Murder in Mesopotamia", which sounds like a messy murder. Agatha is the gal who became a mystery herself, and gained great publicity thereby. She disappeared and though sought for far and wide remained a mystery until discovered at an obscure watering place, guest of a small inn. Dr. Crippen's crime of thirty years ago is frequently disinterred and paraded for public entertainment, and is also a leader in foremost crimes of the century. Dr. Crippen had the distinction of being the first murderer to be apprehended by wireless. With his sweetheart, Miss Le Neve, he was arrested on the S.S. Montrose as a result of wireless description sent from London, which revealed the identity of Crippen to the captain, who wirelessed back to London that Crippen was on board. Inspector Dew, of Scotland Yard, who left on a faster vessel after the Montrose and passed them on the ocean, boarded the Montrose with a secret and Father Point and took charge of Crippen. The latest writer to deal with the crime of Dr. Crippen is J. V. McAree, in his interesting "Fourth Column" on the editorial page of the Toronto Mail and Empire. McAree intimates that it was a shame to hang Dr. Crippen for the killing of his wife, seemed all she got according to McAree. Wireless caught Crippen and a small piece of scar tissue, reminiscent of an abdominal operation hung him. Dr. Crippen lived in Toronto at one time and was mixed up in the patent medicine business. He seemed a quiet decent sort of a chap, but he married a woman who was ambitious to shine as an opera singer and actress and cared little what means she took to attain her ends. Dr. Crippen, that mild little hen-pecked man turned to his demure little secretary, Miss Le Neve and love resulted. Only a few bones and pieces of skin were found in the cellar of the Crippen home, but the small piece of scar tissue established the identity of the remains. He was convicted and sentenced to death by hanging, the sentence being carried out. Crippen's counsel spoke very highly afterward of Dr. Crippen his character and conduct, aside from the one fatal lapse, and judging from the evidence which came to light regarding the murdered wife's character and conduct there are many who think that the sentence was far too severe.

If you can keep your head when all about you
Are losing theirs and blaming it on you.
If you can trust yourself when all men doubt you,
But make allowance for their doubting too.
Yours is the Earth, and everything that's in it,
And which is more,—you'll be a man, my son.

Still stands Thine ancient sacrifice,

LOOKING BACKWARD
GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

JAN. 27TH. 1916

Owing to the mild weather which has prevailed for several days the ice in the river is breaking up. This is the earliest period that such has happened in the memory of some of the oldest residents here. The ice is not of great thickness.

At the annual meeting of the congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church the minister, the Rev. A. S. Kerr, presided and Mr. Arthur McCle acted as secretary. It was reported that the membership of the church had increased by thirty-seven during the year; the entire membership being 328. Fifty-five members and adherents have enlisted for service overseas. The amount raised for all purposes during the year was $5,548.32. A reduction was made in the debt on the church of $600.00. The revenue of the Sunday School amounted to $603.51. The following managers were elected by ballot for a term of three years: Messrs. A. McCle, Willian McCle, R. Mallory, W. C. Reid and W. B. Walker.

It is constructed of wafer-thin spars and tubes which can be stamped out by the presses of any big automobile manufacturer, and easily assembled, and its frame can be riddled with bullets without causing it to collapse, or bringing it down. The new plane, a monoplane, is known as the Wallis Geodetic, being named after its creator, Barnes Neville Wallis.

"Eleven billion dollars a year for FOOD?"

THAT'S HOW MUCH American women spend. If you are buying food for the so-called "average" family of four your share is at least $11.00 a week.

The job of getting the most out of that eleven dollars requires thoughtful planning, if not ingenuity. You've got to keep a supply of staples on hand—flour, sugar, shortening, baking powder, essential condiments and spices. A variety of breakfast cereals is required. Milk, butter, eggs and cheese figure in meals constantly. Tea, coffee, cocoa and canned fruit juices are consumed daily. Fresh, as well as canned fruits and vegetables, can't be overlooked. Meats and fish — either fresh, smoked or canned—demand that you buy them. Jellies, jams, relishes and canned soups insist upon a place in your market basket. And last, but not least, is bread three times a day.

So what's the best rule to follow in buying this wide assortment of food? How can you avoid monotony in meals? How can you discover new menus and recipes? How can you have enough money left over each week from your food allowance for a few tasty luxuries that make meals more appetizing? How can you save time and money in buying?

Well, you can tramp through the markets daily—looking, pricing and comparing. But there's an easier way—a more accurate way—a more up-to-the-minute way—

Victorian Nurse's Report

The following report was submitted to the Victorian Order of Nurses' Committee by Miss Hostler, Nurse-in-charge, at the annual meeting of the committee:

Belleville, Ontario
January 13th, 1936.

Your Worship, Madame President, Members of the Board,—

It is my privilege to present to you the eleventh Annual Report of the Belleville Branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses.

The thought which presents itself, in preparing this report is, to what extent the Victorian Order work known in Belleville by the general public or further, may I ask this pertinent question? "What does Victorian Order Nursing Service mean to the individual members who represent the general public? It would be very interesting to know how much or how little is really known about the Public Health Nursing Service which has been in this particular community for eleven years now. How much it means depends on how well known and understood this service really is. It should mean just this—that no person in Belleville or of those living within a ten mile radius outside of Belleville need ever say that they can not have the services of a trained nurse when they are ill because of lack of funds to pay her. Right in their midst is a responsible source of help in the Victorian Order of Nurses, ready and willing at all times to give nursing care anyone who may be need such care, irrespective of ability to pay. Shouldn't that mean something to the general public? It's a community organization; everyone needing such a service should patronize it. We, the nurses of the Order, will be only too happy to assist with sickness in the home and relieve some member of the burden shared is a lot lighter, chief responsibility at least a it that when it is borne alone. Ask your family Doctor about us.

The types of nursing service which the Victorian Order gives in Belleville include all types of medical and surgical cases, also maternal welfare. Medical cases include such diseases as influenza, bronchitis, colds, of all kinds, pneumonia, heart conditions, typhoid fever, etc. Surgical cases include assisting the Doctors with minor operations such as opening of abscesses, tonsil operations, etc., also assisting the Dentist when he is extracting a number of teeth in the home. We do surgical dressings as in the case of when a patient is returning from hospital requiring care to a discharging wound. Convalescence is often continued at home and the Doctor asks the nurse to go in daily to dress the wound until it is entirely healed. This often saves the patient from financial embarrassment at a time when the family purse has been almost drained, and if it is a city case, saves a few dollars from the Treasurer's account.

In reviewing the work accomplished in 1935 we note that 5,900 visits were made to 666 patients. This is an increase of 1,097 over last year. 1,963 visits were made to medical and surgical cases, an increase of 940 over last year, and 1,461 to mothers and babies. We regret to report the death of one baby and one mother. The mother's death was due to numerous births with inability to gain strength, a complication developed when her last child was born which caused a clot to dislodge from a vein causing instantaneous death. 86 confinements were attended throughout the year, 83 paid part and full fee and 32 or one-third were free. 48 operations were attended. Fees collected were $1,804.60. Free nursing visits totalled 1962.

In Belleville during 1935 there were 386 births of which the V. O. N. gave new born care to 101. Of the 386 babies born alive, we note that 27 died in the first year of life and this is startling when we consider that it is the highest infant death rate in the past four years in Belleville. The number of deaths of previous years being as follows: 1932 - 18, 1933 - 19, 1934 - 18, 1935 - 27. This should be a matter of real concern to us, particularly when we read in "Canada Almanac" (a Provincial publication issued annually by the Health Department of Health in Toronto) states "during the past four years the decrease in the number of births for every thousand of population has been steady and substantial" and it goes on to say "at the present decrease therefore it will not be long before the birth rate will nearly balance the death rate." This problem is a wide social and economic significance because of its effect on the structure of the population, therefore it should be the concern of the community to do all it can in the interests of preserving child life. During 1935 there were 3,288 births recorded in Ontario before they reached their first birthday. Babies born today have a better chance of reaching their first birthday than those born twenty years ago, and, while the present figures are startling, yet statistics show that the present rate is only 60 deaths per thousand compared to as high as 100 deaths per thousand twenty years ago. It is encouraging to note that the death rate is coming down but it is still too high. One of the reasons for the infant death rate becoming lower is because parents are better informed and are applying their knowledge in the care of their children.

Belleville mothers are seeking all the knowledge they can as is shown by the attendance at the Well Baby Conference which is held weekly at the City Hall. The attendance is increasing gradually and the interest on the part of all mothers very encouraging.

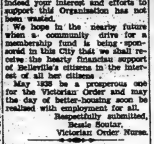
As we review the year's work and take stock of our activities many thought-provoking questions present themselves. Are we doing all that we might do in our city to help reduce the infant and maternal death rate, thereby adding a contribution to the Nation-wide efforts in this real problem? Is a Public Health Organization in Belleville we do not do as much health instruction work as we should do, because of lack of sufficient staff. More emphasis needs to be laid on the preventive side of our work with the importance stressed and more help requested to aid us, in carrying out a better Health programme. The avenue for service need to be widened!

Since the Victorian Order of Nurses is a community nursing service we need the interest and support of every available intelligent member of the community. We are indeed grateful to those organizations, societies and private individuals who have already contributed a great deal towards the support of the local Order, and because of this interest our tasks, which are sometimes discouraging, have been made lighter and brighter. There is a real place of work to be done and your continued support is earnestly requested in 1936.

Mr. Holmes and his staff as the Public Utilities Commission have been vigilance by taking our calls through the day time, always giving courteous service to those requiring for our service; also the night staff at the Hospital has been equally faithful. This joint co-operation service has proved most satisfactory and we owe a real debt of gratitude to those responsible for it.

For the new car so recently given us we are deeply indebted to the combined efforts of the Rotary Clubs and our own local Committee.

The royal support of cash and every Board member throughout the year has helped to make many arduous tasks light. Your sympathetic understanding of many of our problems has been a real source of comfort. To our President, Mrs. Holland, I would like to pay special tribute, for c e has her spared neither time or patience in her interests of Victorian Order work and deserves much credit for her unselfish devotion to all that pertains to promote Victorian Order work in Belleville. I know she too has had discouraging days, but she has always come up smiling. I trust that 1936 will be a little easier for her.



Throughout the year we are in and out of all types of homes. To visit a sick person in a well-to-do home is a joy because of the intelligent co-operation and appreciation which make nursing task easier and the expression of appreciation from grateful patients is indeed our reward. In the homes of the very poor it too is a joy, because of the real efforts on the part of the family to co-operate and please the Nurse; having little themselves we expect little our-selves, and really get much, for we experience the side of life few are privileged to see and at this time of the year, on behalf of Belleville's poor and needy whom it has been our privilege to nurse during the year may we pay our tribute to the heroic manner in which many families are carrying on. Families living in cold and shabby places, without any attractive decorations save a few pieces of furniture which in many cases are broken or mended, no carpets or even oil cloth on floors, bare walls or bare pipes that freeze every night to weeping, huge cracks in the walls and window sashes which let cold blasts steal in to cool the not overheated house, fallen plaster and papered walls that have forgotten long ago the date of the last paper hanging, are just a few of the things we see in some places where parents and children call it "home". As Health Nurses we stress the need of cleanliness, fresh air and sunshine but looking at such homes one can see what incentive is there to try and keep places clean, when the seven children and parents live in one to three rooms in conditions described above. We wonder what the future holds for as well as physical will be on these children and many will be crippled will they develop into, coming out of such environments. For all of the poor may it be thus housed the cheapest rented places when they can afford to pay more for a decent shelter in these abodes. Force of circumstances with continued unemployment has crumpled and discouraged many. The best of families have grown shabby after long use and when it was never in their power to mend it up. We hear and read about better housing conditions for the under-privileged in other lands and places and the need is right at our very doors. The underprivileged are poor, and they have learned to be humble and we cannot blame them, all because a few are careless and reckless and eventually have become less brash etc. Wiam It is a matter of honesty I'd trust the average poor person any day and we hope it won't be long before they may rise above their oppression, and have with the work for all and so bring back happy days to many aching hearts. When poor people have better homes to live in, then indeed will the influence of Public Health flourish. If the presence of your Victorian Order Nurses in this community has brought any trace of sunshine into the lives of Belleville's underprivileged families then indeed your interest and efforts to support this Organization has not been wasted.

We hope in the nearly future when the community drive for a membership fund is being sponsored in this City that we shall receive the hearty financial support of Belleville's citizens in the interest of all her citizens.

May 1936 be a prosperous one for the Victorian Order and may the day of better-housing soon be realized with employment for all.

Respectfully submitted,
Beatie Hostler,
Victorian Order Nurse.

Diet Plays Part In Avoiding An Oily Skin

Simone Simon

She avoids an oily skin with diet and cleanliness

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHAT'S TO be done about an oily skin? The usual proceeding is to ply the powder pad frantically, to weep copiously when one spots the high lights on the imperishant nose.

Believe it or be skeptical, but the daily bath with rough friction and the bath brush does a lot of good. Did somebody ask why? Because it helps the entire skin surface of the body to function better, there's less work to be done by the sensitive glands on the face.

Diet plays a part. Drink your orange juice like a good girl, have lettuce once a day, cut down on fats and pastries. Whatever has a bad effect upon the digestive organs or slows up the work of the intestinal tract is pretty sure to impair the complexion.

The soaps and lotions. Water is clear away the oil, follow with cold water to subdue the sebaceous glands. Lave with an astringent made by combining one ounce of witch hazel, one-fourth part of boric acid and one-half pint of camphor water. Let it dry before you right. Use a powder of light consistency, no oily rouge.

Many a woman starts in on a reducing spree when all she needs to do is learn to care for her body beautifully. Poor posture is responsible for many a bulging tummy. Poor posture is overdone and often unconsciously—we tend to be drawn to what is unbeautiful and sordid.

The fact is that morbid curiosity is a survival of ancient and primitive days when killing, death and unexpected catastrophes were frequent occurrences among the human family.

To be sure, there is argument aplenty that we are not as civilized as we fondly like to think we are. We still destroy each other unmercifully in war; we run over women and children and maim the aged with our automobiles, we tolerate gangster crimes and allow only a murder to go unsolved.

Yet, despite all our shortcomings, there can be no question but that people as a whole, as well as individuals, are at least desirous of developing and reaching higher and higher planes despite the nagging and often overpowering influences which we have inherited from our ancestors.

Among these influences, undoubtedly, should be listed morbid curiosity. Watch yourself, therefore, and find out how much it still holds you in its grip.

Observe your reactions to electrocutions, to the clanging of an ambulance or fire engine, to any gruesomeness as reported in play, book, newspaper or motion picture.

To overcome morbid curiosity, it is not necessary to avoid all such experiences. It is merely necessary to recognize your interest for what it actually is, thus automatically controlling it, because it has been definitely considered and so has lost the power of overwhelming you.

Controlling morbid curiosity makes for refinement in thinking and feeling, as well as for compassion. These go far in developing any race into finer and better men and women.

HEALTH and PSYCHOLOGY

We learn, advance and, one might say, even live by curiosity. Were it not for this human attribute, surely life would be a dreary existence, rather more vegetable than human. Yes, in itself, curiosity is a fine thing, is a vital, pulsating, dynamic interest that helps to keep us going!

But there are various types of curiosity. By no means all of it is desirable. Often, indeed, it is morbid. And when it is so, it becomes a distinct liability rather than an asset.

When a crowd gathers in the street, standing fascinated by the sight of a bleeding wounded man who has been struck by an automobile, the curiosity instinct thus aroused in them can only be designated as morbid. For the interest shown is not only of pity, nor is it born of the desire to help. It is merely a display of excitement which temporarily utilizes the emotions and leaves unpleasant memories in its wake.

None of us is entirely free from morbid curiosity. Some have it to a greater less. Deep down, however—and often unconsciously—we tend to be drawn to what is unbeautiful and sordid.

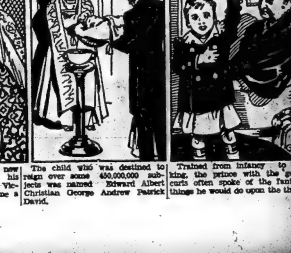
NEW HOME FOR NEW KING—Beginning his reign as new monarch of Great Britain, King Edward VIII has a change in residence. From his former home at St. James' palace, BELOW, King Edward now moves to Buckingham Palace, TOP.

ST. GEORGE'S CHAPEL, WHERE FUNERAL SERVICES TO BE HELD.—Here is a splendid view of St. George's chapel and Albert Memorial chapel (FOREGROUND) at Windsor Castle. The funeral services for King George V will be held in St. George's chapel, while his body will rest in Albert Memorial.

WHERE BELOVED KING WILL LIE IN STATE IN WESTMINSTER HALL—In Westminster Hall at the corner of the British House of Parliament lies in state the body of Britain's most beloved King, George V. The scene will duplicate that shown above, taken in Westminster Hall when King George's body Edward VII, was mourned by the empire 25 years ago.

LIFE OF KING EDWARD VIII

Church bells throughout all England signalled the birth of Edward VIII early on June 23, 1894, at 31 White Lodge, Richmond.



A short time previously his father and grandfather, the Prince of Wales, had paced the floor just as ordinary fathers do.

A speeding horseman first brought the news to the neighboring countryside, although the glad tidings had been telegraphed to London.

The child who was destined to reign over some 450,000,000 people received Albert Christian George Andrew Patrick David.

Trained from infancy to be king, the prince with the title of Duke of Cornwall and York often spoke of the fascinating things he would do upon the th

Weekly Livestock Review

Ottawa, Jan. 27 —A continued heavy run of cattle to most of the principal markets was responsible for further recession in prices, and the situation was rendered more aggravated by fairly heavy shipments direct to packing houses. This was particularly true of Toronto where packing houses took a number of loads each cattle and dressed beef from Western Canada, and current receipts were limited. Only sharply curtailed offerings are likely to be offered the market at the present time. It was noticeable again that the poorer grades had the least demand and suffered heaviest price declines.

Prices Paid at Stock Yards

All cattle were down from 25c to 50c at Toronto. With the heaviest weights of steers sustaining the greatest loss. Top quality steers sold at $8.50 and $8.50, with the best of the butchers reaching $8.25 and $8.00. Medium grades of steers and top of $6 with about 15 picked steers at $6.40. Weights again had a too liberal run and quality was noticeably inferior, with prices all the way from 25c to 75c down. The top was at $5.75, but very few sales were made at that figure. $5.25 about represented the best. Calgary reported 16 on 27 loads, with mixed choice steers and bulls and a high price of $5.50. Edmonton reported generally lower and down 25c, with the high at $5.25. Prince Albert had nothing eligible to name quotations on. Moose Jaw and Regina were rather draggy and down 25c, with better tone due to better quality offerings with a top of $5. Supplies held about steady, up to a top of $5. Vancouver moved steers between $4.35 and $5.50, with some at $4.85.

Steer Cattle Prices

Toronto was down 25c on stockers, with prices ranging from $3.50 to $4.75 and a few heifers up to $5. Winnipeg also lost a good 25c. Some fleshy feeders were in competition with killing cattle around $4, while stockers made $3 to $3.50 for good light ones. Edmonton reported cattle from to good stockers from $3 to $3.75, and Saskatoon sold good kinds from $3.25 to $3.75.

Exports to the United States from Canada for the week. American markets made a good pick-up this week and were quite active, considering those of the previous week. Shipments included 1,583 head, made up of 1,200 beef cattle, 209 dairy cattle, and 78 calves. The total for the year to date now stands at 4,681 cattle and calves. This week's exports were fairly well distributed throughout the country. Ontario sending some 600 head and the western provinces sharing the balance. Seven cars of Canadian cattle were reported as entering duty during the week. Chicago and Canadian steers, around 1340 lbs. average, made $8.75, a load weighing around 1150 lbs., $8.50, and mixed yearlings and heifers in the 800 lb. class ranged between $7.15 and $7.50, and some lighter weight heifers made $6.50. Chicago reported two loads of heavy Canadians at $10 to $10.50 and the market closing sharply higher, due to storm conditions, with values consequently abbreviated supply. St. Paul quoted yearling slaughter steers at $8.25 to $9.25, with weighty kinds from $7.50 to $8, heifers from $6 to $6.50, and cows mostly at $4 to $5.25.

Canadian markets generally will be closed on Tuesday, Jan. 28th.

Calves Steady to Firm

Toronto had a light calf run, steady, with choice and good veals from $10 to $11, medium $9 and $8, shade firmer up to a top of $9.50. Winnipeg was about steady, with lightweights up to $8. Calgary and Edmonton had tops of $6; Moose Jaw $5.50; Regina $6; and Saskatoon $5.50. Vancouver had a top of $6.

Hog Market Advances in East

Hogs had a sharp advance at most stations, helped by the sub-zero weather in the east and also because of lack of supplies. Toronto was up 50c, with bacons reaching $12.25, and Montreal's market was 25c better than last week's close at $12 for bacons and selects. Eastern Ontario markets were practically unchanged. Winnipeg sold fed and weaned bacons at $8. Calgary was also steady, with trucked bacons at $7.50, Edmonton was up an exception, selling about 15c firmer, with trucked bacons $7.50. Prince Albert quoted $7.50 for bacons, off trucks, while Moose Jaw and Regina also paid $7.75. Saskatoon sold trucked bacons at $7.60. Vancouver reported $7.75 to $8.25 for slaughter hogs.

Sheep Steady to Stronger

Toronto lamb prices were up higher, with the run not heavy, considering the quality, the improvement might be said to be as much as 50c. Good westerners made $9, and Canada Packers paid $8.75 for good kinds, with one choice lot at $9.15. Montreal sold a few crates of yearlings at $7.75 to $8.25 for slaughter lambs topped at $7.50; Calgary $6.75; Edmonton $7; Moose Jaw $6.60, and Saskatoon $6.50. Vancouver had a top of $8.00.

Cattle Markets

TORONTO had a supply of 3,000 cattle, including 1,000 stockers, a run too large for market requirements. Trade was draggy from the opening, with weighty steers down 25c to 50c, butchers and fed calves 25c to 50c, and bulls and cows off 25c. Medium to good weighty steers sold from $7.50 to $8.25, with three at $8 to $8.25 and plain as low as $7.25. Choice cattle ranged from $7.50 to $8.25, and some tops $8.50. Good cows were at $5 to $5.50, with choice cannery and cutters $4.75 to $5.25. Fed calves were slow, from $8 to $10 and down $7.50. Stockers shared in the decline to the extent of 25c, and were unusually dull for the week. Prices ranged from $3.50 to $4.75, with a few feeders at $5. Milkers and springers were quiet at $80 to $65 for tops.

MONTREAL had a light tone for steers, while cows were steady to firm. The principal loop on steers was at $6, without 15 head picked out at $6.25. Medium steers were from $4.50 to $5.50, and common $4.50 downward. Choice heifers sold at $6 and $6.25, tops $4.50, mediums $3.00 to $3.75, common $2.50 down. Choice cows and canners and cutters $2 to $2.50.

Livestock

Toronto, Jan. 27 (CP)—Salesmen reported a fairly active trade at the opening of the Toronto livestock market today and some sales were made on the 2,000-head supply before the noon recess, indications pointing to establish levels. Western cattle were scarce and mixed while calves and sheep sold firm. Hogs, as usual, were unchanged on definitely lower.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Bureau: Cattle, 3,000; calves, 120; hogs, 770; sheep and lambs, 270.

Cattle and choice veal calves were firm at $10 to $11 with a few up to $11.25. Medium sold at $9 to $9.50 while some grassers made $8.

Good western lambs sold at 25 cents to 50 cents higher following early clearings on Montreal livestock market today. Cattle were lower and calves and sheep lambs firm.

On the cattle market prices were lower with good steers selling from $7.50 to $8.25, common steers, $5.50 to $5.25; and common steers, $3.50 to $4.25. Good heifers were steady at $6.50 to $7.50 and $4.50 and $6.50 and common kinds $3 to $3.75. Good cows were steady at $4.50 to $5, common kinds $3 to $3.50 and common butchers mostly $2.50.

For the second consecutive week trading was light on the calf section with prices ranging from $8 to 50c higher. A few good veals brought $10.50 and $11 and the bulk between $9.50, common to medium kinds $6.50 to $9.25. Grassers were $6.50 to $7 and heavy calves $5 to $6.50.

Lambs were higher beginning from $8.50 to $8.75 with a few odd lots of ewes sold from $8 to $8.25. Sheep brought from $3 to $4.50.

The hog market was firm with bacons, fed and watered, selling at $9 with the usual 11 premium on selects. Butchers, heavies and lights were cut 50 cents per hundredweight and extra heavies 41 per hundredweight. Sows were from $7 to $7.75; stags $5 and country points $6 to $6.50.

Board Room Gossip

Glecoe Gold Mines

A Toronto paper comments as follows on Sicoe:—"The conviction seems to be growing in certain sections of the street that Sicoe is entering upon an entirely new and brighter chapter in the story of development history, because of the increasing importance of large ore deposits located on the mainlong section of its holdings. There is, it is said, may ultimately determine for the company a greatly enlarged milling program that will increase the company's earning power and the asset-out to shareholders.

To Distribute San Antonio Shares Tomorrow

Tomorrow, January 28th, Gatchell Mines Limited will distribute to its shareholders the holdings of San Antonio stock, amounting to 75,278 shares, at the rate of one share of San Antonio Gold Mines for each 13 shares of Gatchell.

Talk of inflation is heard on all sides. The average man in the street is not well versed in the intricacies of inflation, but he knows that it means higher prices for those necessities dealing with the production of commodities. Public enthusiasm continues to centre in the mining stocks.

The Federal Reserve Board in the United States is endeavoring to curb speculation. The board has abandoned the old bugaboo of the bull days of 1928-30, in that era, efforts were made to reduce speculative activities by increasing the rate of call money. Right years ago the public was heavily involved in the market that every time the call money rate was highered it was taken as a bullish signal and speculation further accelerated. The higher marginal requirements from February 1st on should not be taken as a bearish light. First of all, it will tend to strengthen the position of banks in the market and preclude the possibility of huge speculation on a "shoestring" margin.

The rise in the market across the line in the last ten months or so has been substantial. This has been accompanied by a recovery in the general business level. Further, a Canadian angle, the increase of 20 per cent. in United States steel trade requirements is bullish for the reason that some traders may turn from Gold Wall Street activities to Canadian issues. There is no reason, whatever for Canadian investors to sell their sound stocks because higher margins are called for in New York.

Noranda Stands to Benefit From an Advance in Price of Gold or Copper Values

In trying to look ahead in order to ascertain what the future of Noranda Mines is for 1936 the investor will find several things of paramount importance, while places this company in a fortunate position.

In the first place, Noranda has no big bonded indebtedness to be outstanding, which condition, leaves the common stock free to reflect any increase in earnings. In the short course of ten years this company has built up a reputation of strong balance sheet position besides having many hundreds of new properties from which a revenue will be received this year. Although the price of gold is tending up to $41, an ounce, or copper to 10 cents a pound, Noranda's earning power would be greatly increased.

Nickel in New High Territory

That market favorite of many year's standing, International Nickel, reached a new high of 48 3-4 this week, which is the peak price since October, 1929. The chances that this great Canadian enterprise has made is much more remarkable but it seems unfortunate that many of our own investors have not participated in the advance of the metal. London has seen this picture clearly and as a result is looked to by the buyers of Nickel for many months.

Judging this story entirely from a returns basis it looks as though in this connection, Financial Service is influenced by people who should know that "IN" will be on a dividend basis with $2 a share per annum before the close of 1936. It is estimated that earnings for this year will run in the vicinity of $3 a share. The research department of this organization is also of the view endeavouring to find new uses for copper and it is also quite likely that their efforts will be successful. If so, earnings will be increased substantially.

Increase in Crude Oil Prices Means Higher Earnings For International Petroleum

Crude oil prices in the United States were increased on January 15th by 15 cents a barrel lately and should this advance hold throughout the year, it will mean an increase of $4,500,000 in profits to International Petroleum, based on the figures for five per cent of this company's production in the form of dividends to subsidiaries of the Standard Oil of New Jersey at mid-continent quotations. At this time of year it is estimated at their own plants in Colombia and Peru.

Hollinger's Investment Account Shows Improvement

The investment statement in security prices has had a favourable effect on Hollinger's investment account, which is shown in the books at the close of business on December 31, 1935, at $3,057,892. This will be good news to the shareholders. McIntyre-Porcupine Mines Limited included in McIntyre's Investment Account is reputed to be 100,000 shares of International Nickel common, which cost in the neighborhood of $3,000,000. On March 31, 1935, marketable securities were carried in the company's balance sheet at $1,000,000. The market valuation of the above mentioned investments at the time of writing is roughly $4,800,000.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, Jan. 27—Receipts of butter, cheese and eggs at Montreal for the week compared with last were announced Saturday at the Board of Trade as follows:

	Eggs	Butter	Cheese
	Cases	Boxes	Boxes
Last week	7,276	3,614	1,764
Week ago	8,356	2,878	153
Year ago	5,218	5,200	1,400

The egg market ended the week strong, owing to declining supplies. The latter days of the week, the blocked country roads, and zero weather had their effect. After easing in the early part of the week, the butter market was at the close of the week strong during the week's sales, with prices generally in quiet trading. New potatoes arrived in Montreal for the first time in commercial quantities.

The butter market, ending the week generally at 34½c, 34½c per lb. for No. 1 in cartons or 34½c to 35c wholesale, and at 34½c to 35c on the preceding Saturday. Creamery extra graded shipments in cartons or 1-1 lots, have been sold in the city, were 36c for A-large, 36c for A-medium and 34-35c for A-pullets.

Clever Work by Thoms and Clancy Enable Leafs to Down Red Wings by 6-1 Count

Detroit Team Too Busy Tracking Puck to do Anything Else

RANGERS IN CELLAR

Defeated by Hawks, While Bruins And Maroons Also Win

(By A. E. Fulford)
(Canadian Press Staff Reporter)
Youthful Bill Thoms, the much-called marvel of mid-ice has come along to lead the Leafs in another drive.

William and his curly locks popped up to set up two unassisted places Saturday night, Detroit Red Wings were so busy keeping track of him to do much else and Toronto went in a canter by 6-1.

Thoms was the best man on the ice at Toronto and he had to be good. Opposite him was Clancy, whose blasting marches goalyard-ward were more welcome by Jack Adams' men than his stout blocking on the defence.

Toronto's unusually good play, a throwback to their form of earlier in the early season, bolstered a weak and of only four N.H.L. games. The Leafs had won them all, two with Montreal Maroons, who defeated Canadiens 4-1 in the other Saturday night contest.

New York Rangers dropped into the cellar position left by Detroit early in the third period at Madison Square Garden when they lost to Boston Bruins, when Ottawa's Bill Cowley scored the tieing goal and assisted in the other.

Checking like demons and displaying a scoring punch, that has been largely absent since Charlie Conacher's departure, Montreal looked almost unbelievably better than Detroit, leaders of the American section ever.

Wings, who held decisions over Leafs in their other three contests this season, never got started. Leafs held down a lengthy lead in the first period, that kept them too busy to do anything but block and smothered almost all their other five attempts, before they got properly away.

Score Even in First

Leafs scored three goals in that first period and Detroit got only three through the Toronto goal. That indicated just how much better the Smythemen were. Their advantage, though, wasn't so evident in the later sessions.

Thoms got two goals in the first session and Pep Kelly another while Clancy scored the second and gave Kelly a pass for Leafs' fifth. Nick Metz finished off their tally-ho by slicing in Detroit's only goal. George Hainsworth robbed of a shutout, when Hec Kilrea put one from behind the goal went into the net off Red Horner for Wings' only counter.

Better offensively and defensively Maroons defeated their brothers of the veteran Aurel Joliat gave Canadiens their only goal in the game at Montreal. Playing-manager Dave Trottier initiated a four-man attack with a scoring shot in the first period. Dave Trottier tallied on the second for Maroons, Bob Gracie got nother in the same period and Wilbert Thomson in a 4-0 half way through the third.

Doc Romnes worked with Paul Thomson in the Maroons' attack in the first. Hawk counter against Rangers and Canadiens against Bruins. Marty Burke combined for another that gave the Hawks a 2-0 win part way through the game. Frank Boucher scored for New York Rovers marker in the final minute.

Old Nels Stewart gave Americans a one goal lead with the only third period marker at New York and Red Dutton's team seemed to have the game tied up until Cowley took Cooper Conahan's pass and tieing goal. Lorne Duguid scored the winner, stickhandling through the whole defensive team after taking Cowley's pass.

By EAY COLLETT

The most brittle-boned player in the National Hockey League is generally believed to be George Mantha, black-haired fast-skating wingman of Montreal Canadiens. The debonair George, brother of Manager Sylvio Mantha and one of the most popular French players in the game, ranks with Ching Johnson as the bad luck star. Mantha's injuries are almost exclusively due to an unfortunate bone formation. That and his rushing style of play send him to the sidelines often.

Brother Sylvio once was the unwitting cause of an injury to George when he checked him in practice as the younger Mantha came flying in toward the nets. Sylvio could always hand out a stiff bump, and catching his brother off balance, he sent him crashing into the goal post. Four broken ribs resulted and the right-winger was out for weeks. When he returned, he revived the ancient correct as a protection for his sore chest, donning a special steel-strengthened garment-cum-guard. He broke a bone in his heel once when a shot struck over a stick.

The bumps haven't slowed him up, however, and he still races up and down the right boards with a reckless abandon. With a new Canadien squad rapidly leading its rivals with the past, George Mantha is one of the few players who so far survives the drastic readjustment.

FALCONS DRIVE CAUSES CONCERN

Cleveland Team Only Five Points Behind Faltering Olympics

It's only a year or so ago that International League hockey was on the point of collapsing in Cleveland but today the Falcons are driving towards first place in the western section, determined to cause the big-league Olympics considerable grief by placing Detroit Olympics.

Falcons are five points back of the front-running Olympics, 1935 champions, but they show every sign of moving up closer on the faltering men of Donie Hughes who have squandered a big lead.

Before an excited crowd of 3,000 in Cleveland Saturday night, the Falcons pulled out a 3-1 win over the Olympics when Ken Doraty, Lloyd Cross and Frank Foley punished in second-period goals. Neither of the contenders, however, could win last night.

Syracuse Stars, using Moe Roberge in goal in place of the injured Phil Stein, blanked the Falcons 2-0 on Thursday while Providence Reds' ire first home defeat of the season, dropping a 3-2 decision to London Panthers. The Cup had played a home games without a defeat and two ties.

London outplayed Detroit from start to finish and after taking a 2-1 lead Tecs played defensive hockey. Yank Boyd and Norm Locking did London's scoring and Rutherfie Hudson bagged the only Olympic goal.

In the other Saturday night fixture, Buffalo Bisons shut out the Pittsburgh Shamrocks 2-0, scoring a goal in each period. Sammy Godin got two of these and Cliff Barton got the other.

2. Use only registered players. Players' application forms will be at the rink. Players who have not filled in their application forms must see Bill in the Y.M.C.A. and do so before playing second game. See that it is attached of those who sign cards.

3. Goal pads and goal sticks are towards the place in the western section, determined to cause the big-league Olympics considerable grief by placing Detroit Olympics.

Falcons are five points back of the front-running Olympics, 1935 champions, but they show every sign of moving up closer on the faltering men of Donie Hughes who have squandered a big lead.

Before an excited crowd of 3,000 in Cleveland Saturday night, the Falcons pulled out a 3-1 win over the Olympics when Ken Doraty, Lloyd Cross and Frank Foley punished in second-period goals. Neither of the contenders, however, could win last night.

Syracuse Stars, using Moe Roberge in goal in place of the injured Phil Stein, blanked the Falcons 2-0 on Thursday while Providence Reds' ire first home defeat of the season, dropping a 3-2 decision to London Panthers. The Cup had played a home games without a defeat and two ties.

In the other Saturday night fixture, Buffalo Bisons shut out the Pittsburgh Shamrocks 2-0, scoring a goal in each period. Sammy Godin got two of these and Cliff Barton got the other.

MAGEDOMAS GO INTO OVERTIME

Nicol And McDonald, Former Belleville Players Star in Win

Brockville, Ont., Jan. 27 (CP) — Brockville Magedomas were forced into overtime here Saturday night before they defeated Ottawa Rideaus 8-6 in a thrilling, hard-fought Ottawa Senior City Hockey League game.

Rideaus tied the score on three different occasions and apparently had honors sewed up when they were leading 6-4 with but five minutes left to play in the third period. Goals by Harry Nicol and "Red" McDonald, however, put Brockville on even terms and forced the game into overtime. Two extra sessions were played in which the Magedomas scored one goal in each.

The win increased Brockville's lead in the standing to seven points over their nearest rivals, Lasalle, which holds second position with 13. Royal Canadian Air Force and Ensigns are tied for third place with 11 points, while Rideaus, with 7, have a three-point margin over Queen's University which holds cellar position.

AND ONLY THE SURVIVORS LIVED TO TELL IT

Tim McGrath, old-time San Francisco fight manager (not the handled Tom Sharkey) is quite a story-teller. And, according to several second hands in the racket, this is one of Tim's favorites. It reputedly was told to him by Spider Kelly, once a top-notch fighter.

According to McGrath, here's the tale of Kelly's adventure:

"Back in the old Indian-fighting days a band of 16 of us were out travelling the plains. All of a sudden, a horde of Indians swooped down on us. We dashed away to the hills.

"When we finally got our wits together we found ourselves hemmed in in a pocket. The walls on three sides of us were all precipices, and formed a box-like death trap.

"Well, we were for it, we figured, my brothers, my brother-in-laws, yes, even their brother-in-laws all trapped. The arrows were whizzing over our heads and the Indians coming closer.

"Well" McGrath asked Kelly, "how did you escape?"

Howie Morenz Traded Even In Ranger—Hawk Deal

Glenn Brydson of Rangers Now With Chicago

New York, Jan. 27 (CP)—Howie Morenz was recruited today to the New York Ranger fold in what appeared to be a gamble for strength as the National Hockey League stretch drive approaches.

Announcement that manager Lester Patrick had sent Glenn Brydson, 25-year-old wingman, to Chicago Black Hawks for the services of the veteran centre was made by Patrick. Terms was made last night. It came in the windy city 2-1 and permitted Boston Bruins to climb into a tie with the Patrick pacinats for third place in the American section.

Straight Deal.

The trade was said to have been a straight player deal, with no cash involved. It had been agreed upon a few days ago when Earl Seibert of the Rangers was swapped to Chicago for another defenceman, Art Coulter.

The strategy in sending the promising Brydson away for the aging Morenz was obvious, even on the surface but Patrick has never been one to do things other than a wise.

The last-issued league scoring statistics showed a wide gap between the spectacular Morens and the steady-going Brydson. The latter is the son of Brydson, former star and amateur product of Montreal, but the Howie of Stanley Cup fame has had the same number of goals and two fewer assists.

Morenz Dissatisfied.

But it has long been rumored the shifty Morenz was not happy with the Chibawks and a change of scenery was long overdue. The old-timer for which he was noted as a member of the Canadien forces.

Before he went to Chicago at the beginning of last season, Howie's goal and point totals dropped almost from the day he joined the Flying Frenchmen in 1924. Twice he led the league in scoring; twice he won the Hart trophy that goes to the player adjudged most valuable to his team; twice he has named as captain of the Canadian Press all-star team.

QUEENS NOSE OUT BELLEVILLE 32-31

Local Team Practically Eliminated by This Loss

Kingston, Jan. 27.—Queen's intermediates scored a surprising 32 to 31 victory over Belleville Y.M.C.A. in a fast E.O.A.A. game played at the Queen's gym Saturday night. The game was just as fast as the score indicates, the ultimate outcome always being in doubt. The loss eliminated Belleville from the running and left Queen's with a championship chance, provided they win their next game.

Burley of Belleville was the high scorer of the game with 13 points, while McMahon of Queen's was close behind with 12. With one exception, every man on the Queen's team broke into the scoring column.

Belleville—Forwards, Faulkner 4, Burley 13; centre, Cole 8; guards, White, Wickerson 2, Ellis, Atkins 3, McLean, Tobe.

Referee—John Edwards.

Jesse Owens Gains Three Places on All-America Team

New York, Jan. 27—(CP)—With the world record performances outweighing United States championship efforts, Jesse Owens, Ohio State's famous negro athlete, gains the distinction today of being awarded a place on the 1935 All-American track and field team. The selection, compiled by Daniel J. Ferris, Secretary-Treasurer of the American Athletic Union, for the Spalding Athletic Almanac, lists Owens for the 200-metre dash, the 200-metre hurdles and the broad running broad jump. The hockey pellet slammed world marks in the yardage equivalent of the two track events and he equalled himself in 26 feet, 8 1-4 inches, all on a single afternoon in the big ten championships last spring.

Four places are awarded to Owens in the all-college team, also selected by Ferris. The negro flier is named for both sprints, as well as the low hurdles and broad jump in collegiate company. The effect of the Ferris list is to establish Owens as the United States No. One track and field athlete for the new Olympic year.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

After a lapse of a few seasons "Irish" from St. Michael's Academy, the old Bay of Quinte Hockey League was revived this year, through the efforts of Frank "Duke" Smith of the Belleville Yacht Club. One night this loop makes its official bow in Belleville when the "Sailors" clash with the Napanee Gibbards. Incidentally the Gibbards have won four games and lost narry a contest, having beaten Trenton three times and trounced the locals in Napanee last Friday night, "Duke" Smith's charges stand second in the group standing and can materially strengthen their hold by taking a fall out of Walter Gerow's Gibbards at the Arena tonight. The "Sailors" were minus the services of their regular goalie, Hinton, last Friday night while a couple of other members of the squad failed to make the trip to Napanee. Skipper Smith feels, that with the return of these players, his squad will take the Wilson-Gerow-Beattie crowd into camp tonight. Incidentally a snappy game is played in this league and the fans are cautioned to not miss this attraction. It will be the sole appearance of the Napanee squad during the regular schedule.

Tonight the local intermediates are scheduled to make their second appearance in Peterboro. Smarting under the 5 to 3 beating they received at the hands of the Chevies on Friday night, the "Redmen" are going to try and take their revenge out on Coach Eddie Wright's crew when they return to the home town for a second fixture. "Of course I like to see the home town win, but that was a real good game, well worth the price of admission," stated one fan over the week-end and he admitted receiving more than his money's worth. We hope the local "Redmen" successfully while watching the game from the sah-box. Another interesting feature of this play displayed by the Chevies, they learned something about the game on Friday night and tried to put it into practice, well then Friday night's game was not a game for the "Redmen" but a gain in the form of lessons for Skipper Thomas has been continually drilling the locals on the subject of playing the hip line properly while on the offensive; maybe his teachings will be more advantageous in the future, now that the locals have had the opportunity of observing another team put into practice just what Skipper Thomas has been preaching all season.

Wednesday evening at the Arena sees the third double-header to be staged in the local senior interscholastic group and we find the B. C. I. "Collegians" meeting Frank Cunningham's C. I. "Crusaders" in the opening game with the Albert College sextette clashing with the Toronto Maple Leafs snapped out of the doldrums and downed the Detroit Red Wings 6 to 1 on Saturday say, but as the Maroons kept up their dizzy pace, the latter still remain leaders of their group. Dale Plays The Game

—BY—

Ann Forester

With the careful kindness of stage people, Ida Curtis had kept the little orphan, and Dale called the shabby, slat-sided boarding house "home" until Ma Curtis drifted on to another city and Dale drifted into the life of the theatre about her.

Always fighting her happiness; breaking her heart trying to struggle up Dale thought bitterly. When had Sandy said that first day when she went to work for him?—Play the game and luck will change.

Well, she thought defiantly, she was playing the game. She had drawn a strange card . . . what would it bring her?

Long moments she sat, chin cupped in hand, brooding brown eyes fastened on the distance. So still she was that the wary small life of the desert dared to creep out into the open. A ground squirrel scampered out into the open and then grew petrified as it sighted her. A rabbit hopped in the shelter of the mesquite and wrinkled its nose inquiringly as it winded her. She heard the tiny squeak of a field mouse in the shrubs at her feet.

The swift desert dusk had fallen when she finally rose and took the way back to town.

The quiet hour had eased her taut nerves. Something of her old gallant spirit had come back. Anyway, this was only for a short time, she told stand and thought Dale Jones silly. This Mimi Carter she would be looking back at this and laughing at it. Next year—oh, surely there was happiness in store for her, thought Dale with the glorious optimism of youth. And these people who peered at her as though she were some strange animal were only characters in a play. Hekd high, a little defiant smile stamped on her lips as she walked past the drug store where Mis Hendricks stood talking to Mis Beebee, feeling both matrons turn to eye her back as she went by. She appeared serenely unconscious of the wide white grin of the hotel clerk as she entered the lobby and continued on up the stairs.

But it was a relief to get to her own room, away from their spying eyes. Dale's pretty erect figure relaxed as she fitted the key in the door. She closed the door and, unlocking it, thought she saw a shimmer in the teeth of all Colt City — particularly Mrs. Hendricks' prevalent smile and the meaningful leer of the night clerk. She turned to fling her hat on the bed, and went cold and frozen in fright.

She was not alone. Over there—a dark hulk . . . A man sprawled out on the bed . . .

CHAPTER 12

HUSBAND AND WIFE

The noise of the door closing had roused the man. He heaved slowly upright and by the gray light seeping through the window Dale saw that it was Brant Kendall.

The girl's first impulse was to run from the room. Her hand was on the door knob before her wits returned, and she realized how ridiculous she would look running down into the lighted lobby calling for protection against the man she had married. Undoubtedly this was the meaning behind that insolent white smile of the clerk. She would-n't give Colt City another choice morsel of gossip to chew upon. Dale decided defiantly. She clenched her hands hard and moved slowly over to the man sitting on the bed.

"You—you wanted to see me?" She hated her voice for shaking.

Even through the thick light she was struck by something strange in Brant's intent gaze. He was studying his eyes, as though it did difficulty in seeing her. He had been drinking again, she thought, with a little rush of scorn.

He suddenly stood up and appeared so tall that the girl took an instinctive backward step.

"Why did you come here?" she asked sharply, to cover the fright in her heart.

When he did not answer, but only continued to look at her in that queer, searching fashion, she rushed into frightened speech.

"Because we . . . because we're married, that gives you no right to come here . . . You said our marriage . . ."

She broke off with a frightened gasp as the man moved.

"Married . . ." he said slowly. Then save for the white light in his smile coming toward her through the gray gaze. She smothered a little scream as he suddenly grasped her by her upper arms.

"My wife . . . There was a fierce, exultant note in that which made her heart leap. "My . . . my wife . . ."

"Oh . . . please!" It was a frightened whisper, smothered as the man crushed his head down on hers.

Dale was helpless in that grip; feeling the gray room real about her, feeling a weak wave of terror wash over her. Then, suddenly sharply through her fright came a primitive delight in his savage strength. For the moment her heart leaped to the ardor of his kiss, a moment sweet and heady, which carried her out of herself. Tall and strong . . . the very masculine strength of him called to something essentially feminine in herself. Then she had wrenched out of his arms and had slipped around to the other side of the bed to face him with blazing eyes.

"How dare you come up here like this! If you—if you don't go I'll have someone put you out. Oh—you had no right to do this! No right!" Her voice shrilled when she had left him. He was shaking his head slightly from side to side, as though something inside it bothered him.

"No right . . ." he repeated thickly. "That's a funny thing for you to say, Mimi darling. Who else has the right if I haven't? You said yourself there never could be anyone else. And now we're married . . . married at last, sweetheart."

Frightened wonder held Dale motionless, watching the man come toward her. His clasp had none of the rough ardor of the moment before. It was strangely gentle, strangely gentle, too, was his voice, a voice no one in Colt City had ever heard from Brant Kendall.

"I didn't mean to frighten you, Mimi dear . . ." His hand down to stroked the girl's hair. He smiled down tenderly into her face. "Why, I wouldn't hurt you for the world, don't you see that?"

Dale was staring up through the thick light with wide eyes, and what she read in his face made her heart

"This fool, Ivitch, has killed the man who saved my life!" cried Zora. "Who is he?" asked Romero. "I do not know," replied Zora. "He has never spoken to me. He does not understand any language with which I am familiar." "He is not dead," cried Ivitch.

Romero knelt and examined Tarzan's wound. "He is only stunned. I have seen men hit thus before," he said. "He may be unconscious for a long time or he may not, but I am sure that he will not die." "Who do you suppose he is?" asked Zora.

Zora shook her head. "I have no idea," she said. "I only know that he is as splendid as he is mysterious." "I know who he is," said a black. "I had better kill him for he he will be your worst enemy." "What do you mean?" demanded Ivitch.

"He is Tarzan of the Apes," said the black. "I know him once before, and he never forgets Tarzan of the Apes." "Yours was a lucky shot, Ivitch," said the leader, "and now you may as well finish what you started." "Kill him, you mean?" demanded Ivitch.

"Yes," she said quietly, "I see. Will you—will you let me go—just for a minute, I'll be right back."

"Don't leave me, Mimi," he begged. "I dreamed you left me once . . . and I died. That is, most of me died. You wouldn't really do that, Mimi?"

"I—I promise I won't leave you." the girl's voice shook. She was gently unlacing the thin brown fingers which held her fast. She pulled out of his reluctant arms and pressed him gently down on the bed. "Please let me. I'll be there until—until I come back."

She forced herself to move quietly over to the door and open it. A moment later, then she was out in the hall, trying to turn the key noiselessly in the lock. Slender figure pressed against the crack, she listened. She heard the man lie down and draw a deep sigh. Heard the protesting squeak of the bed springs as he stretched out on them. Then . . . silence.

Dale ran lightly along the hall and down the stairs. Her first impulse was to summon help from the desk, but at the sight of the night clerk whom she hated she pulled herself together. With an assumption of calm she walked out of the hotel. But out in the warm gray dusk the terror gripped her again Down the cemented length of Main Street she speeded, never even seeing the curious glances which followed her. Down the highway to the open percar in the town whom she could trust . . .

Sandy's little lunchroom, lighted up for the evening, gleamed like an island of light in the surrounding grayness. The Waltje[Kid was alone after the dinner rush, leaning on his shirtsleeved elbows, reading the evening paper spread on the counter before him. He looked up as the girl ran in, but one glance at her wide eyes brought him around the counter in alarm.

Between her gasps Dale got it out. "Sandy, you go right up to my room at the hotel and get Brant Kendall. He's locked in—never you key—" In her agitation she had grasped two handfuls of shirt sleeve and was shaking Sandy back and forth. "And, Sandy—get a doctor. He's sick—awfully sick. I'm afraid. He was calling me 'Mimi'—he thinks I'm someone else, and he looks—he looks dreadful. Hurry—hurry!"

No need to tell Sandy to hurry. He was already his apron off and started on the run, and big pounding footsteps died out on the highway.

Automatically the girl walked over to the mirror and smoothed her hair she picked up her powder puff from the shelf below where she kept it and patted it sharply on her face.

In a small, fierce tone she said aloud to the silent night: "I'll bet that Mimi is a little beast!"

CHAPTER 13

CAUGHT IN THE NET

Colt City hummed with more joyful animation than it had shown since the big rumor on the south side of town had come in, or the baker's wife had eloped with one of the distillers.

Before noon the next day, every man, woman and child in town knew that they had taken Brant Kendall, raving with fever, to the hospital. And that pretty haired actress-girl he'd married was still working down at the highway as the Waffle Kid's lunch shack.

Funny sort of girl she was . . . you couldn't tell what she thought about the whole affair. Go down and order a waffle or a hot dog, as an excuse to talk to her and you'd spend your money for nothing. She wouldn't be drawn into conversation and if you could make anything from her frozen white face and remote brown eyes—well, you were cleverer than the rest of Colt City became the visible sign of the unity of our race, as our loyalty to him became the sign of our determination to remain united. Future historians will say that it was in King George's reign that the British Empire took its final and most glorious shape; it was although nations held together by a King's hand, reserved never to strike the hand, but to work with it for the British destiny. Perhaps another man could have understood what we know is that King George V did it. That was his greatness. That is his reward. He served his generation by the Will of God."

During the service the choir rendered the anthems, "Now the Laborer's Task is Over" and Mrs. Ira Morton Brown sang as a solo "My Father's House". Mrs. Daff at the organ played appropriate selections, and "O Rest in the Lord" and Chopin's Funeral March by the congregation reverently standing. The pulpit and altar of the Methodist church were draped in black and royal purple.

BRIDGE STREET UNITED

"King George was without doubt the greatest monarch of his time and of modern times" said Rev. Dr. James Semple at Bridge Street United Church. Sunday evening. His throne and reign were not swayed in the general upsetting of the palaces and of the world in the past twenty-one years. He possessed a princely interest in the homeliest of his subjects. "King George made democracy safe for royalty" the minister stated. He had come to the throne almost unknown and in his reign many succeeders events had taken place, the British coal strike, the Irish Home Rule problem, the opening of the North Ireland parliament, the Great War, the institution of the League of Nations, and international conferences on economics and armaments. All these he left his impression upon the Empire and the world.

King George succeeded to the Empire as a family, and the kingship as the fatherly head of a household.

"Was it not significant that it should be a boy who should announce to the crowd outside of the palace that the King was dead!" for he loved children.

The late King attended every international football match, shook hands with the players and presented the symbol of victory. He was one of the finest shots in the empire before he came to the throne. He was a famous yachtsman. Boys and girls should remember him as a stamp collector.

He received expenditures of the royal household in wartime. His concern for soldiers and for hoisting his devotion as shown in his deathbed message to the "royal family" his friendliness which led men to break traditions and regulations to try to speak to the king, his simplicity indicated in the scenes at Sandringham, his love for the Church, the like of which no other country in the world can produce, were exhibited. He feared, he loved, he served his people. Head of the Church of England, he was a member of the Scottish Church. He sent his representative to the union meetings of British Methodists.

He went to church, engaged in the services and especially enjoyed singing.

Prayers were offered for the King Edward Night, the Queen Mother and the royal family.

Hymns sung were "Praise, my soul, the King of Heaven", "Rock of Ages" "For all the Saints".

At the morning service the organist played "Chopin's Funeral March", and "Nearer My God to Thee" was sung. The pulpit and altar railing and communion table were draped with rose, purple and black behind a draped portrait of the King, with a white spray of flowers on the left of the portrait. In the evening Dr. Semple spoke on King's favorite hymn "Abide With Me" and the hymns sung were "For all the Saints", "Nearer My God to Thee" and "Abide, with Me".

John Street United Church

At John Street United Church, Rev. Robert Hall took the ancient cry, "The King is Dead, Long Live the King", for his sermons, developing the theme along that line. In the first, "The King is Dead", was a tribute of love and devotion to the memory of the late King George Fifth, and the second, "Long Live the King", was a welcome to the man, Edward Eighth, who has now ascended the throne. Both services of reverent worshippers attended both services and in keeping with the occasion the dais and the pulpit were draped in mourning of royal blue and black.

The King is Dead

In paying tribute to the memory of His Late Majesty, Rev. Hall said: "He held out no promise of something deeper than respect, warmer than homage. Why is it that his death has so stirred the hearts of millions in the world over and spread a pall of gloom over the scattered Dominions to the furthermost parts of the earth? It is because he was a symbol of Empire. In a true sense the King is the nation itself; he provides a personality for its duties, a standard and for its traditions and memories.

Continuing, he declared that George Fifth, had given to the word "king" a new meaning, a new significance, for he had ruled not so much as a sovereign and a symbol but as the head of a great family. It was in that capacity the Dominions thought of him.

He asserted that the respect shown by the world in his death was not only a tribute for the throne but for the man himself, "Nothing can command respect and devotion but love," he said. "The great power he wielded might have corrupted weaker natures, but character grew into king's."

Quietly he spoke of the troubled years of his reign through which he continued to reign with human understanding, feeling and anxiety. Clemenceau might come and go according to the sway of politics but still he had to endure.

In conclusion he said: "The end though providentially postponed was inevitable. Today, the Empire mourns the passing of a great king, a good friend, a husband and father. He served the Empire as a king in the sense of the most overtly, the strongest in the world," said Rev. Mr. Wright. "Queen Victoria ruled by Divine Right of Kings" said the speaker, "but a new conception of democracy came with the accession of King George V and he made it his task, democracy a living thing. Nations turned to Britain for guidance and all his life the Pilot of his ship as he walked the quarter deck with Jesus Christ. His reign was filled with crisis and they left their imprint on his thin frame but at no time did he swerve from his allegiance and even in his dying moments he inquired, "How is the Empire?" King George gave a new conception of Kingship to the world and we will forever remember his name and works".

Emmanuel Reformed Episcopal Church

Emmanuel Reformed Episcopal Church was draped in mourning to mark the passing of His late Majesty, King George Fifth. The Sunday morning service opened with the hymn "Nearer My God to Thee" sung by the congregation, alsa prayer following. Adapted prayers for the King's Majesty, for the Queen Mother and for the Royal Family were offered.

Bishop Marshall, the rector, urged the members of the congregation to attend the official memorial service at the Collegiate Institute Auditorium on Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock.

Victoria Ave. Baptist

At Victoria Avenue Baptist Church in the absence of the Rev. A. G. Sinclair through the death of his grandmother, the services were taken by the Rev. L. S. Wight, who spoke on the life and reign of His late Gracious Majesty King George, who was held up as an example of devotion to duty in high places and nobility in his personal and family life.

Appropriate hymns were sung for the occasion and the choir rendered anthems. There was a large picture of the late monarch bordered in mourning and draped in purple and black drapery surrounding the pulpit.

Holloway Street

Rev. R. E. Newman, pastor of Holloway Street United Church, delivered a most inspiring sermon on Sunday evening, on the last words of King George V, "How is the Empire?", while in the morning a memorial service was conducted. Two minutes of silence was observed before the sermon in the morning, while Clifford Tempest, organist and choirmaster, played "Ode to the Empire", while the offering was taken. At the close of the service, the congregation joined while the National Anthem was softly played, but none took part in the singing. The text of the sermon was taken from Nehemiah, chapter thirteen, verse twenty-six "Yet among many nations was there no King like unto him, who was beloved by his God". The pastor traced the life of the late departed Monarch, and the many fine qualities that were manifested by him in his reign.

St. Thomas' Episcopal

The memorial service for His late Majesty King George V. at St. Thomas' Church on Sunday morning was most impressive. There was present by a large congregation. Special hymns were sung and special prayers were said. The sermon was delivered by the vicar, the Rev. A. A. Beauchamp Hodgson, upon which occasion the feelings of His late Majesty and of the great sorrow brought by his death to the people of the British Empire. To his people he was more than king, more than any preceding sovereign. By modern invention his active presence and his voice had been made familiar to all parts of his great Empire; his personality and his character had made real to millions of his subjects and message coming to them conveyed the sense of duty well performed. Honors were received with pride and affection. Anxieties were shared and met during a time of great stress and difficulty. The duties of his Kingly office wisely and well; duty to him was not a hardship, but a delight. He left a beautiful and congenial home life of His late Majesty and of how good Mother was remembered by her children; their home life was a great influence for good. The sister of the congregation to remember in their prayers the Queen Mother, the members of the Royal Family and the new King, Edward the VIII.

The musical portion of the service were beautifully rendered by the choir under the direction of Mr. Ross Hunter and with Mr. Ernest Wheatley as guest organist. After the benediction and congregation stood while Mr. Wheatley played in a most excellent manner the Dead March in Saul. The recessional hymn was:

"Lead kindly light amid the encircling gloom,
Lead thou me on;
The night is dark, and I am far from home,
Lead thou me on."

Thy name, O Jesu, be forever blest.
Alleluia."

Evening Service

At Evensong the Vicar preached an excellent sermon, taking for his text the words contained in the 19th chapter of the 1st Book of Samuel and the 34th verse: "And Samuel said to all the people that are with whom the Lord hath chosen, that there is none like him among all the people? and all the people shouted and said, God save the king."

In his opening remarks the Vicar referred again to the sorrow brought to the Empire by the death of His Majesty King George. His chief discourse, however, dealt with the coming to the throne of King Edward VIII. He referred to his constant training from early life to fit himself to fill the high office of King and the British Empire should wreak call him to assume that great responsibility. As a sailor and naval officer he received training without special privileges and during the Great War he had served faithfully and well, manifesting great courage and character.

From the former King he now the new king there was no break—there was continuity. In the words uttered: King George died and immediately the Court Physician turned to the late Prince of Wales and said, "Your Majesty, your father is dead." From that moment the whole of life had fell upon his shoulders and through his great grief he has bravely "carried on." King Edward has expressed his purpose to follow in the steps of his father, Sailors. For years he had been the Ambassador at Large of the British Empire and he had been a means of cementing the friendship of all peoples in the Empire. That he inherits the same Divine wisdom and guidance should be the prayer of all his loyal subjects.

At the close of the Service the National Anthem was sung.

Alliance Tabernacle

Christian Science Tribute

At the regular Sunday service held by Belleville Christian Society in the Oddfellows' Temple, fitting tribute was paid to the memory of our late King, George the Fifth.

A special message from the Christian Science Board of Directors, Boston, Massachusetts, read at the service was as follows:

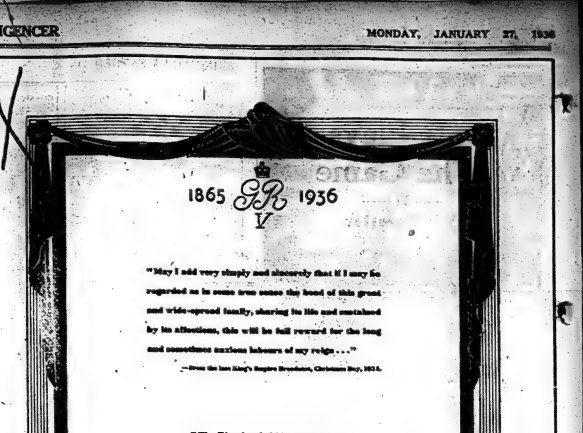
"King George the Fifth of Great Britain, Ireland, the British Dominions beyond the seas, Emperor of India, has passed away greatly beloved by the people of his empire. When in nineteen hundred and one our leader asked the first members of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts to "convene for sacred purpose and remember our deep sympathy with the bereaved household in their great world's loss, in the sudden departure of the late lamented Victoria," she spoke of the Queen as "the honored, revered, beloved."

(The First Church of Christ Scientist and Miscellany).

How aptly her words apply to the sovereign who has just passed from the scene of his earthly labors. The love of every Christian Scientist is given to his Queen, greatly loved as his himself was, to his family and to the whole British people. And they pray for Edward Prince of Wales, who now reigns in his father's stead that as King Edward the Eighth divine wisdom and love will plentifully age with him and support him throughout all the years of his reign.

Following the lesson on "Truth" the service closed with singing the National Anthem.

Fire Truck Chase Flaming Garbage Cart



Brantford, Ont., Jan. 27.—(CP)—Racing down the street with the contents of his garbage cart ablaze and the fire department roaring behind him, Robert Craig today beat the department to the dump and unloaded the burning refuse.

It was the first time here a fire truck was put to extremes.

As soon as the cart reached the dump, its load was tipped and the garbage flung out. Firemen extinguished the blaze with snow.

"May I add very simply and sincerely that if I may be regarded as in some sense the head of this great and wide-spread family, sharing in his and sustained by its affections, this will be full reward for the long and sometimes anxious labours of my reign . . ."

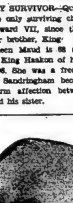
Doubt Mme. Lupescu Went With King Carol

Vienna, Jan. 27.— (AP) — The shrewd mysterious movements of Mme. Magda Lupescu, mistress of King Carol, and reputed to be able to run Rumania, have caused a stir in Vienna, causing a new buzz of speculation about her.

Vienna friends of the red-haired beauty, however, said they doubted reports she was aboard the special train, which carried Carol to London the day after the death of King George V. The reports said Mme. Lupescu planned to leave for Rumania at once.

It is known, however, Mme. Lupescu head of the Royal Camarilla, is the dominating force and the woman of the Balkans, is having her troubles with gallstones and freckles.

She will be 36 years old this year and recently she became rather plump. Friends convinced her she must regain the slim figure she possessed, when she was known as a European beauty.



She ordered a variety of reducing machines, which have been installed in her palatial home in Bucharest.

There are, however, more important worries for Mme Lupescu, Rumored efforts are being made by the leaders of the National Peasant Party to force the King promised leadership of the State, to induce her to leave the country.

So far, however, these efforts have been without result.

ONLY SURVIVOR—Queen Maud is the only surviving child of King Edward VII, since the death of her brother, King George V. Queen Maud is 68 and married to King Haakon of Norway since 1896. She was a frequent visitor to Sandringham because of the warm affection between George and his sister.

FORECASTS COLD TILL WEDNESDAY

Chicago, Jan. 27—(AP)— Even forecaster C. R. Lloyd thieved as he sat behind piles of maps and data to predict at least another 21 hours of subzero cold would grip most of the United States, which looks for about a death list of at least 225 persons since Wednesday.

Every indication, he said, pointed to a continuance of the intense cold, which would send the mercury to new lows every day, at least in Chicago until Wednesday and probably Thursday.

The cold wave was resolved by most of the weather observers in other parts of the country.

The frigid wave which generally had avoided the Pacific coast state today centered the State of Washington. The abnormal weather, described as the worst of the 20th century extended south into Oklahoma, Texas and part of Florida.

More than 9,000 troops, for many sections. A light fall started at midnight in New York City, clothesmen will mingle with the crowds watching the procession from King Edward, his three brothers and visiting monarchs walk behind King George, coffin, as they did, when it was brought from Sandringham.

A fleet of army radio trucks was brought to insure accurate timing of orders to troops along the milelong route.

The procession will leave Westminster Hall at 9.45 a.m. (4.45 a.m., E.S.T.) for Paddington Station. The funeral train will reach Windsor at 12.10 p.m., and the funeral service at St. George's chapel, Windsor, will start at 1.15 p.m., 15 minutes later, the United Kingdom will observe two minutes of silence.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, who attended King George at the monarch's death, will read the principal memorial service Sunday at Westminster Abbey, with officiate at the funeral service, assisted by the Archbishop of York and the Bishop of Winchester.

The locomotive drawing the funeral train will be the one King George had named Brown in 1934, when he and Queen Mary visited the railroad shops.

King Edward decided to wear his naval uniform on the final day. He will be accompanied by his brothers, the Dukes of York, Gloucester and Kent.

No demonstration was made.

ROYAL BROTHERS MOUNT GUARD

Impressive Scenes in Streets And in St. George's Chapel, Windsor Castle, Where Simple Service is Held

By ROBERTS JONES

(Copyright, 1936, By The Associated Press)

London, Jan. 28.—King George V, late Sovereign of the British Empire, was laid to rest in royal splendor today in London and went to his last resting place in the royal tomb beneath the ancient St. George's Chapel at Windsor Castle.

The funeral procession began promptly as the notorious Big Ben of Westminster Tower chimed 9:45 a.m., (4:45 a.m., E.S.T.).

Across the ancient Parliament Square, the bells of Westminster Abbey, where George was crowned a quarter of a century ago, took up a dolorous toll as the royal coffin, which rested in state for four days, was carried out of Westminster Hall and placed softly upon a gun carriage.

A great crowd stood silently and tearfully as the new King Edward VIII, his brothers, representative royal and diplomatic mourners fell in line behind the gun carriage which was drawn to Paddington Station, and placed there on a train for Windsor.

Queen Mary, heavily veiled, and the other women of the royal party rode in carriages immediately behind them—Edward, the Duke of York, Gloucester and Kent and the five visiting Kings.

Drawn by Sailors

The funeral gun carriage was transported by 142 sailors, 100 pulling on ropes in front of the carriage and 40 holding the draglopes behind.

A mile away, in front of St. James' Palace, the head of the procession received a wireless signal, and the cortege was placed on the gun carriage, and the cortege started.

Honor military commands, the clatter of horses' hoofs and the ponderous tread of men on muffled drums mingled with the tolling of the bells and the occasional sobs of the crowd.

The funeral carriage passed down Whitehall, where the Cenotaph, standing in the street between Government buildings, each window, packed with onlookers.

The cortege rested to the last through the Horseguards Parade where each June, King George reviewed his troops on the official birthday until his death the night of January 20, at Sandringham.

Down the Mall

The route led down the Mall, within sight of Buckingham Palace, and then turned sharply to the right past St. James' Palace to Piccadilly, Hyde Park, Knightsbridge, Kensington and Hammersmith district, but today garbed in deepest mourning.

King Edward walked slowly behind the draped coffin, on which rested the crown, the orb and the sceptre and the insignia of the Order of the Garter.

The King's was seen to maintain his composure by an effort as the cortege moved through the streets long so familiar to his father.

The rain, which fell heavily during the early morning, stopped and the sun broke through the clouds as the procession moved on through the streets.

King Edward wore the uniform of Admiral of the Fleet; the Duke of York wore an Air Force uniform; the Duke of Gloucester, a Hussar uniform, and the Duke of Kent a Naval uniform.

Crowd Breaks Through

Long before the procession reached the marble arch by way of the east carriage drive of Hyde Park, the huge crowd broke through

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Nicholas, N.Y., Jan. 28 (CP)—The same many drift and frigid winds howl but they no longer will prevent Postmaster Charles Mc-Clay and Rural Route 2 Carrier Frank Bennett from hearing regular Tuesday morning services. They need now only to pick up their mail, warm it, and settle themselves comfortably to listen.

This was made possible through the co-operation of the Postal and telephone company, which served most of the residents in the vicinity, first of Bradford County, Pennsylvania. All a subscriber has to do is to call the exchange and ask "prepaid, 1st."

Alexandria, Ont., Jan. 28 (CP)—Alexandria's fire brigade was called recently by shouting and gesticulating George Grigsby, negro self-confessed hobo, who turned in a fire alarm and drew a crowd. Grigsby explained his act was prompted by an utter atheistic means of attracting an audience.

Chicago, Jan. 28 (CP)—Held by Calcaqo police as the result of international officials charged they participated in a bank holdup earlier this month, Frank Vancouver, Charles Mitchell, 28, alias James Lawler, ex-convict, and David Anderson, 36, faced extradition today.

Sydney, N.S., Jan. 28 (CP)—A band of Blackfoot Indians, swathed in blankets and with feathers in Gleighen, Alberta, have replaced Santa Claus in Cape Breton mining operations after hearing Santa Claus was a white man, so his Christmas message from the bowels of Caledonia mines.

Toronto, Jan. 28 (CP)—Two men were under police charge today for operating a gaming house after police were locked out entirely for being on the premises at the time of the raid. City Tribute To Late King Solemn, Deep

In an expensive service, which, though almightily itself in character, stood in wide contrast to the hearts of the 1,500 or more citizens who were present, Belleville paid her own particular tribute to the memory of His Late Gracious Majesty, King George V in the auditorium of the Collegiate Institute at 11 o'clock this morning.

Even this serious hall was unable to hold the hundreds of residents of all classes who assembled to complete of the building long before the hour of service.

The ceremony lasted less than three-quarters of an hour, though its very dignity and nature was perhaps without parallel in the history of this city. Never before has such responsiveness been witnessed, in the hearts of the people, nature. The fervid singing of the massed audience, the deep solemnity solemn, the subdued music of the Belleville Municipal Band, the specially arranged hymns and service,

KING COMFORTS QUEEN MOTHER

In Great Fageantry of Sorrow Young Ruler Thinks of Mother

London, Jan. 28 (CP)—In a great pageantry of sorrow the youthful King Edward VIII, accompanied by nearly 500,000,000 subjects, seemed a lonely figure today. Only his strong physique enabled him to withstand the emotional and physical strain of the last four days.

His aides marvel at his strength. The last ten days he has only a few hours of sleep each night. But the very late last night making last minute preparations for the funeral after keeping a half hour visit with his brothers in the Duke of Kent's Westminster Hall. This ramble he was the first of the royal mourners to leave the room.

Not sparing himself in observance of the proprieties, it was suggested the king moved to the side of his mother in the hall to speak a few words of consolation and was often as possible comforted her by his near presence.

KINGS AND RULERS

London Sees Greatest Royal Funeral in its Experience

London, Jan. 28 (CP-Havas)—The funeral cortege of King George V. was the most impressive in the history of Old London.

At the head marched a general staff officer, followed by detachments of the Household Cavalry and bands of the Third Regiment of Riflemen and the Cavalry of the Royal Household.

Next followed detachments of the Colonial Forces, representing the Territorial units of which the King was an honorary colonel. Then came Infantry regiments, foot guards, dragoons and hussars, preceding the high representatives of the naval and military forces of thirty-one nations.

They were followed by the almoners of the King, military and naval aides-de-camp, equerries, members of the air council, colonels of regiments, officers in the service of names, generals of the Imperial General Staff, admirals of the fleet and of the admiralty and aides-de-camp of the late monarch.

Then came the military bands, those of the army, the air force, and the navy, followed by an artillery band and a group of the Queen's Body Company, Highlanders, their bagpipes silent.

Further back, the youthful Duke of Norfolk, Earl Marshal of England, who organized the funeral cortege, marched at the head of the dignitaries of the royal house.

The Valets of the Chamber and the King's Post Valet walked just before the gun carriage bearing the body.

The convoy consisted of two patrol files of royal servants surrounding the gun carriage which bore the King's body. The gun carriage was drawn by 150 sailors. The King's red and gold flag was borne by a colonel of the late sovereign's household.

He was followed at a short distance by the Dukes of Kent, York and Gloucester, all in general uniform, paces ahead of other members of the Royal Family, attended by an aide-de-camp.

Then came the Earl of Athlone, governor of Canada, brother of the cousin of Queen Mary; King Haakon of Norway and King Gustaf Adolf, and the Earl of Harewood, brother of the Princess Royal.

GOV. ALLEN, LA., DIES SUDDENLY

Recently Elected to Take Huey Long's Seat in The U. S. Senate

Baton Rouge, La., Jan. 28 (AP)—Governor O. K. Allen died unexpectedly today at 10:40 a.m. Central Standard Time, from what was announced as a cerebral hemorrhage.

Governor Allen, chief spokesman for the late Senator Huey P. Long only recently was elected to succeed his deceased chief in the senate. Allen was the actor in the election which carried the Long forces to a smashing victory.

Upon the death of Long at the hands of a gunman in the state capitol of Louisiana, Allen became the head of the Long machine.

Governor Allen's death slightly disarranged and she was very pale as she walked with dignity and poise as the Guards approached with the gun carriage.

It was the Princess Elizabeth, 9 years old, who should fate decree one day sit on the throne of England.

She looked there for an instant at thought puzzled and a bit frightened, a youngster out to bring her back into the station house where she waited until her mother, Duchess of York, came to join her.

Five-year-old Princess Margaret Rose was standing on the balcony of a hotel near Paddington, accompanied by her nurse when the cortege went by. One hand in her attendant's, the other tightly clasping the balcony rail, she looked on in silence as the King's casket on the gun carriage passed by.

Liberal Leader Implements Promise Made in Last Campaign

Ottawa, Jan. 28 (CP)—A searching investigation of the circumstances leading to the closing down of Dominion Textile Company's artificial silk plant at Sherbrooke, Que., was promised to-day in the house of commons by Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced last night Justice Hon. Ernest Lapointe, K.C., Saskatchewan speaker, would be appointed a royal commissioner whose duty it would be to investigate complaints from Sherbrooke, reported more than a week ago, that the silk company had made 1,000 idle by suddenly closing its doors. Premier Hepburn decided before taking any action the whole matter of rayon and other textile industries should be investigated by Royal Commission in the public interest, the cost compilation justified such action.

Premier Hepburn was in Ottawa today and will take up his task at once, armed with reams of reference which empower him to examine all pertinent aspects of the industry, including profits, wages, business and dividends.

Announcement of the shutdown in Sherbrooke stated that the action was due to the competition from Japanese rayon which were reported lower than the production costs.

The order-in-council, sponsored by Finance Minister Charles Dunning, authorizing the royal commissioners owed is to their workers and the Sherbrooke community, but is primarily close up unless conditions made it absolutely necessary, particularly from the point of view of the protection of the customs tariff.

This action by the government recalls the campaign promises of Mr. Mackenzie King that "a measure of general election contest, to the effect if certain industries which had threatened to close down if the tariff policies carried out their threat they would be taken over by would have them investigated and possibly taken over by the government.

Windsor, England, Jan. 28—The long journeying of George V ended today in the Royal vault of St. George's Chapel, the burial crypt of great Britain's Kings.

King George's body came to Windsor at 1:28 p.m., 23 minutes later than scheduled. The delay was in strange contrast to the joyous mourning crowds in London which delayed the passage of the cortege by that many minutes.

The journey passed in two minutes of silence at 1.30 p.m. it was the moment during which the coffin was to have been lowered into the crypt but the delay in the marching of the cortege set the time of actual burial later.

The coffin, on which the body was brought by railroad train to Windsor. One hundred thousand mourners were assembled along the mile-and-a-half route from the railroad station to St. George's Chapel.

Guard Carried Coffin

An honor guard of tall soldiers carried the coffin from the train to the purple carpet to the gun carriage waiting at the station. The procession started its uphill journey to Windsor Castle.

The Tomb of Curfew Tower rang out across the ancient battlements of the Royal Palace—tolling for the King's passing.

The new King, Edward VIII, and the three brothers for the second time today fell in behind their father's coffin in the walk to procession.

They were preceded in the cortege by the widowed Queen Mary who rode in a carriage drawn by Windsor greys.

USE OF INSULTING LANGUAGE LAID TO 2 TRANSIENTS

Police Arrest Pair Alleged to Have Displayed Disrespect to His Late Majesty

Alleged to have used insulting language in reference to His Late Majesty, George the Fifth, resulted in the arrest of two transients on Front Street, last night. Although one of the accused men had been previously taken into custody by P. C. Arnott on a charge of drunkenness, it was not until the party arrived at the police station and a local lady informed the authorities of the disgraceful manner in which the two men had acted in front of the Canadian Department Store, in which window is displayed, in regard, a portrait of His Late Majesty. It was alleged by the lady, and her two daughters, that the pair of transients had used insulting language in reference to His late King George and in their presence.

The two men, giving their names as Wm. Carling, 60 years of age, Cornwall, and Chas. Montgomery, Montreal, today were arraigned before Magistrate R. J. Baker, K. C., on an impromptu court and remanded in custody on a nominal charge of drunkenness, to appear Friday.

According to P. C. Arnott, who arrested Montgomery on a charge of intoxication, the latter had not seen pan handling on the street. Carling followed the officer and his prisoner to the police station where Carling asked for a night's lodging. Carling was left with his partner, Lester Mrs. L. Fry and her two daughters and with the police station also identified Carling and Montgomery as being the men who had used insulting language in reference to His Late Majesty in front of the C.D.S. store in the presence.

R. C. Donnan, K.C., who appeared in the police station at the time, intimated, that subsequent charges of inciting disturbances in public would be laid in the second instance, but that charges against Carling and Montgomery were remanded to the custody of the common jail.

Observation

Last Bell Tolled for 70 Minutes

In Canada's Capital the muffled strokes of the Great Bell signalled the beginning of observation, lasting the minute the passing of 70 years in the dead King's life.

At Kingston a memorial service was held in St. George's Anglican Cathedral and Requiem Mass was sung in St. Mary's Cathedral. Another service was held in Convocation Hall, Queen's University, and at 3 o'clock a volley of 70 guns was fired at Barriefield.

Memorial toll of church bells proclaimed to Peterboro the sorrow that has engulfed a whole empire. Flags, flying at half-mast, at Oshawa were closed for the day and the churches, where memorial services were held were filled to capacity.

At Woodstock the Salvationist corps of Knox Presbyterian Church, largest in the city, failed to hold the throng that turned out to pay tribute to the dead monarch. An overflow assembly was arranged for the church's Sunday School building.

Little Falls Mines, Jan. 28 — (AP)—The home town of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh observed the death of the famous aviator's father and urged an international campaign to abolish the privacy he seeks.

A resolution passed by the Little Falls Board of Trade, of which the Colonel is an honorary member, asked Democratic leaders with respect to the Lindbergh penalty and requested its international bearings be given a start in a campaign against over-zealous of the Lindbergh's domestic life.

Citizens In Mourning

Long before the hour of service citizens, many of them dressed in deep mourning, found their way to the school and the seats were filled to ten-thirty o'clock, from the armouries, medals glinting on scarlet, officers and men of the local Argyll Light Infantry with returned veterans and the various local units marched through the streets to the collegiate where they took their seats and found their own seating arrangements. Members of the city council acted as ushers, directing citizens during the service and finding seating accommodation.

Colorful in their dress uniforms, local officers of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and fellow officers of the Ontario Provincial Police occupied seats at the front of the audience. Present also in uniform were Scouts of the local sixth B troops. Members of the local Kiwanis, Rotary and Kinsmen, the Board of Education and other fraternal societies attended in a body. Accommodation had been arranged at the front for the Daughters of the British Empire. Lending a further touch of colour were the uniforms of the Girl Guides. Firemen, also in uniform, were on hand in various parts of the building for the protection of the public.

Solemn Hush.

Over the huge audience came a solemn hush as the hour of eleven o'clock arrived. And as the curtains parted, Major Wm. Ponton, flanked by the Rev. Dr. James Semple, the Rev. A. Beaudoin, president of the Belleville Ministerial Association, in charge of the service and the Rev. W. J. Waller, advanced to the centre of the stage.

Major Ponton took the part in the commemoration services for our late Sovereign, King George V, explained Mayor Hill. "At this time we will observe the special two minutes' silence."

As the many hundreds rose and stood with bowed heads and for minutes slowly ticked off absolute silence reigned throughout the large hall. Then apart from the band, seated in position on the stage and directed by Bandmaster Gilbert, and the massed voices took up the strains of the solemn hymn, "O God Our Help in Ages Past."

Sentences and Prayers.

The Rev. A. Beaudoin, Payne, began to read the sentences of the order for the burial of the dead, "I am the Resurrection and the life, saith the Lord, he that believeth in me though he were dead yet shall he live: and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die." He continued to read:

"Let not your heart be troubled" (St. John 14, 1 and 2), "We know that my Redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth (Job 19, 25), and "We brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out. The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord." (Timothy 6, 7, and Job 1, 21).

Rev. Dr. Semple then led in the responsive reading of the nineteenth psalm "Lord, thou hast been our refuge from one generation to another."

The lesson, read by Rev. W. J. Waller was taken from Revelation, chapter 21, verses 1-6, and chapter 22, verses 1-5, the same lesson as was read by the Archbishop of Canterbury at the funeral service in St. George's Chapel, Windsor Castle today.

The Belleville Men's Chorus, directed by Mr. Geo. Dafoe, sang with deep feeling "Crossing the Bar" by Tennyson, the setting of A. D. Crowter. Mr. Abe Chaplin played.

Committal Sentences

Rev. Mr. Payne, then read: "Man that is born of woman hath but a short time to live, and is full of misery" — and repeated the prayer: "Forasmuch as it hath pleased Almighty God..." and the prayers Lord have mercy upon us, Christ have mercy upon us, Lord have mercy upon us" of the Lord's prayer, and the prayer "Almighty God the Father of Our Lord Jesus Christ who is the Resurrection and the Life ..."

The "Dead March in Saul" was played by the band, this poignant expression of grief in musical form being powerfully rendered while the gathering solemnly stood.

Rev. Mr. Payne continued with the prayers—those for His Majesty King George, Queen Mary, Queen Mother and the members of the Royal Family—and then pronounced the benediction.

The assemblage slowly dispersed after the singing of the National Anthem.

ST. MICHAEL'S CHURCH

On this day of Empire mourning for our late beloved monarch King George, a service was held in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel. The church bell began tolling at ten o'clock, continuing until ten-thirty with one stroke every half minute. At ten-thirty a large congregation assembled when a Requiem Mass was celebrated for the faithful departed.

ST. THOMAS CHURCH

There was a celebration of the Holy Communion this morning at St. Thomas' Church, Rev. Canon Young celebrant being the Rev. A. Beaudoin Payne, vicar.

JEWISH SYNAGOGUE

A special memorial service was held at the Jewish Synagogue today in honour of the late King. King George V. Rabbi Gerstel, who conducted the service in his many addresses to the late King, mentioned that under the late King, who was always considerate of anything respecting the welfare of his subjects, had helped the Jewish people in their many endeavours to establish a national home in Palestine. At the close of the service, a service of blessing was held for the ruling Monarch, King Edward VIII.

R. E. Wemp Speaks on British-Israel Truth

Mr. R. E. Wemp, District Organizer for the British Israel-World Federation (Canada) addressed an audience in St. V. M. Church Hall last night. He took as his subject "What is Truth-Facts or Fables." The speaker declared, that the Anglo-Saxon peoples all over the world are the descendants of the tribes of the Northern Ten Tribed Kingdom of Israel, which had been taken captive by the Assyrians in 721 B.C. Declaring that the Jews these people never went back to Jerusalem or Palestine. He declared, that during the Dark Ages around the shores of the Black Sea and Caspian Sea, these tribes gradually migrated into Europe, where they settled. He showed numerous slides of tombstones showing, that the descendants of the Israelites travelled from Europe to the west and eventually settled in the British Isles, Canada, U.S.A., Australia, Tasmania, Zulus, Scots, Picts, Danes, Saxons, Celts, etc. He declared that latest scientific research has proven all these peoples to be of Israelitish descent.

Mr. Wemp then quoting the Scriptures, Prophecies, literally in regard to the prophecies predicting the dispersion of the Israel tribes to world power, showed that the Bible declares, that the Israel Nation should be the leading nation of Nations, whose colonies would girdle the globe, that their homeland would be in the Isles of the Sea, that they would become "Great" and their names would be "Great"; that they would have the Lion and the Unicorn on their flag, declaring that they would abolish the slave trade, and become a great missionary people. He also declared, that the Royal Family of the Israel tribe was descended from King David in fulfilment of the promise that a King of the Line of David would reign forever for the Israel Nation.

He declared that every prophecy made in the Bible to Israel had been fulfilled in the Anglo-Saxon peoples and closed his address by asking a question, "If the Bible is true, and these things are so does it come about that they, and they alone are the nations we should search, are doing the very things the Bible declares they will? Says Israel should do and be in the latter days? Tonight Mr. Wemp will hold another meeting in the Israel Truth in the Y.M.C.A. on "The Coming Social World Order".

British Royal Family And Their Dogs

By Walter H. Reeves

Walter Reeves has written for a U. S. publication a short account of the British Royal Family's love for dogs and their influence on the present industry. Mr. Reeves has kindly consented to give the Ontario Intelligencer the privilege of publishing this interesting article which follows—Editor.

There is no doubt that one of the many admirable traits that has endeared the late King's family to the British people is their Majesties' love of animals and particularly of dogs. The late Queen Victoria was partial to Collies and Pomeranians and she always accompanied on her walks around the beautiful grounds at Balmoral and Windsor Castle by some of her Collies which had been built with such care by her faithful "Willie" the late John Brown. To the best of my memory Queen Victoria was always present at the show of her favorite dogs. Their late Majesties King Edward VII and Queen Alexandra, however, gave a great impetus to the breeding and exhibition of dogs and maintained quite an extensive kennel at Sandringham. The kennel maintained by George Brunsden and he had many notable winners under his care. King Edward VII was very fond of Pomeranians and bred many famous winners of which probably the best known was Sandringham Rambler, a beautiful Chumbe whose sire, Chumbe Boy, won dog the year of the honor of selling. Jack was never exhibited but he was a beautiful terrier and particularly well bred. his grand sire on the sire side being the famous Ch. Brake Monitor dog and his dam was equally well bred, being by Champion Chelmsford. Jack up to the time of his death, was the constant companion of his Royal master. The late King George V was greatly interested in sporting dogs. He was one of England's best game shots and his favorite retriever, Sandringham Cavalier of which breed there are a number in the Royal kennels. The present King Edward VIII has inherited the British Royal Family's love of dogs. For some time his favorite companion was a Welsh Terrier but of recent years he has favored the Cairn. His Majesty's brothers are also interested in dogs, the Duke of Gloucester being the owner of several Bull Mastiffs, amongst them being Champion Wisdom of Whyraf and Princess Stinga. This is a breed which has become very popular in England.

PRESENT KING 11th EDWARD TO RULE COUNTRY

Three Selves Kings Born Name Edward Before Accession Edward I

WALES ANNEXED

Edward II Born During Welsh Conquest Was First Prince of Wales.

(By George Fyfe)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
(Undated)

Although England's new king is known as Edward VIII, he is actually the 11th Edward to rule this country.

Three Saxon kings bore the name Edward, which in Anglo-Saxon means "Guardian of Property", before the accession of Edward I.

The three Saxon kings were Edward "the Elder", who ruled England from 901 to 925 A.D., Edward, "The Martyr", who ruled from 975 to 979 when he was killed and Edward "The Confessor," who ruled from 1042 to 1066.

Edward I, son of Henry III and named after Edward the Confessor, reigned in the Seventh Crusade, annexed Wales to England in 1276 and in 1295 summoned the first Model Parliament. Following the defeat he brought to London the Scottish Coronation Stone known as the "Lai Fail" or "Stone of Destiny" which still forms the seat of the Coronation Chair in which Great Britain crowns her rulers.

Edward II, born while his father, Edward I, was conquering Wales, became the first Prince of Wales, six years before he succeeded to the throne in 1307.

Through the plotting of his wife Isabella with Roger Mortimer, he was forced to relinquish his crown in 1327 and was killed in Berkeley Castle. He was slain in a castle in which he had been imprisoned. He was one of four children, because Edward III.

Black Death Kills Thousands

The third Edward engaged in a number of wars. He came to the throne in reign from 1327 to 1377, the Kingdom was ravaged by a plague, the "Black Death", a plague which killed thousands.

It was almost 100 years' before another Edward became King. Edward IV was born in 1442 and succeeded the throne in 1461, from Henry VI during the interregnum between the Houses of York and Lancaster, one of the famous wars of the Roses. His reign ended in 1483.

Edward V, son of Edward IV, was succeeded with only a few months in widely known landmarks in England, Westminster Abbey and the Tower of London. He was born in the Sanctuary Abbey where his father had taken sanctuary with his family when the tide of fortune during the War of the Roses was going was in favor of the Lancastrians.

Edward Beheaded

Edward V ruled only from April to June 1483, and during that time under the Regency of his uncle Richard, Duke of Gloucester. At the age of 13 he and his brother, Richard, Duke of York, were smothered to death by an assassin in the tower of London at the behest, possibly, of Henry VII who became king in 1485.

Edward VI was a son of Henry VIII and Jane Seymour, who died after Seymour. He succeeded to the throne at the age of 10 and reigned from 1547 to 1553, under a Regency.

Edward VII was the eldest son of Queen Victoria and the grandfather of the present King. He ruled from 1901 to 1910 when he succeeded the throne at the age of 59.

As officers strove to marshal the crowd, scores of women fainted and were carried over the heads of the throng, to cases waiting ambulances.

The four and a half mile funeral route from Westminster Hall to Paddington Station was packed on all sides. From all directions, thousands poured in and took places to view the sad procession, despite the rains and dreary day.

Special police units went to work before dawn relieving the fainting crowds from a majority of women and men who had remained up throughout the night.

The streets of the funeral route were closed, starting at 5 a.m. (12 p.m., E.S.T.), at which time 11,000 troops had taken places along the route, a force of 50,000 persons manned Whitehall.

From all Walks

Tens of thousands of persons massed along the entire length of the funeral route to witness the procession.

They came from mansions and cottages, in ables and rags, to see amid all the majestic movement, the body of the late King and Emperor, of the King-Emperor, who was coming home to Windsor, to rest in the "heat of this great and widespread family."

As early as 7 p.m. yesterday—18 hours before the procession started, the first of the throngs began. Royalty and representatives retired — the crowds took up their positions, some with umbrellas and raincoats.

Special stands along the entire route were filled.

Dozens of persons, both men and women, collapsed in the long, tedious line of procession as the cortege passed.

Similar scenes were enacted during the Jubilee last May. Then most of the victims were overcome from standing under a broiling sun for long periods without food. Today grief was the cause of much of the fainting.

King's Sons Mount Guard

Many came directly from Westminster Abbey on the banks of the Thames, where they witnessed a dramatic climax to the four days of national homage to the old King when the new monarch and his three brothers mounted guard over their father's bier.

Never before had the reigning monarch of England, burdened with the cares of state, taken his place beside the corpse of his father.

Edward VIII, with his brothers, the Duke of Kent and the Duke of York, with a detachment of the Royal Guards and police, at 12.30 a.m., (7.30 p.m., Monday, E.S.T.), relieved the Queen's Company of Grenadier Guards, who had been on duty since the death of the King.

The new King and his brothers, in uniform of Colonels of the Welsh Guards, the Duke of Kent and the Duke of York in uniform of Colonels of the Grenadier Guards, marched in slow time to the bier, where they remained for 15 minutes.

Then, at 12.30 a.m., (7.30 p.m., Monday, E.S.T.), they relieved the Queen's Company of Grenadier Guards, who had been on duty since the death of the King's life. It rang from the tower under which his son, King Edward claimed Edward VIII, as a cornerstone 17 years ago.

Business Stilled

Throughout the country business was stilled, theatres and motion picture closed, in accordance with plans calling for special religious services, parades and ceremonies in memory of George V.

Big Ben, famous clock in the tower of the Houses of Parliament, which has been silent since the death of the King's life, tolled 21 times at 9 a.m. (4 a.m., E.S.T.), the signal for the beginning of observances the length and breadth of the Dominion in honor of the departed King, who stood a 25th century at the head of the world's greatest Commonwealth of Nations.

Formal Palace Reception

The Royal dinner, required under diplomatic protocol, was followed by a formal palace reception at which King Edward received the vice-chancellor of the University of Cambridge and the town clerk and committee, including Norman H. Davis, United American envoy to the London Naval Conference and President Roosevelt's "ambassador-at-large."

King Edward and all his brothers personally conveyed sympathy to Davis for the sympathy displayed by the United States on the death of the 70-year-old King Edward.

The Crown Princes greeted at the reception were Gustaf of Sweden and Humbert of Italy, Prince Regent Stamenbergy, vice-chancellor, was Austria's representative.

Prince Bernhard von Hesenah, German Foreign Minister, was the Nazi Party's chief representative. He has been a friend of Queen Mary for many years, having come to England on missions from the fire at Stuttgart.

Brothers Stand Guard

After the reception the four royal brothers returned to Westminster Hall, there to stand guard over the coffin for the 23rd hour of the morning for half an hour.

The public continued its pilgrimage during the royal vigil, but most of them did not recognize the four figures in the gloom, standing immobile, in full dress uniforms, in the shadows of the lofty watching officers over their beloved the coffin.

Unobtrusively as they came, the brothers then left at 11.30 a.m. (6.30 a.m., E.S.T.) after a half hour's vigil, and the Queen mother turned then and went quietly away.

Deep notes today boomed softly over this nation's Capital as Canada joined the Empire and the world in mourning for dead King George, buried this morning in the crypt of St. George's Chapel in Windsor.

KING EDWARD PERFORMS ACT

The small notes of a boatswain's pipe sounded rippling, signalling the royal honor ceremonial, as the coffin was placed on the gun carriage. It was the first ritual in the funeral of an Admiral of the fleet.

Carfee Bell Tolled

As the cortege started, a minute gun began the salute.

The cortege passed along a route lined with 11,000 troops and hung with heavy crepe.

Ten thousand and fifty sailors again, as they had in London, drew the carriage on which the Royal standard of Crown and Sceptre rested.

As the procession reached the Castle, the Archbishop of Canterbury and Right Rev. Hon. Lindsay walked from St. George's Chapel and stood at the entrance, under the stained windows, waiting to receive the coffin.

Then a funeral march of a military band re-echoed in the Castle precincts.

Within the chapel, Prime Minister Baldwin, the cabinet and other high government officials, who had not walked in the procession sat in the front of the historic church.

He sprinkled the handful of earth on the coffin as the body of the late King was lowered into the vault.

Then he turned to his mother Queen Mary, and comfortingly took her arm.

A ray of sunshine struck through the stained glass of the ancient chapel and touched the diamonds of the Crown of Crown where it rested in the nave.

The Royal Duke Queen mother turned then and went quietly away.

London a Highway of Mourning as Millions View Funeral Cortege

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer
London, Jan. 28 (C.P. Cable) London was a highway of mourning today. From every corner of the earth came kings, rulers and servants of kings to pay the last tribute to the dignity of George Va. last journey to Windsor.

Millions lined the streets. Some had spent the chilly, sleepless night with newspapers as blankets. One girl had a camp bed complete with eiderdown. Rich and poor huddled together under the arches of Marble Arch, Hyde Park and Buckingham Palace, in every possible part. Park chairs went for elsewhere while protected window seats with clear views sold for $50.

Rain Sweeps Crowds

Rain swept the streets in the early hours of the morning as soldiers and troops prepared the funeral procession. Thousands were chatted with the bystanders in hushed tones of the impressive pageant that will bring the King's four sons at the catafalque in Westminster Hall last night.

But at 9.45 (4.45 Eastern Standard) the rain cleared in the capital and the sun shone faintly upon the mile-long cortege as it moved away from Westminster Hall. Conditions might but perfect order.

Police lines under pressure of the vast crowd, the line of task men bulged. Their efforts were futile. Police came to their assistance. A company of infantry was commanded. Their bayonets, their weight against the crowd but failed to hold and the lines broke through.

The people swept in a dense mass of over-coats and many were crushed. Ambulances moved away in a stream with the victims and mounted police were summoned and the fainting were given first aid, applied the height of their horses and finally succeeded in clearing the way.

Streets Change as by Magic

There was still no semblance of a straight line. Some troops were in the front in their full dress uniforms and the huge crowd swayed dangerously. Then, as by magic, the streets changed and arrived the situation was changed as with the magician's magic. It was almost as if a curtain had been drawn and the people had been swept back. The troops were able to relax for a few minutes.

But so enormous was the crowd that the hours that elapsed after the funeral train did not leave Paddington Station for Windsor until 11.30 a.m. (6.30 a.m. E.S.T.)

The late monarch's body was carried in the funeral coach of his tour and a half miles from Westminster Hall to Paddington Station, followed by grieving hosts afoot and in carriages, headed by Britain's new King-Emperor, Edward VIII.

Royalty in Cortege

Six Kings, two Queens, more than a score of Princes and Princesses from all home and abroad, and 126 other representatives of foreign states participated in the procession.

Scores of persons fainted as the procession moved slowly along the route where long streamers of purple and black flanked lastly from the standards which on Jubilee Day last summer had flaunted bright colors in honor of King George.

While the men walked behind the royal coffin, seven carriages transported Queen Mary and other women mourners. Four contingents dressed in red from head to foot, rode on each carriage.

The heavily-veiled Queen Mary bore up bravely, but King Edward, appearing for the first time in public since his father's death, seemed to have difficulty in restraining tears.

King Salutes Cenotaph

The monarch, nevertheless, raised his hand in the salute assumed in naval fashion, palm inward, in memory of his father, as the gun carriage whom he served, as the procession passed the Cenotaph.

His bands and a contingent of 100 Royal Marines marching with the gun carriage.

The notation, muted instruments and draped drums sounded the funeral march until the procession had come to fill the stilled air with their mournful wail.

Poems of loneliness were busy with stretcher cases, coming to the aid of the fainting in the great crush.

Starting at 11.00 a.m. (6 a.m. E. S. T.) the procession took two hours to reach Paddington Station for Windsor, just west of London, carrying special mourners.

Princes in Train

Princess Elizabeth, daughter of the Duke of York and second in line of succession to the throne, rode in one of three trains. She was escorted by Paddington platform and peeped inside the waiting funeral train before entering her own compartment.

Three times, the main procession was forced to halt near Constitution Gate and Hyde Park to permit ambulances to remove persons who had fainted. Several persons in the surging throng were injured by police horses.

Finally, a narrow lane was opened for the funeral car to be carried at the station where the body was placed upon the royal train and the journey to Windsor.

There, funeral services were called to the head of the royal coffin, as per of Windsor Castle, with burial in the royal tomb beneath the floor of the chapel.

ROYAL ROBERTS STAND GUARD AT FATHER'S BIER

King Edward And Brothers Take Over Vigil in Westminster Hall

Royal Vigil Maintained For Hours on Monday Night

(By G. H. Anderson)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Jan. 28.—(AP)—King Edward VIII and his three brothers, their heads reverently bowed before their father's coffin, stood guard as the Royal standard in Westminster Hall today just before the late King George's lying-in-State came to an end.

By special command of King Edward himself, the public was permitted to continue its pilgrimage past the bier during the Royal vigil of the three sons and one grandson of the late King and his younger brothers ever took part in such a watch.

Authorities estimated between 12,000 and 8,000 persons passed through the hall while the Duke of Gloucester and the Duke of Kent mounted guard.

The Royal brothers assumed their places in an unobtrusive manner, relieving four members of the Grenadier Guard ceremonial salute. Then, with gloved hands, they lowered their swords, they bowed their heads.

Scenes of those passing the catafalque failed to recognize the Royal brothers in the partly obscured,

So there handful of the hundreds who passed realized the dramatic scene they were witnessing," said an official.

King at Head of Coffin

King Edward, the Duke of Gloucester stood at the corners at the head of the Royal coffin, the Duke of Kent and the Duke of York, in the middle, immobile and seemingly at the shuffling of feet as the public mourners passed.

Inside the great physician's strain, which caused ten of those on guard of honor to faint during the four days of lying-in-state, the Royal brothers did not falter in their vigil.

They arrived shortly after midnight and kept their long vigil until 12.30 a.m., (7.30 p.m., Monday, E.S.T.).

King Edward wore the full dress uniform of Colonel of the Welsh Guards, the Duke of Kent in full dress uniform of the Air Force, the Duke of Gloucester a khaki service uniform and the Duke of Kent a Naval uniform.

King George's lying-in-state ended at 12.30 a.m., (7.30 p.m., Monday, E.S.T.), when the last queue entered Westminster Hall and the doors were closed. Hundreds more arrived, however, and officials announced the doors would be open 2:30 a.m., (9:30 p.m., Monday E.S.T.).

When the lying-in-state finally ended, it left behind a funeral service, authorities estimated a total of 750,182 persons had filed past the coffin.

In line of lesser royal personages followed, including Prince Said of Iraq, Prince Peter of Greece, the Princes of Prussia, and Bourbon Princes of Orleans and of Brunswick. Then came the Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, the Grand Duke of Flanders and other members of Europe's noble houses.

Before this part of the cortege passed, a sudden silence fell on the multitudes as a black carriage drove into view, where in deep mourning sat Queen Maud, the Princess Royal and the Duchess of York.

Diplomatic Corps

Then came the special diplomatic representatives, headed by foreign representatives, headed by foreign states to the funeral. Among these were Ambassador Hugh Renwick, the Reich Foreign Minister and Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet Foreign Commissar, the most attention. Germany and the Soviet Union sending the highest officials in the procession.

They were followed by Hon. Vincent Massey, representing Canada, and representatives of High Commissioners of the British Dominions, the Irish Free State and India. Then came the second division of the procession with former Queen of Spain, the Duchesses of Connaught, Princess Alice, Countess Athlone, the Infanta Beatrice and Princess Ludwig of the Royal Family and of the royal household and the members of the royal household and members of the foreign service in the van of the procession. Here marched Pierre-Etienne, French Naval Minister Francois Piétri and Lord Henri Cavendish-Bentinck, Gage and William Erskine. The civilian delegations and the Admiralty and Army detachments and the procession closed with a unit of the Royal Guards and police.

AT REST AT WINDSOR CASTLE

King George Fifth sleeps with his fathers in Windsor Castle, his lifework done, and the homage of a world paid to him since his death eight days ago. His final resting place will ever be hallowed with the memories of a grateful and sorrowful empire which he served to the uttermost. He gave to his service a devotion which could not be surpassed and probably has been unequalled in all history, and his people and the nations at large from all the corners of the earth united in homage to his memory.

His son King Edward Eighth now reigns in the most lonely post in the world's history, the kingship of Britain and the Empire, that supreme duty from which there is no release. Profound great opportunities and surrounded with every honour, yet the office is lonely as only the loneliness of the greatness of a great and mighty king. For the kingship means that the king is the first servant of the state. What burden that implies may be understood by all. King George Fifth filled that exalted but lonely office with great distinction and the loyalty and love of a people who appreciated his devotion. That King Edward as he assumes the gigantic task will have the prayers and the love of his people of every land is of course expected. They are due to His Majesty as liege lord but also as the son of the late mourned beloved monarch King George who had prepared his eldest son for the exalted responsibility. Well might the young King tremble at the thought of the burdens he will bear on behalf of his people. But loyalty of the subject to himself to his high calling and to his father's memory brings him to the same devotion which his noble father so exemplified.

The sad of h-Lord removes what joy there could be in a young king coming to the throne for the young king-emperor has like his mother, suffered an irreparable loss in the death of father and advisor. With an appropriateness which is the admiration of the world, the accession is marked quietly in keeping with the days of sorrow, and the spell that such a scene as that of the coronation should take place more than a year hence when the young king has had experience in office and time has softened the grief and sorrow which the royal family and the people bear.

In these coming days the nation and much other land will be full of millions of his subjects that his course be divinely guided and that he may have widsom as he faces the intricate and heavy problems of a twentieth century in quarrel reigning over almost one-quarter of the globe.

PERSONAL SORROW

Today the nations of the British Empire felt a personal grief as their beloved sovereign was laid to rest. The solemn majesty of the rites in London symbolized the feeling of the people. The most royal farewell that could be given the world's great monarch was due the good king who has gone. The muffled drumbeat and the solemn tread of the soldiers, the rumble of the gun carriage, the lieutenant marshalling all the forces all marked the coming home of a king who was as truly a warrior any King of old,—warrior who fought for justice and humanity—and symbolized the commonwealth as the people sorrowed that their king had left this earthly scene and "gone home".

For the homage of the empire and the nations to the king they have paid to themselves. Were the tribute any less sincere and marked, it would be the shortcoming of the subjects for the king had honored his people with his life.

Under the British constitution he had a high privilege which he used sovereignly and unselfishly, giving back more than his every received for the elements of kingship and humanity had merged in King George. This explains why the nations mourned and followed the royal bier, why common people rubbed shoulders with princes in the streets for miles as they slowly approached in the line the object of their quest—the royal catafalque where they might pay homage.

This great outpouring of sorrow and love cannot but have a redemptive effect upon the people, it cannot but bring them seven times its compass to the late King's son, who now reigns. It cannot but help the coming of world brotherhood, for the recognition of the late sovereign's sense of world brotherhood is felt by every nation. It should make the world better to know how the British throne has stood for fraternity of all nations.

Few things are impossible in themselves. It is not so much means, as perseverance, that is wanting to bring them to a successful issue.—Rochefoucauld.

One great difference between a wise man and a fool is the former only wishes for what he may possibly obtain; the latter desires impossibilities.—Democritus.

A "KING" PASSES

Ah, yes! the King has gone home, lad—
They ha' giv'n the news to the world,
And o'er the whole o' the Empire
The flag 'll be flyin' half furled—
The nation 'll mine him, oh, sorely;
The kindest, most loved, they do say!
Lad, when you're grown to an old man
You'll look back and remember this day.

How the news rang over the world, lad,
Conveying the great sense o' loss;
How grieving came o'er the Empire
(Each heart will carry its cross).
The bells 'll be tolling their message
For a life that has come to its close—
Aye, the time is fil for the loss, lad,
When the world is full of its woes.

They say he was kind; he was gentle,
With affairs of his people at heart—
Aye, we loved him lad; of his Empire,
Were glad to be counted a part,
But death held wide open its portals,
Closing as nearer it drew;
Aye, you'll remember at my age
The sorrow the Empire passed through.

But, o' course, we ha' one consolation:
He left us a King—his own son
Who'll reign in his stead o'er the Empire;
Aye, esteem and much love he has won;
But as the old King has gone Our George sorely;
His place in our lives can't be filled;
But we bow our heads low in our sorrow—
'Twas God's wish — the deed He had willed.

FLOWERS ARE BLOOMING IN TEXAS and the folks are thinking, talking and playing football between Christmas and New Years. Our Dallas, Texas correspondent, sends New Year greetings from the land of flowers and big vegetables and points with pride to its gridiron football team, "The Mustangs", representing the Southern Methodist University. Those Methody Mustangs sure play a rough game of football. They were selected to face the Stanford University Indians' of California in the annual Rose Bowl game on New Year's Day, at Pasadena, to the pride of all Texas and yelled for the Mustangs and Texas, never for a moment doubting that the defeat of California by the Texas Mustangs would be a sure thing. And the Texas Mustangs just failed to win, draw, or score, the verdict being 7 for California, nothing for Texas. However, half of Texas went to the game, the rest stayed home as their crops didn't grow too fast and that the Indians did not grow scalp hungry again. Dallas was the centre of the hegira and four trains left Dallas, Texas, which started the Rose Bowl trek, followed by more trains and 1,500 eager football fans on Sunday. Many motorists made the journey while passenger places were all taxed to capacity. A good time was had by all, and the only fly in the ointment was that those Stanford lads rubbed the Methody Mustangs noses in the mud from start to finish, and the Mustangs, though defeated were not disgraced, and with a little more favor in the breaks could have reversed the score, probably. Many thousand Texans saw the game.

Lads of the old brigade who used to steal behind the barn and enjoy the thrills of the Beadle Half-dime and Dime Library with its tales of the Texas Rangers, wagon trains and Injuns, headed by that old devil, Geronimo, the Apache Chief, who flitted between Mexico, Texas and other states and left a trail of blood and broken hearts and homes behind him, should attend this round-up in Texas, the largest and loudest State in the Union, and live again those days of the Old West so vividly and goreingly depicted in those dime and half-dime novels of our boyhood days. Coroners Jury Recommends Abolition of Level Crossing At Cemetery in Verdict Given

Find Doyle And Devine Came to Their Deaths by Accident

NO BLAME ATTACHED

Eye-Witness Says Ill Fated Truck "Weaving" Before Crash

That the level crossing in Sidney township, known as the Cemetery Crossing, be abolished as it is extremely hazardous, was the recommendation of the coroner's jury empanelled to look into the deaths of William Devine and Samuel L. Doyle, the two Toronto men in charge of the Loblaw's transport that was struck by a C.P.R. passenger train on Friday with the death of both Devine and Doyle on the morning of January 24th. The jury, at the adjourned inquest held before Coroner Dr. O. S. Cronk at the police court room last night. All evidence was submitted and the cause of death, caused by accidental means, no blame being attached to the train crew.

The verdict as submitted by the coroner's jury read: "That William Devine and Samuel L. Doyle did come to their deaths on January 20 in Sidney as the result of injuries received when a Loblaw transport, in charge of the said deceased, was struck by a train that was driven into the path of a C.P.R. passenger train No. 31, at what is commonly known as the Cemetery Crossing, resulting in a collision. And further that this jury, with a view to avoiding a prevalence of unnecessary accidents at this crossing or respectfully recommend to the Hon. the Attorney General and to the Hon. the Minister of Highways or Ontario consideration of the necessity of legislation providing for the removal of the level crossing as being unnecessary dangerous."

Efficient Drivers

Drs. B. Layton and J. J. Robertson of this city, were the first two physicians called and both declared the cause of death, both stating that death was instantaneous, the result of crushed chests and both crushed abdomen, both of which would have resulted if they were selected to face the Stanford University Indians' of California in the annual Rose Bowl game on New Year's Day, at Pasadena to the pride of all Texas and yelled for the Mustangs and Texas, never for a moment doubting that the defeat of California by the Texas Mustangs would be a sure thing. And the Texas Mustangs just failed to win, draw, or score, the verdict being 7 for California, nothing for Texas. However, half of Texas went to the game, the rest stayed home as their crops didn't grow too fast and that the Indians did not grow scalp hungry again. Dallas was the centre of the hegira and four trains left Dallas, Texas, which started the Rose Bowl trek, followed by more trains and 1,500 eager football fans on Sunday. Many motorists made the journey while passenger places were all taxed to capacity. A good time was had by all, and the only fly in the ointment was that those Stanford lads rubbed the Methody Mustangs noses in the mud from start to finish, and the Mustangs, though defeated were not disgraced, and with a little more favor in the breaks could have reversed the score, probably. Many thousand Texans saw the game.

Provincial Constable Harold Bailey informed the inquest that the transport was properly equipped with air brakes and all lights defrosted on the windshield.

Traffic Officer W. H. Delaney, the investigating officer, testified that the C.P.R. train was a passenger train of 11 cars and that it had been brought to a stop at a distance of 600 feet from the point of the crash. That was the distance of the train. The officer stated that the wig-wag and whistle had been in operation when he arrived at the scene of the accident at 4.50 a.m. The officer told of the relative positions of parts of the demolished transport and was of the opinion that only the tractor part of the transport was struck by the train. When questioned by Mr. Donnan, he stated that when approaching the crossing from the west Mr. Delaney stated "there is a clear view just after a veicles passes a house on the south side of the highway which is about 100 feet from the crossing. The witness found no fault on the part of the railway crossing. Provincial Arthur Allin of this city, identified photographs of the accident and the train.

Engineer Tells Story

Mr. W. J. Ranton, Smith's Falls, engineer in charge of C.P.R. train No. 31 at the time of the accident, testified that the wig-wag and whistle also arriving in Belleville. When questioned by Mr. Donnan he stated that he was driving the train and "I saw motor vehicle headlights coming at me from the south just east of the crossing. I sounded my whistle, but when we straightened up I could not see the lights any more way from the west," stated Mr. Ranton that he then sounded his whistle and kept sounding it until the train struck. He also stated that the wig-wag was in operation. "I was first aware of the accident when the train struck something and was thrown from my seat. I grabbed the seat immediately and applied the train immediately," he said.

"How fast were you travelling?" asked Mr. Donnan.

"About 60 miles per hour," witness replied.

J. A. Chubb, Montreal, conductor on the train, corroborated the statements of the engineer and added that he felt the impact of the crash. He stated that the wig-wag and whistle and kept sounding it until the train struck. He also stated that the wig-wag was in operation. "I was first aware of the accident when the train struck something and was thrown from my seat. I grabbed the seat immediately and applied the train immediately," he said.

Chas. Boyd, local transportation agent, was first at the scene of the transport after the accident, was the first witness for the inquest. Bills of the transport had been applied prior to the accident, he said, and added that all valves were in good working order. Traffic Officer Delaney, for the C.P.R., is capable of knowing the two transport drivers and knew them to be reliable and steady drivers.

Eyewitness Testifies

One of the main witnesses heard was Frank J. Johnson, a farmer who drives for the McCallum transport. Mr. Johnson was travelling about the fast direction from Belleville and called Loblaw truck prior to the accident and stated that it was "about 35 miles per hour."

Did you see the lights of the train?" asked Mr. Donnan.

Yes, when about 1,000 feet from the crossing," was the reply. Witness of the train and heard it whistle, but did not see it. He also stated Mr. Johnson.

Now did you see the Loblaw truck from the crossing when you first saw the train and heard the whistle?" asked Mr. Donnan. "I probably seven or eight hundred feet," was the reply. Mr. Johnson as he stated he saw no outward difference in the speed of the truck when it approached the crossing.

"Did you not stop your truck?" asked Mr. Donnan.

"About 600 feet from the crossing and just as the collision occurred.

"Did you observe the rear stoplight of the Loblaw truck flash on as the train struck the collision?" he was asked.

"I didn't," added Mr. Johnson, stating the Loblaw truck was weaving just prior to the accident.

Mr. Johnson, a neighboring resident, co-driver with Johnson, corroborated the former witness's statements.

Mr. J. G. Urquhart, Toronto barrister, represented the Loblaw Company during the proceedings while Mr. Tom Donnan, K.C., represented the deceased.

The inquest was then closed.

Tweed and District

Tweed, Jan. 28.—On Friday night Tweed hockey club sponsored an interesting concert in the auditorium. In spite of the severe weather there was a large crowd to enjoy the amateur show which was held in conjunction with a "table."

Mr. Sam Curry, secretary of the club, was chairman for the evening's ceremonies. His capable handling of the programme added not a little to the crowd's enjoyment of the various numbers.

The feature number was a song by four-year-old Jackie Storey. This little fellow stood before the audience and sang the little songs with a childish simplicity that captivated his audience. He left with the audience. Frank Allore, saxophonist and with his Spanish guitar, sang several old ballads and was encored repeatedly. Other items included a piano selection by O'Colin, step dancer, W. J. Hannah; Highland fling, Donald Cormack.

The volume of applause from the audience decided the order in which the prizes were awarded. First prize $3.00 in cash, Russell O'Colin; prize $1.00 in cash, Russell O'Colin.

The number of participants was not as large as had been expected owing to several entrants from Flinton, Tamworth and Stirling in this district being unable to get on on account of blocked roads. The artistes were chosen by Mrs. R. E. Collins and Chief J. C. Hayes were the judges. Intermission for refreshments and deepening the love for hockey in the community by the club and pride in the greatest Empire the sun ever shone upon.

Worked for Peace

King George's heartfelt desire for world-wide friendship and peace is toward that desired goal were dwelt upon by speakers at the meeting of the great Naval Conference and Disarmament Conference held in King as having made real strides toward universal peace—a voice crying in a wilderness of warlike nations.

Sacred Home Life

The greatest and most beneficial contribution to the happiness of the world, in the opinion of the speakers, was the sacred home life and love as a family man. He stood always for the sacredness of home life and a love binding husband and wife and the kindness, sympathy and that love of home which is the inheritance of all true religion. This is a world gone modern and in which the sacredness of home life and love is considered as never before. Rev. Mr. Wright in his address dwelt on the great plea that the example of the King and Royal Family of England by respecting the sacredness of the home and all that it implies, protecting it against the onslaughts of the modern frivolity and flagrant sin which is a menace to national life as well as the sacredness of the home, would be the best way to perpetuate the Empire founded upon God, Justice, clean living and upon good

KING'S GREATEST GIFT TO WORLD WAS FAMILY LIFE

Padre Payne Gives Intimate Story of Life of King George

HEARD AT ROTARY

One of the finest tributes to the life and works of His Majesty King George V was that given Monday by the Rotarians' guest speaker, Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, of St. Andrew's United Church. Mr. Payne served in the Great War as chaplain with His Majesty's forces, and personally took charge of the King and conversed with King George V. on the occasion of the latter's visit to the Front Line in France. Padre Payne was at an advanced casualty clearing station when the King's word came that a visit from the King might be expected. It was thought that twenty minutes would be the outside limit for the visit of the King at the casualty clearing station, but he remained nearly two hours during which time he addressed himself to all the wounded men in the station in terms of the deepest kindliness and sympathy, submerging his great personality in the personality of the man, full of sympathy and brotherly love.

A humble tribute from a very great man to a greater man, that is the right description of the remarkable address given by Padre Payne, who, as the finest of the many fine tributes expressed since the death of the King, was given a rising vote of heard in every part of the Empire.

Deep Telling Ball

There never has been a monarch since the days of Julius Caesar drawn so close to his subjects in loving affection as King George, said the speaker, and the people turned to know him and to know him more to love him. Now it is no wonder that the tolling bell at Sandringham announcing the passing of the monarch, brought a deep feeling of the tremendous loss that had befallen the people and the individual loss as well. Then, said the speaker, the world was speaking to a class of children when the City Hall bell began to ring. First it was thought there was a fire was in progress. As the bell continued to toll the children were dispelled, and silence fell. Then a little girl in the class asked with reverential tones "The King, the King," said the clergyman, and then the little heads of the children as they realized the meaning of the bell took a position but loved by all, and a deep personal loss filled every young heart.

Sadness Travels Quickly

The wonderful march of science through which all parts of the Empire was at once made aware of the death of the King before even London knew, was dwelt upon by the speaker as one of the many wonderful achievements in the wonderful era in which we are living and to which King George V gave of his best both as a King and as a man.

Royal Cradle to Kingly Grave

A brief summary of the life and achievements of King George was given by the speaker, from his birth as Duke of Clarence in the cradle to the grave, of his wise and kingly statesmanship including the death of Queen Victoria, the reign of King Edward VII, and his death, followed by his own accession and acceptance of the responsibility attached to the throne—of his accession and the acceptance of the people and later their love through the Great War and other parts of the vast British Empire, the visit to India during the Durbar and being crowned Emperor of India. All this was told briefly but in the masterly manner by the speaker, who gave a vivid picture of the MAN from the cradle to the grave, of his wise and magnificent rule and its effect in strengthening the ties of Empire and cementing and deepening the love for the British throne and love of king and pride in the greatest Empire the sun ever shone upon.

World for Peace

King George's heartfelt desire for world-wide friendship and peace is toward that desired goal were dwelt upon by speakers at the meeting of the great Naval Conference and Disarmament Conference held in King as having made real strides toward universal peace—a voice crying in a wilderness of warlike nations.

Sacred Home Life

The greatest and most beneficial contribution to the happiness of the world, in the opinion of the speakers, was the sacred home life and love as a family man. He stood always for the sacredness of home life and a love binding husband and wife and the kindness, sympathy and that love of home which is the inheritance of all true religion. This is a world gone modern and in which the sacredness of home life and love is considered as never before. Rev. Mr. Wright in his address dwelt on the great plea that the example of the King and Royal Family of England by respecting the sacredness of the home and all that it implies, protecting it against the onslaughts of the modern frivolity and flagrant sin which is a menace to national life as well as the sacredness of the home, would be the best way to perpetuate the Empire founded upon God, Justice, clean living and upon good sety the example of King George, his sweet and lonely widow, and the Royal Family in preserving the sacredness of the home, would be followed—and an even greater Empire would arise.

The meeting was introduced by R. V. Tilley, and Col. R. J. R. Graham and President Bert Boyce extended the thanks of the gathering for the very fine address given.

GOVERNMENT TAKES INTEREST IN INSULATION

Booklets Published Showing Advantages of Modern House Insulation

House insulation has come into the front very prominently at this time and a great interest aroused among home owners and builders. The Dominion Government has given the question much attention and two very comprehensive booklets have been published on the subject, one called "The Home and Cost Accounts," and the other, issued by the National Development Bureau of Mines, Department of the Interior in co-operation with the Canadian Pulp Industry. Another booklet issued by the Government is "Why You Should Insulate Your Home," and as public interest is turning to the question of insulation the following information will be of interest:

The booklet is written in the last few years on the advantages of House Insulation and the following salient points will be of interest to every householder:

Insulation is applied to houses may be described as the use of a substance which will prevent heat in during construction, by which the passage of heat is reduced, either from the inside of the house or the sun or from the inside of the house.

Each prospective householder should realize the enormous heat loss of heat and each owner of a cold, draughty uncomfortable house should realize the possibilities of the different materials available.

It matters not what particular kind of insulation is used in certain cases one type may be applied much easier and more satisfactorily than another.

There are three types of insulation which may be classed as rigid and loose. The rigid forms include the insulating boards and fibre or pulp boards. For good results none of these should be applied less than one inch thick. Semi-rigid insulation is in the form of felts and quilts while the loose insulating materials include the mineral wools and into the spaces between studding, joists and rafters and if necessary accurately cut to size and covered with paper. This type of insulation should be applied in sufficient thickness.

Before work it is often easier to apply the rigid or semi-rigid types but in old or even newly erected houses the loose type is often the most convenient. In the form of rock wool. The latter material is spun from molten stone. Immune and has the extra advantage of being thoroughly fire-proof.

By the use of the proper type of insulation, houses can be made proof against fire by closing up all open spaces in walls, partitions and roof which would cause a draught. Another great advantage is that insulation is made vermin proof as the materials are either distasteful to vermin or treated so that they are treated for this.

The insulation of partitions and floors and outside walls greatly reduces disturbing noises and from inside and outside building.

The results obtained from insulation are often somewhat surprising. In some cases reducing the heating bill by as much as 50 per cent, saying nothing about the greater advantage of increased comfort and liveableness of the warmer house.

The average house heater or furnace utilizes only from 50 to 60 per cent of the heat value in coal and when 25 to 50 per cent of this heat is lost through the roof as is usual in un-insulated houses the tremendous advantages of insulation will be realized.

Air Conditioning

Air conditioning will come out of the depression and that is the opinion expressed by engineers for houses, but to get the full benefit of such an installation the house must be properly insulated against the sudden and extreme changes of temperature from the in Ontario are subjected.

Properly insulated houses should not melt the snow on the roof or form icicles or freeze up the pipes in the coldest weather. When you see icicles hanging from the eaves of a house the figure it is costing the occupant money to heat.

The saleability of a house has depended for long on its beauty of design, decoration and general arrangements with little or no consideration for the comfort of the occupants. Fortunately this point of view is rapidly changing and Architects, Engineers and builders everywhere are studying intensively this problem. It is now realized that the cost of insulating has been saved by the smaller fuel bill and saving of foul coals which annual will more than pay for the cost of all of the taxes on that house.

Another advantage of insulating is a cool house in the heat of summer. The attic can be made as comfortable as the rest of the house in the coldest weather and often that needed extra room can be provided by sheathing the studs and rafters in the attic with one or other of the rigid insulating boards.

Insulation is comfortable from

Petty Thief Sought In Woolworth Tower

New York, Jan. 27 (AP)—A hundred policemen swarmed through the 52-story Woolworth tower today, seeking a petty thief who shot and wounded a watchman.

The search, both spectacular and fruitless, brought 500 office workers to peak.

It began at 1 p.m. yesterday when Tony Fazzino, 41, watchman, grappled with the intruder and was shot in the shoulder.

After eight hours' search a sixth floor window was found open. Footprints in the snow there indicated a man had crawled and dropped to go to a fire escape.

Overcome Ice in Georgian Bay And Blocked Roads to Save Man

Owen Sound, Ont., Jan. 27 (CP)—Intermission and strong arms of Arthur Thornely and Lloyd Hawke, Owen Sound residents were responsible for saving the life of Frank Scott, another Owen Sounder, who had three fingers cut off at a shingle mill on Georgian Bay.

Graves cut the fingers off his left hand Saturday morning and then until nine o'clock at night a battle was waged to get Graves to the Owen Sound hospital.

The men started a motor boat but the heavy ice along shore forced them to use a punt.

Big Bay, several miles from Orrin's Island, was finally reached at five o'clock in the afternoon. The boys broke ice with their hands so they could row the punt to the Bay.

On landing they were confronted with drifted roads. After failing to conquer the drifts with one horse and cutter they finally obtained a team. Progress was slow and Graves was losing much blood.

Another horse and cutter was tried and eventually Graves reached the Owen Sound hospital. He is doing well, hospital officials say.

Consider Color Of Frock When Polishing Nails

Vivid Red Tone is Only For Pretty Hands, States Writer

Arthur Judge

She considers the color of her dress in applying nail polish

(By Rena Fuleti)

Only pretty hands are entitled to wear blazing red nail polish. The fiery carmine veneer calls attention to a skin surface that is not all that it should be, accentuates unlovely lines of palms and fingers.

Some women have never used the vivid nail enamel because it distracts their minds. If "nervouses" them check or stir, and when you take her out you feel as if you were doing an act of charity. I'd like to see her loved and many, but I don't seem able to find the right girl.

Particular.

Your signature is well-chosen, my dear young friend. If you were actually engaged to the young women with whom you went steadily, there is no reason why you should give up other young men friends for you.

To find a girl with dash and style, yet who is not extravagant and will give up other friends for you before you commit yourself, is an almost impossible combination. Be less like your grandfather. Girls like dash. Like that, but they don't say more.

This will answer several other letters which have written along the same lines.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

Shall She Return His Ring?

Dear Miss Fairfax: As I have not seen him for seven weeks, shall I or will he be just send back a ring which is valuable to him, or wait and see what happens? I have had the ring since the middle of the summer. I have had a few dates with him since, and he has called, but I never happened to be at home. —Jane.

Since you've never happened to be at home when this young man called, better write or phone and before you return the ring. I think you've been a bit high-handed, also in paying no attention to this young man's visits.

He Treats Her Like a Sister.

Dear Miss Fairfax: Our families are very good friends, and John and I have always been great pals. He seems to like me as a sister and confides in me about other girls, etc. He likes girls, but he's not and doesn't fall easily. We get along fine, but the trouble is he seems to treat me as a sister. We should have been all right until lately. I have begun to care for him and more than a sisterly fashion. I'd like to make him understand this. We're both 18.—J. F.

Better reread Longfellow's Courtship of Miles Standish, and notice how Priscilla asked John Alden to "speak for himself." She young men often tell about their affairs with other girls, because they're too bashful to come across and confess their admiration. Without losing your pride, there are doubtless many ways in which a girl can show the young man of her choice that she likes him.

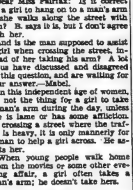
One girl wrote me that she looked all the things she didn't care say. You might try looking.

He Never Takes Her Out.

Dear Miss Fairfax: We're both in the same university, and I love him more than much, and he claims to love me. He used to take me out all the time, but lately doesn't take me out at all. I'm absolutely sure the reason he is not taking me anymore is because he still goes everywhere himself—but always as a stag.

I haven't had a date with him for a week now. Shall I stop going with him? But that would spoil my life. —Janet.

As you're both students, maybe the young man has discovered that it distracts his attention too much from his studies if he makes dates with you. A good many boys have written me letters to that effect, saying that they have taken refuge in going "stag" because they just can't be swept off their feet for a girl when they're in college.



Shall She Take His Arm When Walking on the Street?

Dear Miss Fairfax: Is it correct for a girl to hang on to a man's arm as he walks along the street with him? It says it is, but I don't agree with her.

What is the man supposed to assist a girl when crossing the street, in-stead of making her cross? A few of us have discussed and disagreed on this question, and are waiting for you to settle it.—Ann.

In this independent age of women, it's not the thing for a girl to take a man's arm during the day, unless she is lame or has some affliction. In crossing a street where the traffic is heavy, it is only mannerly for a man to help a girl across. He assists her.

When young people walk home from the movies or some other evening affair, a girl often takes a man's arm; he doesn't take hers.

Doesn't Know Why She Should Be Glum

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We were engaged for two years, and absolutely and devotedly in love. I don't know what got into me, but the other night after he had left. I think I must have jumped the rails and gone daffy. He had not done anything to make me angry, yet this fury, or whatever it was, came over me. I wrote and told him I never wanted to see him again, and that I would send back his engagement ring.

I stayed up all night fastening up his gifts, and returned them by special messenger next morning. No sooner had they gone than my mood changed, and I felt bereft; I wanted him back.

I stayed around all day thinking he would come, but he did not. Several days later I got a letter saying he was glad I had been frank with him and told him how I felt. And he wished me all happiness and success.

I have tried in every way to get him back, but it's useless. He won't come. What could have been the matter with me? I am sane.

Mother Can Not be Too Modern

Parent Shouldn't Try to Look Like Young Girl, States Writer

(By Lisa Grenelle)

Mrs. Boswell Smith was a modern young mother—so she thought, and was proud of looking. People always were taking her and her daughter Florence for sisters.

They always had been more like sisters than like mother and daughter, Mrs. Smith often said, and with considerable pride, it was true. They were alike in many ways.

Quite freely Mrs. Smith and Florence borrowed each other's dresses, hats, coats, slippers, everything. They were the same size, and, of course, the style was the same, in those days—those bright colors and reversible coats that were as becoming to mothers as to daughters.

Just like sisters, mother and daughter enjoyed going alone together, or almost everywhere, knowing the same people, and dancing the same steps. Mrs. Smith preferred the companionship of young people to that of old ones, to dance? having the same friends, visiting the same hangouts and wearing the same hats in the same angle.

A good arrangement? Far from it. It is tragic, impossible and ridiculous.

No mother, regardless of how well preserved, looks as young as her daughter. If life really had ended as little impression upon her as it makes in some almost girls, she would look more like a moron than a debutante.

Be Understanding

It is very important that a mother should be understanding. Life and her imagination should teach her to be sympathetic, kind, wise, patient and tolerant of their point of view. She she is not to forget herself, herself, and shouldn't pretend to be or want to be. If she does, she only makes a fool of herself and embarrasses her daughter.

Clothes that are appropriate for a debutante are not appropriate for a woman of 40, and they do not make her look younger. Nor is it natural that 18 and 40 should have similar social interests.

Again, with regard to friends, although an older woman may like to have young people around sometimes, it is unnatural and shows signs of arrested development if she desires no companionship but that of her daughter's contemporaries.

And, more important, a daughter wants and needs not a sister, but a mother. The daughter has plenty of friends to go out with; what she needs is someone to come home to.

The modern tendency towards an open, frank relationship between mother and daughter is a fine thing if it is not carried to the ridiculous extreme of the Boswell Smiths.

You can't expect a girl who is afraid to be alone to confide in her. But on the other hand, if a mother is always dressed as if she were her daughter's age, you can't expect the daughter to respect in her the wisdom of an older person.

Do your children CATCH COLD easily?

Do their colds HANG ON and on?

These simple steps can help your family have FEWER COLDS—SHORTER COLDS

1. To help build RESISTANCE to Colds: Live normally, avoid excesses. Eat simple food and keep elimination regular. Drink plenty of water. Take some exercise daily—outdoors preferably. Get plenty of rest and sleep.

2. To help PREVENT Many Colds: At the first warning nasal irritation, sniffle or sneeze, use Vicks Va-tro-nol—just a few drops up each nostril. Va-tro-nol is especially designed for the nose and upper throat—where most colds start. Used in time, Va-tro-nol helps to prevent many colds—and to throw off bad colds in the early stages.

VICKS VA-TRO-NOL

3. To help END a Cold Sooner: If a cold has developed, or strikes without warning, rub throat and chest at bedtime with Vicks VapoRub. VapoRub acts two ways at once: (1) By stimulation through the skin, like a poultice or plaster; (2) By inhalation of its penetrating medicated vapors, direct to the inflamed bronchial passages. Through the night, this combined vapor-poultice action loosens phlegm, soothes irritation, helps break congestion.

These three steps form the basis of Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds—a practical home guide to fewer and shorter colds. Developed by Vicks Chemists and Medical Consultants, the continuously successful Vicks Plan is the result of their 30 years' specialized study of colds. Its worth has been demonstrated in extensive clinical tests supervised by practicing physicians, and further proved by everyday home use by thousands. Directions for following Vicks Plan come in each Vicks package.

Why Baby-Talk is Harmful In the Rearing of Children

By LISA GRENELLE . . .

At eight or baby Jimmie or baby Janie, the instinct of so many grown-ups seems to be to speak immediately into baby-talk: to poke, to joggle, and to ogle; to bounce, to kiss, and to squeeze.

Now, why baby-talk should be easier to understand, or the delight of a baby, than good clear English, is away past my understanding.

As for the poking, kissing, and squeezing, I have got to know a good many who didn't look back upon such liberties forced upon them with loathing. I still cannot see why a little girl to forgive the perpetrators of such treatment as a matter of self. In her eyes, "those" can never redeem themselves, and her memories are to be forever despised.

And perhaps she is right. In there not something concerned and insensitive about someone who will go to such forms of attention upon helpless infants?

Of course, baby can't be expected with it to grasp technical terms, nor are his interests broad, as yet. Simple words, short sentences, limited but concise and phenomena in his still small world, are appropriate. Indeed, into baby-talk such elements and questions should be put, but not in the voice addressing him should be horribly distorted.

Baby deserves just as much respect as his mother or father. Where's no reason, why the tone of your voice should change when addressing him, even if your words or your topics must be simpler. There is no excuse for ogling, poking, and squeezing. You wouldn't like to be attacked in such a manner yourself, so don't do it.

Lack of respect, of the parent for the child, or the child naturally for the parent, is the most prevalent. I think, for a happy, healthy, helpful relationship. And lack of respect often follows baby-talk and the frame of mind that goes with it.

Little Benny's Note Book

PRACTICE

Practice generally makes perfect, but make sure practice every day without ever getting good enough to play before people. Because such as many mouth organ players, while other fellows can just naturally do it the first time they try, such as imitate a crowing rooster, are very popular. This proves we all may be born equal, but some of us have it much easier afterwards.

Some things aw'l be practised young in order to be perfect. Parents you'll probbly never get a chance to practice breathing at all if you dont start practicing it pritty soon after you are born.

You should also practice being polite while you are still young, and then also remember to have to think about your politeness. Some manners have been painful on account of you being unconscious of the fact.

On the other hand you are lucky if you dont have to practice other things you hate as much as snoring on crutches and getting used to needing glasses.

A good way to save yourself from practicing things you hate is to begin 3 balls in public without a good set of advance practice. They will probbly get the hands and relations from straining their politeness for them. Also try to train you do do tricks is by making them practice and practice by the boy. Experience that they finally get so disgusted that they do it by themselves just to get rid of you.

KING WILL NOT YIELD REVENUE OF DUCHY

London, Jan. 28.—(CP Cable)—There is no ground for current rumours King Edward intends to give the revenues from the Duchy of Cornwall to his brother the Duke of York who would become the Duke of Cornwall and York.

It is learned by the Canadian Press that decision will take considerable time and will depend somewhat upon Parliamentary action on the civil list. The latter will have to be changed in view of there being a bachelor King.

14 FREIGHT CARS BADLY SMASHED

Trains Expected to Resume Schedule After Tie-up in Rock Cut

Cadbury, Ont. Jan. 28.— (CP)— Trains are expected to resume their schedule over the C.N.R. lines west of Cayuga late today following a derailment early this morning caused by derailment of 23 freight cars. Fourteen cars were reported badly damaged.

The first section of C.N.R. freight train No. 404 was proceeding south from Folyet last night when the derailment occurred in a heavy rock cut, thirteen miles west of Cayuga.

It is thought a rail split after the engine and the first ten cars had passed over or something dropped from one of the trucks causing the derailment. No one was injured.

VETERANS OF MARNE, VERDUN MOURN

Ahead of the men as they marched to the church were the Colors of the nations. The Colors of seats were joined by practically the entire French and Belgian colonies of Toronto, including M. Rocheron de la Sablonnere, French and Belgian Consul.

MEMORIAL SERVICES HELD IN MANY LANDS

The British peoples bowed their heads. At Canberra, Australia, Lord Gowrie, new Governor-General, made his first official appearance at the service on the steps of the Parliament building attended by the Prime Minister and members of the Cabinet.

For the first time in the history of the state all trains stopped at Melbourne for two minutes silence at noon. Fifty thousand attended services held in front of the parliament buildings.

There was universal observance in South Africa. Officials at Capetown participated in the ceremonies.

There was an unwonted silence in the streets of the cities of India. In Bombay, shops, offices and bazaars were closed.

In Cyprus Greek and Turkish students attended services in Orthodox Churches and Moslem Mosques.

Jerusalem was a city of silence. Principal mourning services were conducted at the ancient Hurvan Synagogue in the old city.

INCREASE PEA CROPS WITH SOUND WAVES

Moscow, Jan. 28 (AP) — Soviet scientists today announced that pea crops can be greatly increased by bombarding the crop area with sound waves before planting.

"Ultrasound" vibrations with a frequency of several hundred thousand a second and inaudible to the human ear were used. Potatoes exposed to the waves one minute several months ago before planting yielded earlier than usual and yielded up to 60 per cent higher crops.

Green pea yields have been doubled and in some instances tripled.

MORRO CASTLE ENGINEER GIVEN FOUR YEAR TERM

Acting Captain Gets Two Years Also For Criminal Negligence

124 LIVES LOST

New York, Jan. 28 (AP)—Federal Judge Murray Hulbert today sentenced Rhen S. Abbott, chief engineer of the liner Morro Castle and former resident of Yarmouth, N.S., to four years in prison and William F. Warms, acting captain, to two years. They were convicted of criminal negligence in connection with the burning of the ship September 4, 1934, with a loss of 134 lives.

"My regret," the Judge said as the men stood before him for sentence, "is so far as the defendant corporation is concerned that the statute provides only the limited sentence it does."

The judge's lengthy commentary accompanying the sentencing reviewed the mercantile marine as a whole on disciplinary grounds.

Scores Shipmasters

Particularly did he score the conceiving of the ship into the wind in such a fashion as to sweep the after deck with flame as passengers huddled there trying to gain the lifeboats.

Judge Hulbert remarked it was the first time a steamship corporation and an executive officer of a steamship corporation had been sentenced in a sea disaster.

He censured the failure of the crew to engage in regular safety drills and for its abandonment of the ship.

Abbott was accused by the bench of misdirecting passengers. "Apparently," said Judge Hulbert, "he took very little part in directing the men at the oars of the life boat into which he got."

Tells Testimony.

The judge then directed a charge of lying at the chief engineer. "Abbott testified," he said, "he was in such a condition he was unable to perform his duties in the life boat. The jury didn't believe that. Neither do I."

As for Warms, who succeeded to the captaincy of the vessel upon the death the night before the fire of Capt. Robert R. Willmott, the judge said he admired him for observing the tradition of the sea in "sticking to his ship until ordered off."

Cahalan, said the court, had direct knowledge that regulations provided by the United States Congress were being ignored on two occasions in regard to operation but there were only occasions when he might have been ignorant of such evasions of the law.

Judge Hulbert continued the three men in bail of $2,500 each on condition chief defence counsel Medalia would file notices of appeal from the conviction immediately. The defence counsel have notified the court of such intention.

JIMMIE SEMARK'S SOLO GOAL WINS FOR YACHT CLUB

Defeat Napanee 8-4 in Bay of Quinte Hockey Loop

HINTON STARS

Murphy, Wilson and Jackson Best For The Losers

Jimmie Semark's solo rush, that resulted in a goal, gave the Belleville Yacht Club a last minute 5 to 4 victory over the Napanee Gillards in a Bay of Quinte League struggle at the Belleville Arena last night. The game was a thrilling match from the commencement of hostilities until the final gong and was marred with only two penalties, both outbreaks and general rough hockey being the order of the night. The two penalties meted out during the encounter, which was roughly estimated by some 300 fans, the home team drew down on the visitors and they were limited to the "bar" five times by Referee Cannings.

The two teams battled at rather even terms throughout, the score being tied at the end of every period, although the Gerovcoached crew from Napanee came from behind in the initial frame. With the count standing three-all with ten minutes remaining in the middle of the last stanza and just when the fans were settling back for an overtime contest, Semark broke away and evaded all opposents to dash in on Curry, draw him out of position and score, with the local "stallion" having her players decorating the penalty box to one of the visitors.

Hinden In Goal Stars

Ab Hinton, in the Yacht Club nets, stood out as the individual star of the night with his stonewall and repeated saves between the Sailors' goal posts. Capably assisted by Hinton were Howie Wilson and Murphy were the goal-getters for the winners with Dr. Hinton, Semark, Howie, Jim Ethier and Semark striking the host-heel for the victorious Yacht Club sextette. Incidentally the win elevates the Sailors" into sole possession of second place in the group standing, with both Belleville and Napanee having but one loss during the season's schedule. As the game developed personal contact entered into the struggle and numerous bodies, body checks and cross checks were seen to be slyly handed out when the referee's back was turned. A couple of fistic encounters ensued, but strict penalties kept the game in low.

"Shad" Ethier opened the scoring early in the game when he pounced on the left boards and rifled one past Curry. Dr. Denis tonged Howie's pass-out to make it 2 to 0 for Belleville, but subsequently Murphy, Wilson and C.Jackson knotted the count as the period closed. Murphy scored on a lone rush for Napanee and Howie quickly replied to the cross when he drove the score at the end of the middle stanza. Murphy tied the home team's count but it put Napanee in the lead late in the last stanza, Jim Ethier rifled McGuffe's rebound into the net to even matters and exactly a minute-and-a-half later Semark raced through on a beautiful solo effort to make the final count 5 to 4 for Belleville. A slight fistic battle entered into the game when "Shad" Ethier and Howie crossed sticks just prior to this goal, but both were banished to the dressing rooms and the game calmly concluded.

The lineups:

Belleville Yacht club: Goal, Hinton; defence, C. Ethier and Rigby; centre, Howie; wings, Wilson and J. Ethier. Subs, Pepper, Semark, McGuire, Storms and White.

Napanee: Goal, Curry; defence, T. Bentley and F. Bentley; centre, Murphy; wings, Wilson and Polster. Subs, C. Jackson W. Jackson, Casey, Waits and Butcher (sub goal).

HOCKEY SIDELIGHTS

By RAY COLLETT

A hockey accident which caused havoc on the ice, earned a stiff stake sum for Allan Murray once, it is learned, but not a chance to try major League hockey too and it changed his destination from New York Rangers to the American's camp. It was this way.

In 1929 Buffalo sold the lightweight defenceman to Rangers after a brilliant season. In the last game of the year, however, Murray was injured, knocked cold in his head and threatening a chronic complaining. Rangers declined to accept his contract. His Buffalo manager, remembering that injury, didn't want to give him a job and Conacher and was persuaded only when he took a one-third salary cut. "Furthermore," owner Taylor growled, "I'll bet ten to one that knee don't let you finish the season."

Settled, Murray dug up the ten spot and took the bet. He finished the best year of his career and collected the smacking from his boss. Then Americans stepped in and moved him up to the N.H.L.

The lightweight was victim of another odd injury only recently. Tarzan doctors gave orders for him to remove a sliver of wood from a knee. The three-quarter-inch piece of splinter was a souvenir from Alex Smith's stick, which had been broken in a game. Murray had received the splinter from the broken hockey truncheon.

HARRY HOLDCROFT, manager of many an ambitious hockey team, guards the nets for Preston North End in the Fire, Division of English football and, although he has never risen to international honors is a great favorite with the North End fans. Tall and husky, and with a pair of the safest hands in English football, Holdcroft performs yeomen service for the club, and it is his luck his fault that they are so far down the league table this year.

PETERBORO WINS FROM BELLEVILLE IN LIVELY GAME

Score is 4-3 With Locals in Front Until Last Period

"RED" GEDDES STARS

Pete's Ace Figures in Three of Four Counters by The Winners

Peterboro, Jan. 28 (CP)—Peterboro intermediates kept themselves in the running in the O.H.A. "A" group race Monday night by defeating Belleville 4 to 3 in a fast and hard-fought battle. The Red Shirts from the east put up a stubborn argument all the way and were twice in front in the first period but the Petes came through with two counters in the last 30 minutes to take the verdict.

The game was rough, in spots and the climax came with a fistic combat between F. Morgan and Callaghan which ended in a five-minutes penalty for the pair.

Both teams scored twice in the first period, which was peppery all the way. McGuire got the first for Belleville when he scored at close range after St. Louis and H. Morgan had put him in a scoring position. Williamson evened it up on a shot from the blue line which hopped past Morton. McDonald made it 2 to 1 for the locals on a long shot that split the Peterboro defence cleanly. Soon after Ballachie evened the count for the Petes but the Belleville goal judge refused to turn on the light. Later Geddes evened the count on a gangling play with Villeneuve and Conway getting assists.

There was no scoring in the second period, but in the last session, with Belleville a man shy, Weir hammered in Geddes' pass to put the Petes ahead to stay, 3 to 2, and after the Morgan-Callaghne bout with the teams playing five men a piece Geddes added a fast one past Morton on a pass from Williamson.

Geddes figured in three of the Petes' four counters and was the best individual player for the home squad. The Belleville defence pair stood out for the losers.

Belleville—Goal, Morton; defence, Ingram and Callaghan; centre, McGuire; wings, F. Morgan and C. Morgan; subs, St. Louis, McCutcheon, H. Morgan.

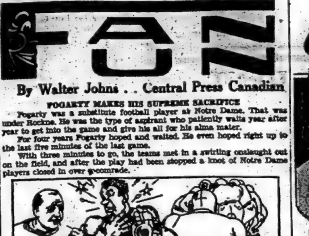
Referee—J. Sabatino, Lakefield.

QUEENS GO DOWN IN EXCITING GAME

Magedomas Consolidate Position by a 3 to 2 Win

Brockville, Ont., Jan. 28 (CP)—Brockville Magedomas consolidated their hold on first place in the Ontario senior city hockey league, when they defeated Queen's university 3-2 in an exciting game here last night.

The match produced some of the slifftest checking seen here this season and, consequently, the more strenuous, penalties numbered only eight, of which Queen's suffered six.



In a clash with Vardell Price in the first period, Elmer Woodcock, former local player now with Queen's suffered a face injury but was able to return to the ice later.

The standing after the game was Brockville 22 points; LaSalle 18; Royal Canadian Air Force and Emeralds 11; Rideaus seven and Queen's four.

On a three-man combination Thurlow hooked up with Hinds and Munro, put Queen's into the lead a few seconds before the first period and they held their advantage until the second session was about half over when Bob Gordon was penalized. In his absence Sheridan, on a pass from McDonald, scored, followed a few seconds later by McDonald notching Brockville's second on an assist from Price.

Magedomas were caught off their stride after six minutes play in the third and Johnny Wing broke through the defence to take a pass from Stuffery, who was on the boards, and neved up the score. The remaining minutes produced the most hectic hockey seen here this season and although Magedomas bombarded the Queens' net with rubber, Bill Gowsell halted their shots all safe but one, which was scored by Grabosky assisted by Dexter

FOGARTY MAKES HIS SUPREME SACRIFICE

Fogarty was a substitute football player at Notre Dame. That was understood. Rockne, who was the type of sentimental who patiently waits year after year to get into the game and give his all for his alma mater.

For four years Fogarty hoped and waited. He even hoped right up to the last five minutes of the last game.

With three minutes to go, the teams met in a swirling onslaught out on the field, and after the play had been stopped a knot of Notre Dame players closed in over a comrade.

...ne Quarterback sagged out of the scrimmage. Rockne, in turn, understood the situation, and turned to the substitutes.

"Fogarty," he shouted.

Fogarty was up like a jack-in-a-box and after a hot shower, sure that finally he was to get his chance. He pranced up to the coach with all the zip of a veteran.

"Fogarty," Rock ordered. "A man out there just had his pants ripped off. Go out and give him yours."

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

Bay of Quinte League hockey was introduced to local fans at the Arena last night, when the Belleville Yacht Club handed the Napanee Gillards their first reverse of the season, the score being 5 to 4 thanks to the last minute solo effort of Jimmie Semark. For those fans desiring and liking fast, thrilling hockey game, when most everything went, well the Bay of Quinte League is exactly their meat. Plenty of thrills were injected into the tilts last night, then fists occasionally et al—ers the order of the night. Of course the teams didn't put on a good brand of hockey and some really good players are tossed over the boards by the exhilerating fracas. Doubtlessly in the future, however, these games will be more prolific and patronized. Manager Gerow of the Gillards is deserving of a hand—hitting and sturdy defence in the Bentley brothers while Wilson, Murphy and Jackson twins were forwards of the first school. "Duke" Smith, manager of the local Yacht Club team and sponsor of the league, showed all present a real goalie in Ab Hinton, while Howie Wilson, Howie, Pepper and Semark proved able forwards towards the locals' cause.

With the pomp and glory of big time collegiate games, the Ontario Senior Interscholastic hockey group is fast gaining in popularity in Belleville. Collegiate hockey at school has its cheer section with cheer-leaders and all that goes to make up a clever of spleniety. School yells and songs are heard, which are supposed to spur on the local favorites and of course add results to their opponents. The growth in popularity of this loop is proven fact as an increased attendance is shown each successive week and local leaders are the order of the night and a keener brand of hungry will be being revelled the fans. Following each penalty schedule the group comfortably has a lead of two points and the locals have been fortunate in having a clever set of splenetic

—BY—

Ann Forester

But that expressionless exterior which Dale turned to the inquisitive town covered a heartdeadened which warned on panic. What was she to do? the girl was asking herself frantically, she was secretly fiercely ashamed of her reason for marrying Brant Kendall. Not even he Randy could she bring herself to explain all its cold-blooded calculation. No, that was a matter lying between herself and Brant Kendall she would be still more ill.

But silence brought its penalty. Brant Kendall's illness had flung a net over Dale. Dale found herself in a tangle of events, each leading to another and still another and she had the frantic fear that she was getting in so deep that she could never get out.

To her secret dismay, she found that people looked at her to direct Brant Kendall's destiny. She had met this first in the doctor's question: did she want her husband among the paying patients or in the charity ward.

With the words, Dale seemed to see the reckless eyes of Brant Kendall's head, the proud, scornful smile and the lean, hard body of the gray eyes. Involuntarily the girl's head had gone up as though in answer.

"We'll pay our way," she said softly.

So Brant Kendall lay in a small, cool room of the Cut City hospital where his face looked very thin and dark against the white pillow and—without the light of health—his gray eyes—curiously lifeless.

By the end of the week the thousand dollars—more for which they had dared so much—was in the hands of the hospital. By a simple method of safeguarding it, Dale got the money. Trish a more than legal few stick to the pudgy fingers of Lawyer Pickering she quickly blinked at. It was worth it to have the money—legal or not. There were hospital bills to meet, nurses were the incidental expenses which illness brings. And there was another problem pleading—if like a crouching beast waiting to leap upon her—the problem which each day brought closer.

The pudgy little house doctor brought the problem first to her notice on the day she stood beside Brant Kendall's bed, looking down at his unconscious figure.

"It's his old trouble, isn't it, doctor," the girl asked softly, as though those deaf ears of the old man could hear. "Sandy thought it was a fever brought on by the sun. But it's his—his lungs, isn't it?"

The little doctor peered at her through the thick glasses which made him remarkably like a goggle-eyed gold fish.

"Walking in the sun didn't help any," he said. "That wasn't the main cause though. And his lungs—what do you mean, his lungs?"

"Why—he said—that Sandy said, he—he couldn't—that is, in three months—consumption . . . you know."

"Consumption—consumption! Oh, I know. His lungs were spotted a bit a while back. But this desert air is curing her off if he gives it a chance. If he'd leave drink alone and go out in the country where he got decent rest and the sort of life the Lord intended him to lead, he could rest those hollows to his a statement."

"You mean—Dale's nails were driving into her palms, but she did not feel the pain. "You mean—— you mean he's going to live?"

"Of course he'll live!" said the little doctor testily. "He's a sick man now—and he's sick because he's abused himself with drink and lack of decent food and sleep. On his remarkable health has kept him going until now; another man would have broken long ago. This is a complete collapse, a total breakdown. He'll be as weak as a cat when he pulls out of this and he'll need careful nursing and constant care. Somebody's got to see that he rests and eats properly. But if he starts drinking and carousing again, he's done for. It's up to you, young lady, whether your husband pulls out of this or not. It rests with you."

Your husband.... It rests with you.... The doctor's words seemed to go ringing in Dale's head when she had left the hospital and was slowly walking back to Sandy's cottage. She felt sick and crushed under the weight of the disguised responsibility which had been flung upon her. Involuntarily the girl thought in a flash of rebellion. Why should she be saddled with this? Why should he accept a stranger—because she had entered into a business arrangement with him—and not, and cried, though it was unconvention-al?

But his people look after him! she thought resentfully. She could not give up her own life because of his illness. Let them come out and take charge. She would leave the money—no, she would even leave the money—her share of the money she had gotten from him—for him. Desperate impulse to obtain.

Again the memory of those scornful gray eyes of Brant Kendall's seemed to rise before her. No—Dale decided suddenly, she couldn't desert helpless people. That would be taking an advantage of him when he was helpless. He had never cadged on them—whoever they were. He had gone away from them—from them all—from Marian.....

For some reason the name stirred Dale Dale very angry. She began walking more quickly, reckless of the blazing sun. Of all the morning, and her high spirits heels seemed to be clicking defiance on the cement pavement.

Of course, marriage—real marriage—meant that she should help cultivate. She could do that for the sake of her own. Pfui, now—— someone she loved.... Pfui, now—— Her lips trembled. Don't think of Pfui. She was married, even though that marriage was a farce.

And then, for no reason at all, Dale found herself saying crossly to the empty, sun-flooded street:

"I'll bet that Mimi would run away and leave him!"

CHAPTER 14

DALE FACES THE MUSIC

There was in Dale's make-up a streak in Dale's nature which refused to let her compromise once she had made a decision. At the moment now she found her mind firmly made up.

Sandy and the white prohibition in her face when she came into the little lunch shack. Then she spoke upon him, the girl spoke.

"The doctor says he's not seriously ill—— No need to say who 'he' was—He's going to get well. That is, he will if he's careful. It isn't

"Our cause is lost and our lives with it, if he lives," replied Zvert. "I thought Tarzan died, or I should never have come. We would be fools to let our worst enemy escape."

"I cannot kill him in cold blood," said Ivitch.

"You are a fool," said Zvert.

As he spoke he drew his revolver and advanced on the unconscious ape-man, shielding his body with hers.

Zora threw herself across the speaker's body. "He saved my life and brought me back to camp. Do you think I am going to let you murder him?" she demanded.

"I am afraid you can't help yourself, Zora," replied Zvert. "It is his life or the cause. If he lives, we fail."

The girl leaped to her feet and faced Zvert. "If you kill him, Peter, I shall kill you—I swear it by everything that I hold most dear."

"Don't be a fool, Zora," snapped Zvert. "Hold him prisoner if you will," cried Zora, "but as you value your life, do not kill him." Zvert paled with anger. "Your words are treason," he said. "Traitors to the cause have died for less than what you have said."

his lungs, Sandy. It's a breakdown of his whole system. If he doesn't drink and takes care of himself, he'll get well. You said once you knew of a place where a man went away and got well—a desert ranch. I want you to find a place like that for me—for us——" Dale corrected herself. "Some place so far from town he can't come in to get a drink."

"You're a good kid, sister, but you're talking through your hat. Why, any little frail thing like you couldn't stand the heat and the hard work and the loneliness .....And you couldn't get Brant to live in the desert, not for a million dollars. He says the country gives him the Screaming Meemees."

The brown eyes of the girl narrowed. "Oh, yes, he'll go—if he has to! Sandy, find me a place."

Dale stopped because the Waffle Kid was mooning at her so oddly.

"Gosh....." said he said fervently. "Brant's the lucky guy! I wish some girl thought that much of me!"

"Don't be absurd!" she cried sharply. "I—I despise him!" Then she gulped and half apologized to the bewildered man. "Of course I didn't really mean that," she said grudgingly. "I just—Oh, well, never mind..... this is a—a business affair." Then hastily, she added: "And what else can I do? It's up to me—all of it—up to me! The doctor said—Oh, can't you see, I—I have to play the game!" Dale fell back on Sandy's own term to explain the course which seemed so simple and straight-forward in her own mind, and so complicated when she attempted to put it into words.

Game! Urns the game took on the next few days for the bewildered girl. Dale had the feeling that she had plunged wildly in the dark that night she quarrelled with Pfui and left the Primrose Bride Company.

A strange pace that impulsive leap had carried her. A month ago she had been dancing in the chorus of the road show. She had adored Phil Clifford, she had expected to marry him.

The second week had been hectic. Under Dale's driving energy Sandy had found the desert place she demanded. It was a barren half-worked ranch belonging to a former "lunger" who had grown well and was going home. The house was little more than a wooden box, the furniture was that of which looked over the desolate waves of sage and mesquite hallowing away to the horizon. What furniture there was had been so dried out by the heat that the chair rungs moved in their sockets like loosened old teeth. But there was an old stove, astonishingly dirty but in good repair. There were a few disconsolate chickens in the wired pen back of the house. There was even a shabby automobile of unknown vintage in the rickety shed. Above all the place was cheap and so far from Cut City that it seemed to fill the requirements of the doctor. Brant Kendall was going to take to the simple life, thought Dale grimly, at least for the time being!

If she had stopped to think about it, Dale might never have followed the thing through. But she plunged as boldly into this as she had plunged into her marriage with Brant Kendall.

Her heart gave a sick leap as she handed her money over to the owner of the place. Brant Kendall's money.... the wedding gift he which he had risked so much.... What would he say when he found out her high handed methods?

Well, she thought defiantly, who could he say but be grateful? How many other girls would stick with a bed bargain? Would Mimi....?

'T.B.' Survey in Collegiate

Dr. Howard St. Jean, Medical Officer of Health for Prince Edward County, Ontario, 1936

To the Editor Ontario Intelligencer.

Dear Sir:—

Kindly spare a small space in your consistent paper for the following epistle.

I have read in the local paper a few weeks ago a statement put up by the members of the Board of Education, that an effort be made to secure the approval of the parents of Belleville to permit their children to be examined by Government doctors who have devoted their life work to tuberculosis.

Having pursued this disease myself for several years, I feel I can talk on this subject with authority.

When one considers the promising which is taken in cases of contagion such as Scarlet fever, Diphtheria, Measles, etc., it seems a great pity that a disease like Tuberculosis has been overlooked, as a contagious disease and a very difficult one to cope with, and every effort should be given the greatest attention.

Only by the whole-hearted cooperation of every parent in Belleville with the doctors of the city can we hope to cope with the malady.

Our boys and girls and young men and women are being sacrificed yearly, dazed a wonderful chance of growing up to be healthy citizens, by this malaise, and any doubtful cases placed in the care of the family physician, who is able to check up on this and is in the best cure what might have proved fatal time to come another hopeless case.

A mention of cost was raised, every penny will be saved in the way of this great drive, in the interests of humanity.

Then members of the Board of Education who interested! themselves in checking this disease.

Surely no finer memorial could be erected to these men in after-life, than a healthy race of Belleville people.

May I do hope and appeal to all the parents of our city to unite and give every assistance possible to our Government doctors in the interests of our boys and girls. Only by so doing will they in time to come be able to write that comparatively few in Belleville have T. B.

Yours in the interest of humanity,

A Mother.

A two minute silence was observed in memory of the late King George by the prayer by the minister.

Mr. Elmer Rose spoke a few words regarding the members who had passed away during the year and paid a tribute to each. He urged the need of the members of the congregation to be more calling on the sick. Mr. Newman endorsed this viewpoint and thanked Mr. Rose for the help he had given during the year.

Appointments.

On behalf of the nominating committee Mr. Hudgins presented the candidates for the session by Mr. Hudgins. Nominations were closed and the following were elected as follows: Elected for three years, G. Mason, James Cordes, Mrs. Campbell. Elected for one year to fill the place of Mr. Roger Parks, J. Miss Harpett using a map, pictures and and table to illustrate her talk, taught a geography lesson on "Africa". Miss. Morrow gave an account of the life of the authoresses and the first chapter of the book. Lunch was served by the hostess and the programme committee.

Mr. George Montgomery broke a bone in his right hand while cranking his car on Thursday.

Mr. D. Mcallister was compelled to use his snowmobile this week as the snow-blocked country roads were impassable for the ordinary car.

Men are engaged in cutting ice on Cold Creek pond. The blocks measure around fourteen inches in depth.

A large number attended the Frankford L.O.L. supper and programm held on Thursday evening, January 23rd.

The farmers worked most of Thursday shovelling and ploughing out the roads leading into the villages after the blizzard and snowstorm had abated. For four days they were practically isolated and it was necessary to get to Frankford for supplies. The grocery stores and bake shops were sold out of bread early in the afternoon and a number of the farmers waited until nearly midnight for the bakers to turn out more of this necessity. Some of the farmers received no mail for three days.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Y. Cooper of Bloomfield were the guests on Thursday of Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Leavitt on Sunday.

Miss Isobel Ketcheson, Reg. N. of Ottawa, is spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Ketcheson.

A memorial service for our late Sovereign, King George V., was held in the Methodist church on Sunday evening. The pastor, Rev. J. F. Lane, chose as the topic of his address, "Christianity and the Commercial Spirit." The sermon was a splendid tribute to the fine qualities of the late King's character who was a God-fearing man and who was to be found in Church Service each Sunday and Mackenzie Memorial, for his help he had given during the year.

Quintuplets are In Perfect Health At Twenty Months

Callander, Ont., Jan. 28—(CP)—While most of the continent shivered in the past week's blizzards and snowstorms, the Dionne quintuplets slept outdoors every morning and afternoon, once in 30 below zero weather.

Last winter they slept while the mercury dropped to zero and once one day dropped to 40, zero for the quints and their nurses.

Unworried about their health, Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, their physician and guardian, thinks the more quints walk a bit more confidently every day and are becoming more interested in their attempts to form words.

All Gained Weight

They all gained in weight during the last month and each one has been tested since her last birthday. Marie, who had two new ones and Annette who has produced three new ones, are best at this test. Yvonne and Emilie each have 11 and Cecile nine. Yvonne got one new one during the month. Cecile one and Emilie two.

The Dionne quintet leading the weight parade at 23 pounds 13 1-2 ounces, four pounds heavier than Marie, the heaviest baby. Marie, who gained again during the month, half an ounce, and Annette, who gained and Marie were lowest in gains with only four ounces each, their total gain being less than any other baby.

Dr. Dafoe measured the youngsters today and found Cecile to have grown the most, to gain during the past month. She was a quarter of an inch taller than in the interim to 30 1-8-inches tall. Annette 31 1-4, Cecile 31 1-2 and Emilie 30 1-4.

Trenton and District

Trenton, Jan. 28 (Special)—Several drivers not having sufficient lights on their cars appeared before the magistrate this morning and they all paid the usual fine of one dollar.

The case of the local woman, who was charged with stealing a blanket made from the St. James Hotel on November 30th, appeared before the magistrate this morning. The local woman was the first witness and said "that she had never seen the shade and that she was not guilty." The first witness of the complainant said "that the shade was missing the beverage room about half-past one or two o'clock p.m. and that she was accompanied by her husband and another man. He told the magistrate that during the time which they were there that no one else had entered the room and right after they had gone away he noticed the shade was gone. The second witness of the complainant's stated that he had seen the local woman born the shade up to the store and that he, to get rid of the shade had taken it from her and thrown it away. He also said "that she accused her wife that she had gotten the shade from another lady in return for a pair of actress and a set of curtains. The wife of the second witness for the complainant told the same story as her husband. The accused woman gave refused again and stated that she went to the beverage room on November 30th, between 12 and 12.15 a.m. and that the second witness of the complainant's had sneaked up on him and that she had had several quarrels with him as he insisted on refreshments and caused a disturbance all night. She also said that she had several bad checks in her home and also had one which was borrowed from the complainant's second witness and it was not she who burned it, that it was he. The second's first witness stated that he had gone to the hotel with the accused and that he had never left her alone with anything. Seemingly the accused's husband, who was her second witness, could not remember much as he told the magistrate that he had been drinking and that he did state that he had left the accused and gone to the hotel with the accused and that he was in the early hours of the afternoon. As the case was now complicated the magistrate laid it over till the following hearing.

An airport engineer appeared before the magistrate this morning charging a Frankford plumber. It seems that the plumber was sitting around in the airport waiting room himself warm when out of whole the engineer came up to him and grabbed him by the shoulder, and pulling him off the bench started to scuffle with him. The plumber received the worst of the scuffle and was badly bruised on the abrasions. The magistrate found the engineer guilty and he paid a $25.20 fine.

A local boy appeared charged with forgery and as he pleaded guilty and said that he was under the influence of liquor when he committed the act the magistrate dealt with him lightly by giving him a suspended sentence of two years.

No charge was laid against the local fireman who also appeared on a charge of putting his car in a dangerous position.

Four local boys appeared charged with consuming liquor in a place other than a residence and were each fined $5 and costs. Each paid a fine of $10 and costs.

Turning left off Dundas St. east into Pitcaid Street, proved disastrous to Kitchener Lyon, driver for McEwen's grocery, who did not see the car driven by Mrs. Henry Gordon, Oriarch, which was following him. Both cars were damaged. Fred Prescott. The Day truck caught Bill McEwen truck just ahead of the driver's door which was smashed. The 25 yards down the road. Neither of the drivers occupants of either was injured. The trucks were taken to the repair shop and the damage is not yet determined.

SILVERMEN AND AIRMEN SCORE WINS IN LOOP

R.C.A.F. Defeats Wooler 5-3 in Fast, Well Played Game

Benedict And Proctor Have Easy Time in Scoring Victory

Trenton, Jan. 28 (Special)—In the fastest, cleanest Intermediate Hockey League game, played at the Arena here Monday night, the smooth-working R.C.A.F. hockey team defeated the fast-skating Wooler aggregation by the score of 5 to 3. The first period from start to finish was played at a whirlwind gate and two goals were scored by the R.C.A.F. and one by Wooler, each scored one. The first R.C.A.F. goal came after four minutes of fast play when Powers took a pass from Laing to shoot it past Brant in the Wooler goal. Laing is the star player of the Wooler team as he made many a pass from Laing. D. Rutter scored the first Wooler goal on a lone rush. R.C.A.F. forwards during the second period had a little the best of the Wooler boys, who although playing good hockey were stymied off by Gould in the R.C.A.F. net. In the first few minutes of play Gould made a fine save from a penalty for boarding and Wooler with a man short, Gould saved the Gould plenty of work to do. After Wingate returned to the ice the R.C.A.F. forwards kept up the pressure, which resulted in them scoring their third goal on a pass from Powers. One minute later Wingate scored the Airmen's fourth goal on a fine solo effort. While Laing was in the penalty box for tripping Powers, Rutter, Wooler star, scored another second goal on a lone attempt. The period ended with the R.C.A.F. leading 4-2.

From the start to the finish of the third period the R.C.A.F. team played four men up but seemed to get nowhere against the smooth defence of the Wooler boys. Two minutes of play found forward lines this period with the R.C.A.F. forwards on the evening for the Airmen and Rutter for Wooler, scoring the last goal of the night. It came when Powers won the face-off and passed to Wingate which rebounded out in front. Wingate picked it up and slammed it home. Laing climaxed the game by scoring their third and last goal of the evening.St. Johnco Ltd.

Line-up: R.C.A.F.—Goal, Gould; defence, Wingate and Pafford; wings, H. Wingate and O. Powers; centre, R. Benedict. Wooler—Brant, Summers, R. Knightly, D. Baker and T. McKell. Wooler—Brant, Summers, R. Knightly, D. Rutter and G. Rutian; wings, C. Rutian and Laing; centre, Proctor. Rutian; alternates, D. Steenburg, H. Morrow, A. Putman, M. Wilson, Referee—Jack Farrell. Referee—Ken Chambers.

Pilot Team Swamped

The second game of the evening was a one-sided affair with Benedict and Proctor drubbing Project 28 to the tune of 11 to 0. The Pilot team was swamped and Proctor boys scored two goals. The first by J. Beale on a pretty play through the whole Project team. About five minutes later Benedict scored on a pass from Hammons for the second. Three penalties in the second period kept Project going to the Silvermen and one to the Project. The period ended with Benedict and Proctor leading 2-0. Benedict and Proctor and Blondin in their net had nothing to do most of the period but in the last period added four goals to their total. Proctor tripped in front of goal and scored by Johnson on a pass from J. Beale. J. Beale scored a pretty goal when he carried it through to the Project's defence, passed over to Hammons, who passed back to Beale's fourth goal on a pass from Johnson. Don't think that the Project players weren't trying, for they were, but they seemed to lack the finishing touch around the Benedict net. The period ended with the Benedict and Proctor boys 6-0. Harvey of the Silvermen opened the third period by scoring while short handed on a pass from Benham. Currie of the Project received a penalty for tripping and right after the face-off at the Benedict blue line Proctor took a pass from Wells to give Benedict eight goals. LaBelle scored Benedict's ninth on a pass from Wells while J. Beale scored their tenth on a pass from Bowden. T. Beale ended Benedict's scoring spree when he scored their eleventh and last goal of the night from the Project's blue line. From then on till the end of the game, Project boys gave Blondin in the Silvermen's net plenty of work to do but he proved to be equal to the task they were. The standouts for the Benedict were J. Beale, T. Beale and F. Beale while Currie, Lott and Graham made the best showing for the Project.

Line-up: Benedict and Proctor—Goal, G. Blondin; defence, E. Beale and J. Beale; wings, N. Wells and J. Beale; centre, T. Blakely; alternates, R. Johnson, D. Beale, J. LaBelle, F. Parish, C. AT THE REGENT

"Ah Wilderness"

Already Discussed as one of 1936's Ten Best Pictures

Teaming two of the greatest figures on the screen today in a story that is destined to rank among the great dramas and a cross-section of average life in America, "Ah Wilderness" Eugene O'Neill's great drama of family life, adolescent love, and the march of the years" comes to-morrow, (Wednesday), for three days, inclusive.

Wallace Beery, fresh from triumphs in "China Seas", O'Shaughnessy's Boy" and other hits, stars as Uncle Sid, the lovable, ineffectual bachelor uncle of Cecil's many human characters, with Lionel Barrymore as the father, Nat Miller, whose role played on the stage respectively by George M Cohan and Will Rogers.

Clarence Brown, director of such outstanding successes as "Romance", directed the story, into which he literally put much of his own life, reproducing the atmosphere of school graduation in the action. It was Brown who directed Barrymore in "A Free soul" which won the renowned star the Academy Award.

The cast hand-picked, is as unusual as the gripping story itself. The two high school lovers are played by Eric Linden and Cecilia Parker, Lily, the pathetic aunt, is played by Aline MacMahon, Wallace Beery, veteran character actor, Mickey Rooney, boy comedian of "Midsummer Night's Dream", Frank Albertson, Spring Byington, Helen Flint, Bonita Granville, Edward Ellis, and Cecil Kelly fills in love with the girl he has been sending the money to.

Matters between Morrison and Kelly, of course become extremely complicated upon their return to camp and reach a climax when a fight between the two in the S.C.O. boys are called upon to help break it up.

Also on the same program, "Forced Landing"—thirteen passengers on a air liner crowded down on an isolated spot in Arizona. A sky high murder sends a plane to the ground in the night and leaves two smart hits at 2.30, 6.30 and 9.05.

"There will be no matinee on Tuesday. Regular performance starts at 7.30.

AT THE CAPITOL

"It's a Great Life"

Two Smart Features; "Forced Landing" Second Hit

The first motion picture drama based on the government's C.C.C. camps comes to the Capitol Theatre today under the title of "It's a Great Life" and proves that every effort Paramount put into its production has worth while.

With these three handling the principal roles, with Charles Chaplin cast as the jailbird old Civil War veteran, and with three leading juvenile stars—Bay Kelley, David Holt and Gloria Ann Whitney—taking part, there is a cast that makes first-rate entertainment.

Joe Morrison, who sings two numbers during the film, is the small-town boy who persuades his brother and sweetheart to let him join the C.C.C. because he can't find work. Rosalind Keith is the childhood sweetheart and sole support of her motherless brothers and sister, Morrison, en route to camp, meets Paul Kelly, they become fast friends and the two join the C.C.C. together.

Kelly, a bobo, has no family to receive his twenty-five dollars a month and Morrison arranges to have the checks sent to Rosalind and her three dependents. Then comes the day when Morrison finds Kelly receiving the mail, and Kelly falls in love with the girl he has been sending the money to.

Matters between Morrison and Kelly, of course become extremely complicated upon their return to camp and reach a climax when a fight between the two in the S.C.O. boys are called upon to help break it up.

"There will be no matinee on Tuesday. Regular performance starts at 7.30.

AT THE STRAND

"Wilderness" is never a preachment, but teaches while it entertains, by playing before the audience, actual human life, undisguised by any fictional trappings.

Director Temple is appearing at the Belle Theatre for the last times to-day and to-night and Saturday, "The Little Rebel". Two complete shows will be presented commencing at 7.10 and 9.15 p.m.

EVERY MUSCLE STRAINING AS PONIES THUNDER TO THE WIRE—The boys who follow the ponies nearly rolled themselves bosom and waist into several kinds of fits as these beauties thundered down the stretch at Miami, none to none. As you can see, they are running an almost dead heat, and many of the spectators thought that's how they finished. However the official nod went to the horse and Pegasus Pilot, second place in picture of a horse finish, right taken. Note the rippling muscles on the thoroughbreds and the sety grim expressions on their rider's faces. Every nerve is strained to squeeze that last inch of speed in the final spurt.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 29, 1936

NEW MONARCH RECEIVES EDEN IN CONFERENCE

RICHARD LOEB'S DEBT TO SOCIETY IS STAMPED PAID

Perpetrator of "Perfect Crime" Slain by Fellow Convict

HORRIBLY SLASHED

Razor Used in Attack And Killer Says He Acted in Self Defence

JOLIET, Ill., Jan. 29 (AP)—Richard Loeb's debt to society contracted by the murder of Bobby Franks was stamped paid today in his own life blood.

Victim of an apparently insane attack by a fellow convict, former "perfect crime" slayer Loeb's life, 20 years sentence yesterday was completed in violence unlike the one that which brought him to the grim Stateville Penitentiary 14 years ago.

Razor Slashes

Loeb's body was horribly slashed with 58 gaping razor wounds, one of which almost severed his head completely. He died within two hours despite frantic efforts of prison physicians who resorted to blood transfusions.

Nathan Leopold, Loeb's partner in what they planned and executed as the "perfect crime"—the brutal slaying of Robert Franks, 14, refused to discuss the latest development affecting all questions of prison authorities with "I decline to take we."

A. R. Bowen, director of the state department of public welfare, promised a searching investigation of the slaying. He cited Illinois' Attorney William R. McCabe and Warden Joseph E. Ragen in condemning six convicts.

The State's Attorney said early today he had prepared a warrant charging Day with murder. He added it would be served after the coroner's jury made its recommendation. All of Sunday called for today.

The body of Loeb, 30 years old, was taken from the prison to Chicago secretly. State's Attorney McCabe said he understood the victim would be buried in Chicago but Loeb's family declined to make public any of the details.

Many Angles Unearthed

The preliminary inquiry into Loeb's violent death unearthed many unusual angles which remained to be solved by the prison authorities.

Day was quoted as saying, "I killed him in self-defence."

Captain Austin Guernsey of the prison staff, who heard Loeb's screams and rushed into the corridor reported Day handed him a bloody razor, saying, "Here is the razor. I killed him in self-defence. That man (Loeb) tried to attack me."

Bowen also quoted Day as saying "Loeb had been bothering me with indecent advances for a long time."

He said attendants, George Hinz and Robert Carey, told him Day had been under similar attack and he did not eat or sleep well and he had been "brooding over Loeb's solicitations."

Both Naked at Time

Bowen declared Day's story did "not seem very reasonable." He pointed out Loeb suffered wounds all the wounds, although Day had a black eye. Both Loeb and Day were naked at the time of the attack.

Another unexplained angle was how Day and Loeb were together at the time of the attack although they men were semi-invalids. Day was assigned as a sweeper in the Warden's room office until 3.30 p.m. daily. The attack on Loeb took place around 1 p.m. and at 1.05 p.m.

Warden Ragen explained Day's black eye by saying convicts reported he had been in a fight with Loeb Monday night. Other convicts, however, told him the two men were on friendly terms. Bowen said he obtained another statement to the effect Day reached the block are last Friday in a fight with another convict.

McCabe quoted Day as saying he went to Loeb and said: "I want to straighten out that difficulty with you now."

Loeb's reply, he said, was "I'm busy now, I'll see you in about five minutes."

Mist in Lavatory

A short time later the two met in a lavatory, being remodeled to house a correspondence school which Leopold and Loeb were conducting for the prison inmates.

Day told McCabe when Loeb entered the room he said, "you take off your clothes and I'll take off mine."

Both men undressed and Day charged Loeb thrashing him. Day said Loeb drew a razor, one of 40 used in the prison barber shop.

Day contended in his statement he disarmed Loeb and slashed in self defence. Loeb finally fled from the room and staggered 50 feet down a corridor.

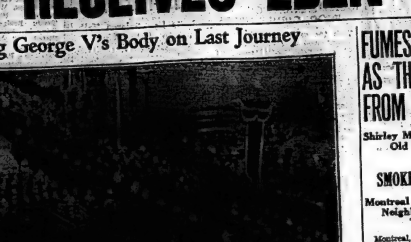
Rising Temperature is Forecast in Lakes Section of Ontario

(By the Canadian Press)

Canada's Maritime Provinces and mineral belt of Ontario today staggered under winter conditions as severe as anything experienced this season.

The Atlantic coast area counted one dead and two fishermen missing as it fought its way out of a terrific blizzard while Northern Ontario exhibited a series of sub-zero temperatures.



Tonight the weather appeared to have moderated from the severe cold of the last few days, one of the Great Lakes section of Ontario riding temperatures were forecast.

At Springhill, N.S. 52 year old Alex Gillespie struggled against the blizzard to reach his home. He was scarcely in the door when he dropped to the floor, exhausted by the fight against the storm, and died.

The two missing fishermen were Andrew Nelson and Sartol Anderson who set out on the ice from Fundy Jobster grounds Monday and have not been heard from since.

In New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, thousands of unemployed worked to dig the country out of huge snow drifts.

Queen Mary Resumes Her Customary Round of Daily Duties

London, Jan. 29 (CP)—King Edward VIII turned from the grave of King George V today to affairs of state and troubled Europe.

He rose early to receive Anthony Eden, youthful Foreign Minister, before conferring separately with Prince Ernst Von Hohenberg, the anti-Nazi pro-Italian Vice-Chancellor of Austria, and Baron Konstantin Von Neurath, Hitler's Foreign Minister, representatives of their countries at the obsequies of King George.

Eden went from Buckingham Palace to a cabinet session lasting nearly two hours. It was reported cabinet debate centred about Italian demands for expansion of national defence. Informed quarters have predicted Britain will ask a heavy defence loan possibly as high as $1,-000,000,000 to bolster and recondition the arms of Britain. Budget estimates are to be laid before parliament next Tuesday.

Rhineland Activity.

Reports from Paris that Rhineland Premier Hitler, French Foreign Minister, had discussed French alarm over German activities in the demilitarized Rhineland were not denied in authoritative circles.

The conference was followed by a call at Buckingham Palace by Lord Shaftsbury who was received by the king. He read an address of loyalty and condolence on behalf of the House of Lords.

Undaunted by the fatigue of yesterday's ceremonials, the Queen Mother Mary resumed her customary round of daily duties this morning.

TEXTILE FACTORY AGAIN OPERATES

Officials Say Rayon Goods From Japan Not as Cheap as Formerly

Montreal, Jan. 29—(CP)—Because Japanese rayon goods are not being offered at such low prices as in former years, girls and women workers in the Dominion Textile plant at Cornwall, Ont., have been at work today after a five and one-half days lay-off.

Competition from Japanese goods was still strong enough, however, that there will be no night shift at the plant for some time to come, G. Blair Gordon, managing-director, declared last night.

"For some time past," he said, "the influx of Japanese rayon goods have been quoting exceedingly low prices throughout Canada, and the prices they were quoting. When prices were lower than the whole of Europe we stood somewhat."

Appointment of a Royal Commission to investigate Canadian textile industry had nothing to do with the re-engagement of the workers, he said.

ALBERT COLLEGE HOLDS MEMORIAL

Students Pay Solemn Tribute to Late King George V.

Purple-draped and impressively solemn, Albert College, the Old College, Tuesday morning, when the students and faculty gathered and united in mourning to do loyal homage with Canada and the Empire to the memory of the late King. The service for His Late Majesty King George V. was conducted by the Students Christian Movement of the College. Six students were chosen by that loyal representing many sections of Ontario participated in the service, each lauding the loyalty and reverence at the very moment when in England, thousands of miles away, to the deep solemn tones of London bells, the funeral cortege was being slowly borne to his last resting place in St. George's Memorial Hall.

Principal Howard, in a fitting invocation, called attention to the solemnity of the occasion and paid tribute to the graciousness of the late monarch, a tribute we can do no better than emulate and to the sterling, manly humble way, we do pay our deepest respect". Following the singing of the hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee", Jos Clarke of St. Thomas, delivered a short, but impressive address, on the inimitable lines from the pen of Rudyard Kipling, entitled:

"The glories of our blood and state
Are shadows, not substantial things;
There is no armour against fate;
Death lays its icy hands on kings."

Mr. Clarke, in the course of his address, said that it was the duty of every student to be loyal to the memory of the late King, and to the present Sovereign, King Edward VIII.

CONVICT BLAMES INDECENT OFFER

Says Loeb Forced Him to Attempted Attack in Shower-Room

Joliet, Ill., Jan. 29 (AP) —A coroner's jury today heard the sordid story of how Richard Loeb, slayer in the "thrill murder" of Bobby Franks in 1924, was slashed to death in a prison shower-room yesterday.

The fellow convict who killed Loeb —21 year old James Day, Chicago, smoked nervously as he told the jury of inquest that the killer's story "indecent advances" by Loeb brought the fatal knife into play.

Day chose not to testify after he was informed it was his constitutional right to remain silent, since he faces trial for murder.

The young former Morton High School athlete gave testimony before making this decision.

Life Miserable

"My life has been miserable here ever since I entered the place."

"Day is sane but emotionally unbalanced," said Dr. Wm. Glueck, prison psychiatrist.

He has been apprehensive for several weeks about possible sex problems."

Grim digging into prison secrets for a motive the inquest turned up new testimony that Warden John Nagen testified the razor which killed Loeb was one of several used in the cellhouse barber shop as was first believed.

Day's story of the fatal battle—a story which brought a state and county inquiry into prison conditions—was repeated by Edward Pulcinski, chief investigator for the county state's attorney.

Indecent Assault Charged

"Day told me he met Loeb in the shower room," Powers related. "He said Loeb then asked him to submit to an indecent act. Day refused. Day said Loeb then came up with a razor. Day kicked Loeb in the groin. They fought for several minutes.

"Day claims the razor changed hands several times in the scuffle," Fred Powers said.

Day's story that Loeb was the assailant was doubted by many here, however, and he was formally charged today with murder. Hagen said Day was placed in a segregated cell from the other prisoners until he was let before the coroner's jury.

From Dr. Larson the jury heard the young killer, apparently hysterical, was screaming "Give me another razor!" when the psychiatrist examined him yesterday.

Razor Wounds

The doctor referred to the fatal battle in the shower-room from which Loeb staggered bleeding from 56 razor wounds, as "this episode."

"This episode was not the nature of a panic reaction, on Day's part," he said. He called the young convict "an egocentric personality," treated in 1933 "for hysterical depression."

It was his "impression," the psychiatrist said, that Day was mentally normal.

REDFERN SEEKERS REPORTED SAFE

Fliers Ran Out of Gas in Jungles of Dutch Guiana

Georgetown, British Guiana, Jan. 29.—Air William Redfern, his co-pilot, Harry Wendt, are safe at Springlands on the Corentyne River in the northeastern Dutch Guiana frontier, authorities were advised late yesterday.

A wireless message from Springlands said the two occupants of a party searching for Paul Redfern, American flyer missing since 1927 on a flight from Natal, Brazil, to Rio de Janeiro, had reached the town by motor launch from Nenabbs, a small village 36 miles up-river.

The message reported Williams and Redfern had to land on the river near the village during a violent rainstorm because they ran out of gasoline. Americans then took the launch into Springlands to await a new supply of gasoline for the return trip from Georgetown.

Airship for the two men had been aroused when they failed to reach Arasatau on a 400-mile flight from Georgetown.

Their trim Irish flying boat was carrying supplies to the left-power boundary commission there and for the search for Redfern. Sir George Sill, British Guiana timber merchant and an Indian guide who said he could lead them to Redfern, were awaiting them at Arasatau.

Obituary

MRS. LAURA KERR

After an illness of about two months' duration, Mrs. Laura Kerr, late residence Belmont Apartments, Front Street, died at the Belleville General Hospital, on Tuesday, Jan. 28th.

The late Mrs. Kerr was in her 88th year and was born at Peterboro, Ont., her parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. William Pratt, who were residents of Belleville for many years. For the past three years, Mrs. Kerr made her home in this city and by all who knew her she well esteemed. In religion she was a member of the Church of England.

Surviving her are one son-in-law, Lt.-Col. Fred Hughes, of Northland, Ontario; one sister-in-law, Mrs. Ann Pratt, Belleville, and one nephew, Mr. Harry Penn of Belleville.

The body of the late Mrs. Kerr is resting at the Martin Funeral Home, Church Street. Funeral notice announcement appears elsewhere in this paper.

THOMAS F. REID

Thomas F. Reid, brother of ex-Mayor George A. Reid and Miss Hattie Reid of this city, and one of the best known residents in Kingston township, passed away quietly at his home shortly after two-thirty this morning. His unexpected death followed an illness of but brief duration.

The game had not been reported since early Sunday when it flew over the Macdonnie Aluminum Works, 6 miles up the Deseronto River from here.

As soon as Williams and Wendt reach Arasatau the party will re-enter the jungle they left two weeks ago after searching from early December. In Georgetown last week, Williams said they had found "definite traces" of the missing flyer and were forced by darkness and lack of supplies to give up the search temporarily just when it seemed "most promising".

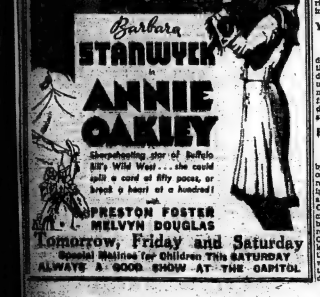
No word has been received from any other parties in the hinterland on the same quest. An American one was led by J. H. Rosh and C. Peach and a Dutch one by H. Van Leyndel.

A fourth party was nearing Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana, to join the search. It was led by W. L. Parrel, former commander of a Canal Zone American Legion post.

Born in Camden township 86 years ago, the late Mr. Reid had carried on the occupation of farming in Kingston township for the past many years. A staunch Conservative all his life and a member of Enterprise Loyal Orange Lodge, No. 631, he had always taken an active part in affairs of that community. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church, Kingston.

Left to mourn his loss besides ex-Mayor George A. Reid and Miss Hattie Reid of this city, are his sydow, formerly Miss Senula Graham of Enterprise; two sons, Frasier of the Robt. Simpson Co., Toronto, and Ross, at home. Two daughters, Mrs. George Simpson, Tamworth; Mrs. Marshall Preston, Napanee, and one brother, Robert M. Reid, also remain. The Rev. Harold Reid of this city is a nephew.

The funeral will be held from the late residence in Kingston Township on Friday.



HAND LACERATED IN CUTTING ICE

Mark Storms, Local Boxer, Escapes Serious Injury

While assisting in the operation of an ice-cutting machine on the bay this morning, Mark Storms, local boxer and employee of the J. Cornell and Sons Ice Company, sustained severe hand lacerations when in some unknown manner his right hand came in contact with the operating saw. Storms was taken to the surgery of Dr. R. A. Fyrne by his fellow-workers, where the cuts were dressed. Fortunately Storms did not lose any of his fingers, although the whirling saw struck his right hand in the fleshy part of the palm, ripping large gashes and severing two muscles. The injury was painful, as the flesh was jagged at points. The well-known young man was able to return home.

Community Hall at Stirling Filled to Overflowing For Event

Picton Memorial Service

PICTON —(Special)— Citizens representative of every walk in life packed Picton Armouries at ten o'clock on Tuesday morning for the public memorial service to our late sovereign, King George the Fifth. His Worship, Mayor Norman presided, and the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment had the band in attendance. The platform had a bank drop draped in black, with purple overdraping. In the centre hung a large portrait of the late king, over which hung a large gilt crown. On the platform were the ministers of the different denominations, Thos. Stoverman, M.P.P., Reeve Thos. Gunning, Mrs. Gerald Allison, Regent I.O.D.E., Miss V. McLean representing the Girl Guides, Mr. VanOott of the Boy Scouts, and Judge McLean.

In his opening remarks, Mayor Norman recalled, that he had spoken at the memorial service to the late King Edward the Seventh, similar in character to the service today, and that he considered himself very fortunate to have lived in this past quarter of a century, that had seen the world now bounded only by the skies, when school children had such advantages for broad education, and we all were privileged to associate with so many men with master minds.

Rev. C. C. Winter gave the opening prayer of thanksgiving for the blessings we had enjoyed under King George. All then joined in the hymn "O God, Our Help in Ages Past," after which Mr. Winter read the burial sentences as they had been read at the late King's funeral service.

Rev. David Wren read Psalm 90, with the gathering reciting the responses. Rev. S. M. Scott read the Scripture lesson, Chapter 21 of the Book of Revelations.

Judge McLean in a splendid address eulogized the late King. George's add spoke further on the tremendous duties that devolved upon the monarch of a great empire.

The meeting closed with the hymn "Abide With Me", prayer by Captain Batten of the Salvation Army, the National Anthem, played by the band, followed by the "Dead March in Saul".

Stirling Memorial Service

Stirling, (Special)—As the hour of eleven approached on Tuesday morning nearly six hundred citizens of the Stirling District gathered for the special Memorial service conducted by the clergy of all local churches, who took part in the solemn service. Every available seat was filled and extra provision made for those who came within a few minutes of the appointed hour. Old and young alike took their places quietly and reverently in the auditorium as the soft organ music pealed out the favourite hymns of the late Majesty King George V. Dim lighting and the draped picture of the late Sovereign were all that attracted the attention of the quiet audience none of whom spoke above a whisper as the organ preludes was being played. At eleven o'clock the members of the Stirling Legion B.E.S.L. marched quietly and reverently down the aisle and took their places in the first two rows of seats which were reserved for their accommodation. School children marched in solemn respect and quietness to their places.

HANDLING CROWD QUITE BUNGLED

Scotland Yard Chiefs Are Censured by The Commissioner

By G. H. ANDERSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Jan. 29—(AP)— Police Commissioner Sir Philip Game called a conference of Chiefs of Scotland Yard today after arrangements broke down in the handling of the vast crowds at yesterday's funeral for King George V.

Estimates 1,500,000 persons would view the funeral procession route from Westminster Hall to Paddington Station, where the body was placed in a train for Windsor was exceeded by at least 500,000, resulting in scenes of tumult at some points.

Never before had so many ceremonials occurred during a procession through London. 10,000 persons having received ambulance treatment.

Police and cavalry were forced to drive lanes through the throngs to maintain order.

An attempt to clear the processional route.

The pressure of the crowds was so great, it became known, in several places troops were unable to present arms in salute as the procession passed.

Even the sailors drawing the gun carriage on which the royal coffin was borne to its final resting place beneath St. George's Chapel of Windsor Palace were forced to change their eight-deep formation to pass through the narrow lane.

The press recalled that 35,000 troops lined the streets for the funeral of King Edward VII in 1910, and point out, only one-third that number were employed yesterday to

Officers of the Coldstream Guards, of which King George was honorary colonel, carry their draped colors on parade as the death of the monarch is announced to the regiment. (Central Press)

"The arrangements made over the greater part of the route were utterly inadequate and the margin of safety left, dangerously narrow," criticized the News Chronicle.

The Telegraph asserted:

"Perhaps it was not sufficiently realized in the years since Edward's funeral in 1910 the population of metropolitan London and the home counties has been enormously increased and the transport facilities for bringing them to the centre have grown correspondingly.

"The eight days of solemn ceremonial since the death of King George the night of Jan. 20 at Sandringham ended with the lowering of his coffin into Windsor tomb.

SYMPATHY OF NATIONS

The British world appreciates the kindly expressions of sympathy from other nations in their national loss in the death of King George and particularly in the case of the United States, which in this solemn time has shown so heartfelt a sympathy with the sorrowing British people. On Monday evening at a private state dinner given by King Edward the Eighth, following ancient customs, His Majesty expressed in no uncertain manner his own appreciation and that of the royal family and of the British People of the kindliness of the United States and its people.

For more than a week the U.S. newspapers and the radio broadcasts have been dominated by the news in connection with the demise of the British monarch. Newspapers, news commentators, radio announcers, public speakers, ministers, all felt that a great figure in the world had passed and recognized their duty to present to their people in its fullness everything of interest in connection with the royal life just closed.

The absorption of the United States people's interest in the final scenes in London and at Windsor Castle was indicated on Tuesday when there was but one theme throughout that Republic—the funeral of the King.

Canadians as British subjects feel closely drawn to the United States by the warmth of their interest in the monarch and sympathy in the Empire's mourning.

The same may be said of many other lands, which were represented at the last rites and which have given testimonials to the appeal the late King had for them.

All goes back of course to the late King himself who was brotherly and made himself a brother of rulers or executives throughout the world.

FRANK H. SIMONDS

Frank H. Simonds, noted commentator on current world affairs has gone. He regarded himself as retired and last a reporter, a collector of facts at first hand.

The New York Herald-Tribune in whose columns a number of his articles appeared points out that this man's facts were never the warmed-over conclusions of other observers, for he lived mentally by direct contacts, whether with the actual scene or with human beings. His background of reality has been praised by everyone. An error of judgment was very rare with him, when his forecasts went wrong it was generally because of some unknown factor.

The Herald-Tribune continues:

"There is much misunderstanding of reporting, and the outsider has little comprehension of why "reporter"—as for Frank Simonds—was the proudest of newspaper titles. To the task of observing and writing the able reporter brings an endless amount of experience and learning. The early years of study as a boy that Mr. Simonds gave to war—to the tactics and strategy of American and European battlefields—and that qualified him uniquely as an expert at the outbreak of the the great war, can serve as the perfect example of journalistic preparation that came true.

"We are proud to recall that Mr. Simonds wrote some of his most distinguished articles for this page and for the news columns of the Herald. His associates will long remember his flashing wit and his kindly smile. For if it was easy to disagree with his thrusting opinions, it was also impossible to dislike him. His gift for friendship was as strong as his gift for words. It is hard to think that his loyal heart can beat no more."

All his observations on world affairs he couched in language that was vigorous, epigrammatic, and in the eyes of some of his critics, a trifle occasional. Mr. Simonds' style was the man himself. He was a wit. Painstaking in the gathering of evidence on affairs that interested him, he always was capable of making up his mind. Once he had his own mind made up he started to make up the minds of others.

JUST OLD TIME WINTER

Winter has assumed its old time form and has been gaining ground for the past three years from those gallant forecasters who saw a change in climate as definitely established. Many recall how four or five years ago it used to be the custom of some to declare that the old time winters had gone for good and that the winter season had become warmer.

Time has shown those men that they were wrong and satisfied those who doubted them, that they knew not what they were talking of. It scarcely seemed natural that there should be a great change in a few years particularly when one had to consider that not alone the climate as affects this part of Canada but the great problem of nature in her relation to this globe was involved. Changes if they come should naturally come slowly, so imperceptibly that no one would notice them in a lifetime or perhaps in many generations. Some radical change which would affect our climate would have other radical and probably disastrous effects.

No, nature has her own way. One winter may be mild, two or three may be mild but it is the average which counts. And the average doubtless will show up about the same for many generations. It may be that the cultivation of the country and the removal of forests has an effect in lessening precipitation. But that was not what the forecasters claimed. They claimed a new climate.

The present winter is living up to a good average, as did last winter following the intensely severe weather of two years ago, which itself followed on several mild winters.

THE GARDENER SPEAKS

I could not throw a flower away,
As I have seen some others do
Uncaringly, as if to say,
"O faded thing, what use are you?"

But tenderly, and with a sigh,
As one might part from any friend,
I'd lay a dear dead blossom by,
So it with mother-earth might blend.

From there, unseen by my dull eyes,
Through Nature's strange alchemic power
A rare elixir may arise
To vivify some other flower.

"WANTED MALE BABY, SIX MONTHS OLD, American birth. Wanted to be developed into musical genius. Selected baby cared for, tutored, all expenses paid. Any"—etc. etc. Thus reads an advertisement in a New York newspaper. Somebody, apparently has had a rush of ideas to the brain, culminating in this grand idea of a synthetical musical genius; a large and juicy meal-ticket from the cradle to the grave and then some. Musical heritage, if any, is stressed, but not important a musical genius is going to be made out of a six months old baby whether the baby likes it or not. For ideas bizarre and goofy the amazing Yankee is peculiar.

THOSE WHO SUFFER FOOLS GLADLY must burn up at times, for the action of fools is at times so exasperating that no one could suffer them gladly. A New York newspaperman tells of receiving a telegram from a Western City which stated that the sender could clear up certain mysterious phases of the Hauptman-Lindburgh kidnapping case. As this was only one of hundreds of similar nuisances, the telegram was turned over to the Federal authorities. The message was traced to a libidious traveling salesman, who was known to be smart and accordingly concocted the message. The G-Men brought the joke home to him with a bang, uncovered the fact that he was known for about two miles along the road Madoc Road before they were stopped. No damage resulted.

THE SIKHS OF INDIA ARE AN INTERESTING RACE, fine of physique and brave. Their habitat is the Northwest frontier of India where those who remain alive must be courageous, as here the most murderous Paythan with his silent approach and his long knife skins alive anything with whom he may destroy, together with others of the same ilk are delighted to get the handing out sudden death in various horrible ways. The Sikhs make good British soldiers and have served with credit in many wars. Captain Cavell, British cavalry officer, a recent visitor to Belleville, tells some interesting facts about the Sikhs. They make a strong point of keeping a religion and no baby of the Sikhs is allowed to live unless it shows evidence of developing into robust maturity. One of the baby tests is to throw the infant up on the thatched roof of a hut. If the baby makes an effort to clutch the thatch to save itself from falling that baby is accepted into the tribe with all the honors of the clan, but if it make no effort to save itself it is allowed to roll off the roof to meet death below. Another test is to throw the new-born baby into a lake and if the baby splash and make a fuss it is taken out and given the blessing of the clan, but if it make no effort and sinks it is permitted to drown as no worthy of living to carry on estate as a Sikh. Speaking about caste, the curse of India, Captain Cavell gave an instance from his own experience. He was ordered to interview a Maharajah at a considerable distance away upon military matters. The Maharajah appointed four o'clock in the morning for the interview, and the explanation as given by a servant was that the presence of a Christian polluted the Maharajah, and he made the appointment early so that he could purify himself before breakfast at nine o'clock. Even a British soldier in India is as low as the lowest low-caste native to the high-caste Hindu and very little above the lowest of the low, the "Untouchables."

A reporter counted fifty loads at one time on the square and loads were coming and going constantly. It is safe to estimate that at least 100 loads were offered for sale today. A citizen counted twelve loads in sight at Hotel Street at ten o'clock. This means at least $300.00 to the farmers. This business is due to the good sleighing.

Men's Wardrobe For Coming Year Is Vari-Colored

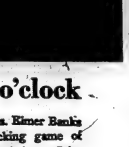
Toronto, Jan. 29.—(CP)—Arbiters of men's fashions have decreed a 1936 wardrobe as vari-colored as an artist's palette. Here is what the well-dressed man will wear, according to the forecast of the fashion committee of the National Association of Merchant Tailors of America and the Merchant Tailor designers' Association, in convention here:

For formal evening wear: black or midnight blue suits with shorter waist and streamlined tails eight inches longer. Flashy capes of Royal Blue lined with brilliant scarlet, purple, blue or white silk. Blue or black shoes. Blue or black silk hat.

For informal evening wear:—Dinner jackets of all shades of wine, orange, plum, green, blue or white, colored facings and iridescent linings to match. Single or double-breasted dinner coats for summer or evening, tango, beige, Quaker green, plum, Basque, Gulf Stream blue and pastel shades, worn with black cummerbund and dark evening trousers. Host suits of soft cashmere will be in pastel shades. Pastel pleated shirts, colored evening pumps, soft silk hats or white tops in colors, and studs and cuff links of emerald, amethyst, ruby and sapphire.

For lounge wear—Sack suits have lost their padded shoulders and the coat is one inch longer. Norfolk jackets of tweed and informal slacks remain popular for sport, for country and town wear. Fabrics are brighter.

For all-round weather—Overcoats with fur collars and fur lining. The Guardsman model with flared skirt remains popular. Plaids and checks are decreed for business and sport.



ACTION IN ETHIOPIA—Both Italian and Ethiopian officials are claiming big victories in the action centred around Makale on the northern frontier. Military experts believe the Ethiopians have the upper hand. Map shows locals of action in north. Ethiopians admit reverses on Southern front.

Reeve Filled Up to Missed Item of the Year

Saturday night the people who came into Stirling for the first time in more than a week, for which the storms of the past week in the side-roads of the district in many instances were responsible, turned up. In the immediate vicinity of the village, the snow was not so heavy as one of course where the strong winds had whipped it into huge drifts, but to the north much snow had fallen and even the Marmora way, where the public had to...self in making his trips throughout the winter, without a man, found the going very heavy. The Petersboro bus on one trip pushed snow ahead of the snow plow for a mile or so of the top of the radiator and finally had to give it up, and worked its way through to the spare plugs and stalled the motor. But these are times when have become a part of every community along their route during the winter, on days when snow plows died in the attempt. Ridge Road was completed still Saturday.

In the majority of districts now however the roads are reported clear and farmers are again able to take the trips in their cars. Mr. Ward, a veteran business man of Stirling, who has been confined to bed with his place of business, was unable to attend a few days this week, but not because of the storms, but the cold or warm he is always on the job. A few days ago he contracted a cold and was persuaded to remain in bed until it recovers. It is now more than a little, rough weather to interfere with his daily routine. Interesting Items Gathered Here

Drew to a Close

During the past few weeks large congregations have attended with interest the services in the many United services on the life of Paul. With the aid of the collection of Rev. Jas. A. J. Kofford has presented a great deal of interest in these services. Artistically coloured by some of the world's most eminent painters, he has portrayed clearly the impression gained by the life of this great servant of the Master. Mrs. Ward operated the pictures throughout and spoke in a most effective manner. Music provided for these services was also delightful and well served. The manner in which Rev. Kofford conducts these interesting services was such a delight to the congregation that many expressed regret with that the series had been greater in length. The climax to these services took place on Sunday evening when Paul made his final appeal to Caesar.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking and thinking in his private chair and ma said, Willyum, you look pooerly basicsome in that like.

How did you reckonise me? pop said, and ma said, But now about modest, you know very well everybody thinks you're a little gentlemanlooking, and why shouldn't they?

Sure it's a free country pop said, and ma said, I'm serious Willyum, you look pooerly basicsome in that like.

If anybody's enough intrusted in me to want to know how I'm looking, they know where I live, pop said, and ma said, But how about modesty?

What did they ever do for me? pop said. Besides, these so called good photographers want as much for taking your picture as a first class surgeon asks for taking your appendix. Herb Lewis just ordered a half a dozen reproductions of his homely mug and the bill was 18 dollars. Imagine 18 dollars about squeezing a little bulb, he said, and ma said, How Willyum dont be unfair. There's a lifetime of art behind that apparently thawtless process, she said.

Well, I suppose so, pop said. There's tricks in every trade, but I guess for a man to snap your best features and miss your worst wrinkles is quite a career in itself he said, and ma said, Then you admit an expert fotographer really earns his money. I'm glad to hear you say so, Willyum, because I had Jackson and Wazon take mine this afternoon. But it was a real bargain. I had a special reduction coupon on that entitles me to a half dozen full size poses for only 12 dollars instead of their usual flat rate of 36 fifty, she said.

Oh my gosh, pop said, and ma said Yes, I knew you'd think it was reasonable. I cant wait till I see the proofs, she said.

With a little will power I think I can wait till I see the bill, pop said.

PUBLIC MOURNING FOR DEAD KING BROUGHT TO END

Black And Purple Drapes Removed From All Buildings

CEREMONIES SIMPLE

Court Mourning Will Continue at Ottawa And in Capitals

(By The Canadian Press)

Black and purple drapes today were taken from buildings and shop windows as Canada's public mourning for the death of King George ended. Flags fluttered again on mastheads and the nation, saddened by the loss of its Sovereign, looked forward to the reign of his son, Edward VIII.

Court mourning, however, will be observed still in Ottawa and the capitals of the provinces. This opening of Parliament in Ottawa nine days after the death of the ruler of much color. There will be no state dinner, no glittering uniforms and jewels in the red-carpeted Senate chamber. All ceremonies will be made as simple as possible, an observance that will be followed in opening week.

Such mourning as remains, however, will not stir the public as did the spectacular ceremonies, many of which sent to churches throughout the Dominion than the average churches could contain and to public services many more than could be admittance.

Preachers in all parts of the country emphasized dead King as the personification of virtues they teach, devotion to duty, to his family, to his people and to the God whom he was head.

The funeral hymn, him the tribute of two minutes' silence at 1.30, the same tribute to pays its war dead on Armistice Day.

Gens Seemed Acme Courage

As it reaches Canada today to Toronto guns boomed for an hour and 10 minutes, marking the passing of the King's 70 years of life.

Lord Tweedsmuir, starting his first year as Governor-General, and Prime Minister Mackenzie King attended church in the morning and went with Sir Robert Borden, Conservative leader, to the afternoon service held by the Canadian Legion in the city's largest theatre.

Three thousand citizens attended that service. Over 6,000 others sought to do so and police reinforcements had to be called out to avert a dangerous situation in which it was feared many might be injured.

Most points carried out their ceremonies despite a heavy blizzard forced authorities at Halifax to cancel many of their proposed parade. Citizens, however, shouldered their way through the snow and their church services and militiamen held a service in the armouries.

Toronto, Jan. 29 (CP)—Judges J. J. Coughlin and Duncan C. Ross resumed their Royal Commission inquiry in to Toronto police affairs today with a new development confronting them.

Police Inspector Robert Anderson was arrested yesterday and charged with perjury and Inspector Ellsworth Mabry was ordered suspended from duty for wilful disobedience of orders and failure to carry out his duties. Commissioner Coogan Norman Y. Newton questioned police officials and heard oath on matters of administration. The perjury charge and suspension resulted.

Yesterday Inspector Anderson allegedly denied meeting Inspector Mabry Monday in defiance of an order that officers should keep off Mr. Newton should not communicate with each other. He was said to have later admitted meeting Inspector Mabry but after being told the latter had admitted it. The perjury charge followed and Inspector Anderson was released on $500 bail, when he appeared before Magistrate Dan Cohen.

Mr. Newton said information regarding the charges made to the police officers would be conveyed privately to the Commissioners.

STATE QUESTIONS OCCUPY CABINET

Great Britain May Vote Huge Defence Loan in Near Future

By CHARLES P. NUTTER

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 29 (AP)—Great Britain's Ministers turned today to questions of peace and defence for enforcement after more than a week devoted to obsequies for the late King George V.

Budget estimates for expansion of the armed forces, the new King-Emperor Edward VIII were sent to No. 10 Downing Street for consideration by the Cabinet in its regular Wednesday meeting. Another item was sent over to the Foreign Office to take up anew his duties as Foreign Secretary.

Amid still-grave European tension, continuing warfare between Italy and Abyssinia and difficulties in Egypt, Britain proceeded definitely with the defence expansion policy which the Cabinet adopted as a safeguard for peace.

Voting of a defence loan, possibly as much as £900,000,000 (about $4,500,000,000) has been predicted in some informed quarters.

Tasks Confronting Eden

Chief among the first tasks confronting Eden were:

1. Consideration of Italy's recent complaint against the mutual support agreement, drawn up by Britain, France, Greece, Turkey and Yugoslavia, to meet any unprovoked attack by Italy in the Mediterranean over application of sanctions.

2. Guiding of Britain's conduct in consideration of the proposed extension of the Locarno war peace penalties against Italy to include an oil embargo—a question to be studied by governmental experts at Geneva from the practical viewpoint of possible effectiveness.

3. An attempt to clear up Anglo-Egyptian relations in view of the Cabinet crisis in the former British protectorate, now a nominally independent kingdom; personal demonstrations and Nationalist agitation for increased independence from Britain.

Representatives of most of Europe's states also turned to practical matters of state politics before returning to their homes after the funeral yesterday for King George.

YOU CANT BE Careless WITH COLDS

A cold is an internal infection. Combat it with internal treatment. Don't be careless. There is nothing better you can take than Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. It does the four necessary things: Checks the chill, relieves the headache, checks the fever, relieves the muscular soreness and breaks up the cold. Grove's is a true cold remedy. Proved effective by millions. Nothing else is quite like it. Use only as directed.

UNNOTICED INCIDENT—For the sorrowing crowd that lined the streets of London as funeral cortege of George V proceeded to Paddington Station, there could be little cross (arrow) surmounting crown (circle) for loose and fall to the street. An effort picked up the jewelled cross which was later restored to the symbol of empire.

Annie Oakley had many shooting records She broke 4772 targets out of 5000 shot at, thrown from three traps, 15 yards rise, at Cincinnati, 1885. FOUR-EYED FISH IN AQUARIUM

Each Orifice of Eye Equipped With Two Pupils

New York, Jan. 29 (CP)—The well-known fishy stare, double strength, was in effect at the New York aquarium today. Five Surinoted fish from British Guiana were on exhibit.

Sometimes a fish looks up, sometimes down. But these four-eyed wigglers, scientifically known as anableps, look up and down at the same time.

Curator C. W. Coates said, the anableps, ranging in length from four to six inches, had two cranial orifices and each orifice was equipped with two pupils. The servatazes between the upper and lower pupils permitted the two-way vision.

Having his little joke, Curator Coates held the double vision didn't magnify their dinner table. They ate just as much as any fish they ate.

Belgium Makes Plans For Own Protection

(Copyright, 1936, by The Havas Bureau)

Brussels, Jan. 28 (CP-Havas)—In common with other European countries, Belgium is taking measures to protect herself in the event of hostilities in the continent.

The League for anti-aircraft protection proposed a plan for shelters in the cellars of many new and rebuilt buildings. A number of such buildings already include meticulous basement shelters of the type regarded as bomb-proof.

An appropriation of 14,000,000 francs was adopted for the current protection in the current budget.

Production of gas masks also has been speeded up by a number of manufacturers.

Good Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

R.S.V.P.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1.—Does the hostess need to appear with her guests until the end of the evening?

2.—Does an invitation to a cocktail party require an acknowledgement?

3.—Should a lady sign a hotel register with Mrs. or Miss?

4.—Should you remove the soup spoon from the plate when finished eating soup?

5.—Should a social note close with the word "cordially"?

M.

1.—I am not quite sure but what you mean by this question but I imagine you mean does the hostess who has the latter role of coat-waitress-hostess appear before she commences her guests to the dinner table. And the answer to the question to this question is yes she takes her place at the door and greet her guests as they arrive for dinner, and then she finds it time to do the final touches to the table—fill the water goblets, put the pieces of butter on the bread and butter plates, and light the candles, she then excuses herself and leaves the guests to chat together while she does the same preparations.

2.—Usually an invitation is a verbal-party affair. An invitation to a tea does not require an acknowledgment. But if there is an "R.S.V.P." or a "Please answer" written on the invitation, we must, of course, send a formal reply at once.

3.—A married woman signs a hotel register: Mrs. George Lane, Buffalo, New York. An unmarried lady signs her name in full—Miss Georgia Lane, Buffalo, New York.

4.—If the soup is served in a regular soup plate, with or without a liner, we leave the soup spoon in the plate when we have finished eating the soup. If the soup is served in a bouillon cup or a cream soup cup, we leave the spoon on the under-plate when we have finished eating the soup.

5.—If the note we are writing is a note of invitation, it is the more or less accepted custom to sign it "Cordially", or "Cordially yours", or "Most sincerely yours". If we are signed, "very sincerely yours," or "Most sincerely yours". If it is an intimate note, "Devotedly yours," or for a man, "Faithfully yours".

Introductions

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1.—May a bereaved family send engraved cards as an acknowledgement of sympathy?

2.—May men wear colored muffler ties with formal evening wear?

3.—At a christening, is the infant dressed entirely in white?

4.—How do you know Mr. Smith" one proper form of introduction?

Reader

1.—In the case of most families the written note of bereavement, either for flowers or for inclusion in the obituary is the natural and proper form. It is only in the case of the death of a very important politically or socially or distinguished person, it is necessary to have engraved cards or printed acknowledgment of sympathy.

2.—Men wear evening dress when men wear white or black or blackand-white muffler ties.

3.—Yes, the baby, as the christening, wears a white dress.

4.—"Mr. Smith" is the correct form of introduction. It is one of the simplest and most direct forms. When we introduce two men to each other we say, "Mr. Jones, Mr. Smith." "Mr. Jones, Mr. Smith". If Mr. Jones is appreciably older than Mr. Smith, we say, "Mr. Smith, Mr. Jones."

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on Good Manners submitted by readers).

"Annie Oakley"

Colorful Period in American Life Dramatized; Barbara Stanwyck and Preston Foster Starred

The days of Buffalo Bill, Sitting Bull and Wild Bill Hickock—days of super-showmanship which shrinking citadels of American entertainment have rarely seen since —are dramatized in all their startling romance and red-blooded action in "Annie Oakley," with Barbara Stanwyck starred.

Brewed of many pungent ingredients drawn from actual events, "Annie Oakley" presents the romantic career of its title character, probably the greatest rifle shot any man or woman, that the world has ever known. Backgrounding this sometimes amazing, sometimes breath-taking chronicle is the Buffalo Bill Wild West Show in which the principals took part and which flourished during the heroic eighties. Barbara Stanwyck inherits the role of Annie Oakley the artistry and versatility which have established her as one of America's great dramatic actresses. A young girl who supplies the market by shooting game through Indian territory with shot, not bullets, Annie Oakley is induced to face Toby Walker, expert marksman, in a prohibition contest her eventually to brilliant heights and a place among the greatest women of the world. She joins Buffalo Bill's show, and is acclaimed the country over.

Annie was like other women, although her wonderful skill with a man. She falls in love with Toby, despite their bitter professional rivalry. Her romance, which is prosecution is hampered by the jealousy of Buffalo Bill's boy, Jr., who is in love with Annie. A hurt, sustained by Toby, in turn leads to his accidentally wounding Jr., affording the picture a denouement which gives an appreciation to the warm, tender, gentle, loyal woman that was Annie Oakley.

"Annie Oakley" adheres to historical fact. It is a matter of knowledge that Annie Oakley was the man she faced in her debut exhibition at the Cincinnati Gun Club. The picture also presents the flavor tigin of the term "Annie Oakleys" as a synonym for gratis railroad tickets. Incidents in the lives of Buffalo Bill and Sitting Bull are faithfully dramatized.

"Annie Oakley" boasts an assemblage of Hollywood's more seasoned players. Preston Foster, Melvyn Douglas, Moroni Olsen, Pete Kelton and Andy Clyde complete the cast of principals.

"Annie Oakley", RKO Radio Picture, was produced by Cliff Reid, and directed by George Stevens, who recently guided Katharine in "Alice Adams."

Last time today smart two feature program, 1st feature—"Forced Landing" on at 2.10 and "It's a Great Life" at 8.15.

AT THE STELLE

"Ah Wilderness!"

Romance, Laughs and Tears Abound in Eugene O'Neill's Masterpiece

The delicate tracery of Eugene O'Neill's drama with its poignant humanness, its down-to-earth simplicity, and its dynamic dramatic power is vividly caught on the talking screen in "Ah Wilderness!" which opens today at the Stelle. Description of the great stage success at the Belle now until Friday, matinee daily.

Translated on the stage where it was played both by Guthrie McClintic and the late Will Rogers, "Ah Wilderness!" now adds the lavish scope of screen production to its legion of laughs and touches scenes in the quaint New England town of Crafton, Mass.; its charming home surroundings, its dramatic effects add a sense of reality which the stage at its keenest never could achieve.

Wallace Beery plays one of the greatest roles he has ever portrayed since the ineffective, sinecure but lovable Uncle Sid, running the gamut from comedy to tragedy. Lionel Barrymore, in the role of Richard Rogers, gives a performance that will rank as one of his distinction in "A Free Soul." Eric Linden as Richard, Jr., and Cecilia Loftus as Aunt Lily, also are excellent in supporting roles.

Clarence Brown, who has given the world such great picture successes lues his deft human touch to the best advantage, and throughout the picture his handling of the charming high school graduation sequences, Beery's comedy, the town Fourth of July celebration, the love scenes and even childish quarrel are all apparent.

Starting today, with an American family of 1906, with the father a stern disciplinarian, with love affair, with its transports and despairs, Tris is compared with the mature young lady, the spinster aunt and shiftless uncle, and the inevitable love of the parents.

The boy's ineffectual urge to go to sea, his first love affair, his involves him with a spinster charmer; the coming to the rescue by Uncle Sid, the varied human angles that parallel the main theme make it a living, vital chronicle of American life.

Charming photography by Chris DeVinna adds greatly to the charm of the unique story of boyhood yesterday and today with O'Neil the author. terms his "comedy of recollection." The production is already discussed as one of 1936's ten best photoplays.

MARMORA

MARMORA, January 29.—(Special).—A fast and furious game of hockey was dished out on Monday night, when Marmora defeated Madoc 2 to on the Marmora rink; the teams appeared to be very evenly matched and some fast hockey was displayed by both teams. The game was played on splendid ice but in sub-zero weather and the players required all the first period to get warmed up.

In the second period the lone goal of the game was scored, when Stewart passed the puck from behind the net to Smith, who neatly slipped it behind Nickle in goal. Some rough play started in the fourth canto and continued into the third, when for very few minutes there were two full house pings. Madoc tried their best to score no matter what sort of hockey was played, but due to the fact that Marmora spectators refused to rough-house the game, no serious troubles resulted. The score remained 2 to 0 for Marmora.

Feel Tired? Backache?

FOR young girls growing into womanhood, for women in middle life passing through the "change," or those who suffer from headache, weakening drains, backache and nervousness, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is just the vegetable tonic needed. Mrs. Robert Nicholl of 11 Gladys Ave., Brantford, Ont., said: "What wonderful benefit Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is for weak, run-down women, or at that trying time of life. I felt tired all the time and had such pains across my back I could hardly stand. I got relief from the first dose and seemed a new woman. I felt fine, as only a healthy person can."

Mr. CAFFEINE-NERVES . . . he's ushered out!

TO BE SURE, many people find that tea and coffee don't disagree with them. But others—and there are lots of them—cannot and should not drink them at all. You may be one of these without realizing it. The caffeine found in both tea and coffee may be the real cause of your lack of sleep, upset your digestion, or undermine your nervous system.

If you suspect that tea and coffee do not agree with you . . . try Postum instead for 30 days. It is simply whole wheat and bran roasted and slightly sweetened. It is a delicious drink, and contains nothing that can disagree with you.

FREE—To help you get started in your fight against caffeine-nerves, let us send you your first week's supply of POSTUM—Free! Write for it to Consumer Service Department, General Foods, Limited, Cobourg, Ontario. 76-2

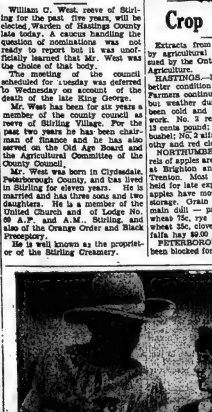
WALL STREET

New York, Jan. 29.—(AP) —Oils and Motor shares took over leadership in the stock market today to head a generally improved list.
Among Canadian stocks, Dome eased a major fraction while Hiram Walker, International Nickel and Canadian Pacific were fairly steady. Northern improved moderately. On the curb Lake Shore rallied briefly. Government bonds were about even. Cotton closed fairly 1-16 of a cent at 100 1-16 cents.
Some of the stocks which got ahead a point or more included Chrysler, up 2; Standard Oils of N. J., Studebaker, Sun Pipe; Delaware and Hudson and Deere. Others modestly improved included United Aircraft; Southern Pacific; General Motors; Radio and Western Union. American Can lost around 3 and Liggett and Myers "B"; Continental Can and a few others declined 1 to 2 points.
Trading was reactionary and cotton mixed. The late tone was firm. Transfers were around 2,500,000 shares.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Jan. 29 (CP)—Selective buying gave the mining board of Toronto stock exchange an irregular appearance in the early trading today. Two issues of golf ground.
Texas-Canadian and Chemical Research turned decidedly aging; the former advancing 30 cents to $2.15 and the latter 26 cents to $2.
Top prices were shaded slightly in the industrials. A section of the gold and base metal stocks sold higher. Pickle Crow 4.85, Central Patricia 1.30, Century Base 1.40 up 10 cents to 4.10, Sherritt firmed 3 cents and Noranda and Hudson Bay recovered early losses. Lower London quotations for metals were a drag on the group.
Silvers were quiet and flat easy. Buffalo-Ankerite, McCombe, Dominion, Cusnac and J. M. Consolidated were higher. Senior golds including Dome, McIntyre, and Lake Shore lost ground.



TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

Toronto, Jan. 29 (CP)—Traders turned to the oils around noon on Toronto industrial Market and in heavy trading British American today advanced 5-8 to 21 5-8 while Imperial at 24 1-2 was up 3-8 and International Petroleum recovered a morning loss of a point to 24 1-2 came out for C.P.R., Brazilian, Industrial Alcohol A, and Cygnus.

Crop Report

Extracts from reports submitted by agricultural representatives issued by Ontario Department of Agriculture.
HASTINGS—Livestock is in much better condition than a year ago. Farmers continue busy in woodlot. Some damage done the west has been cold and stormy for outside work. Fall wheat estimated 75 cents pound; No 2 timothy $2.00 bushel; No. 2 alsike 10c pound; timothy and red clover in plentiful.
NORTHUMBERLAND—5,000 barrels of apples are still in cold storage at Brighton and 10,000 barrels at Trenton. Most of these are being held for late export. Practically all apples have moved out of common storage. Grain and hay prices remain dull — prices to the farmer, wheat 95c, rye 75c, oats 27c, buckwheat 35c, clover hay $8.00 ton, alfalfa hay $9.00 ton.
PETERBOROUGH — Roads have been blocked for the past three days and very little movement of any class of livestock. Cattle market early on Saturday morning the Peterboro meat packers were deserted and farmers began to come in about 10 o'clock. As a result of the scarcity, prices are generally higher. Eggs selling at 5c above last week's level.
DURHAM—The majority of poultrymen report a consistent production of eggs and the prices quite satisfactory when compared with the price of feed, until about the last Year when the price dropped very rapidly. Some 1935 prices: Milk paying the producers for A-large 80c; A-medium, 13c; A-small, 7c. Cream, delivered to the factory for timothy and red clover seed. Good reclaimed red clover seed $6.00 and good $6.00 to $6.50 bushel. An abundance of both roughages and grain in this county will limit the movement of these commodities.
PRINCE EDWARD—Livestock in fair condition throughout the county. There is plenty of feed on hand. The demand for calves and new milkers stays keen. Egg prices have ranged to 32c for grade A-large.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied by Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

Central Patricia

The slock looks high on the basis of current production and earnings, but recent developments have indicated ore reserves have also increased the average value of the ore in the shoot. Present indications are to warrant milling 300 tons a day in the near future with production earnings of over 30 cents a share.

Sullivan

Currently milling about 110 tons a day, production will be stepped up to 150-175 tons a day early months. Ore reserves were recently estimated at 1,150,000 tons of 11.5 oz. ore. Underground development continue to yield good results although recently diamond drilling from the 2nd and the thing levels have indicated a new ore shoot which was lasting some 80 feet west of the "A" ore zone, mostly in 3rd level. It has been said of the "new" section mined last Fall by 3,000 tons, enough that very favorable indications have been had during the past few months that ore will be opened into some thing "big" which may, in a comparatively short time, warrant a larger increase in tonnage above the present 600 tons daily capacity scheduled for the Spring or early Summer. On the basis of 600 tons a day, Sullivan should recover 15 cents a share net on its capital.

Big Missouri

When the 1,500-ton mill is in operation, probably in the Fall, Big Missouri will become a profit in the Buena Vista mine will be equivalent to about 13 cents a share on its present capitalization. Such a large ore body is indicated that Big Missouri has practically become potentially becoming a much larger tonnage proposition.

Oil

Reports in New York suggested that the trend of speculation would rapidly turn to lower-priced stocks and that the higher priced would put the high-priced stocks more and more into the "bigger dividend" altitude. A prominent trade remarked that one can expect all sorts of changes in the price growing out of the fact that the market is now "discounting" the dividend increases already announced. Some firms revealed that most accounts as they stand today would not be affected by the new marginal requirements if they were to go into effect immediately. Early in February I because majority of clients have already been accounted for even under the new order of things.

The buying in Brazilian Traction is understood to have emanated both from London and New York. This company, due to the laws in Brazil, is unable to remit funds for export capital. This has precluded the payment of a dividend. The result has been that the company has piled up cash balances which, eventually, should be distributed to shareholders in some form. The stock has always been a popular one in Canada and any constructive developments in the Brazilian situation or the company could easily result in a good sized move in a large part of its former popularity.

The strength in Canadian Industrial Alcohol is predicated on the reports that the company has under several substantial blocks of its securities in strong connections, this being in addition to the amount of liquor already under Government control. The time is approaching when the directors will give consideration to the matter of a dividend. Bank loans have been eliminated and the stock is popular among shareholders will be entitled to some income early in the year.

Enjoys High Rating

The Magazine of Wall Street has placed an A1 rating on International Nickel common. Following is current advice to clients. Explanation of changes in the Nickel Industry—In a strong and expanding position.
Company— Large current earnings—dominant in field— strong financially.

Sponsorship Forthcoming

The Street is interested in the information that the shares of the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company may be considered by New York sponsorship from now on.

McColl Frontenac

The recent increase in McColl Frontenac common has drawn attention to the affairs of the company. The annual financial statement for the year ending January 31st next will not be in the hands of shareholders for several months, the document will be perused more carefully than on previous occasions in order to ascertain the benefits derived from the stock financing of last September.

TAILORS ARE TOLD BUSINESS IMPROVES

Toronto, Jan. 29 (CP)—Immediate future of Canadian business can be viewed with optimism, Rodney Kent Hatch, president of the Merchant Tailor Designers' Association of America in his presidential address to the 26th convention of this organization and the National Association of Merchant Tailors of America.
In regard to unemployment, he said, "Canada has progressed over 80 percent of the distance between the low point of unemployment and very little movement of any class of livestock. Cattle market early on Saturday morning the Peterboro meat packers were deserted and farmers began to come in about 10 o'clock. As a result of the scarcity, prices are generally higher. Eggs selling at 5c above last week's level.

DURHAM—The majority of poultrymen report a consistent production of eggs and the prices quite satisfactory when compared with the price of feed, until about the last Year when the price dropped very rapidly. Some 1935 prices: Milk paying the producers for A-large 80c; A-medium, 13c; A-small, 7c. Cream, delivered to the factory for timothy and red clover seed. Good reclaimed red clover seed $6.00 and good $6.00 to $6.50 bushel. An abundance of both roughages and grain in this county will limit the movement of these commodities.

PRINCE EDWARD—Livestock in fair condition throughout the county. There is plenty of feed on hand. The demand for calves and new milkers stays keen. Egg prices have ranged to 32c for grade A-large.

Board Room Gossip

Central Patricia

The slock looks high on the basis of current production and earnings, but recent developments have indicated ore reserves have also increased the average value of the ore in the shoot. Present indications are to warrant milling 300 tons a day in the near future with production earnings of over 30 cents a share.

Sullivan

Currently milling about 110 tons a day, production will be stepped up to 150-175 tons a day early months. Ore reserves were recently estimated at 1,150,000 tons of 11.5 oz. ore. Underground development continue to yield good results although recently diamond drilling from the 2nd and the thing levels have indicated a new ore shoot which was lasting some 80 feet west of the "A" ore zone, mostly in 3rd level. It has been said of the "new" section mined last Fall by 3,000 tons, enough that very favorable indications have been had during the past few months that ore will be opened into some thing "big" which may, in a comparatively short time, warrant a larger increase in tonnage above the present 600 tons daily capacity scheduled for the Spring or early Summer. On the basis of 600 tons a day, Sullivan should recover 15 cents a share net on its capital.

Big Missouri

When the 1,500-ton mill is in operation, probably in the Fall, Big Missouri will become a profit in the Buena Vista mine will be equivalent to about 13 cents a share on its present capitalization. Such a large ore body is indicated that Big Missouri has practically become potentially becoming a much larger tonnage proposition.

Oil

Reports in New York suggested that the trend of speculation would rapidly turn to lower-priced stocks and that the higher priced would put the high-priced stocks more and more into the "bigger dividend" altitude. A prominent trade remarked that one can expect all sorts of changes in the price growing out of the fact that the market is now "discounting" the dividend increases already announced. Some firms revealed that most accounts as they stand today would not be affected by the new marginal requirements if they were to go into effect immediately. Early in February I because majority of clients have already been accounted for even under the new order of things.

The buying in Brazilian Traction is understood to have emanated both from London and New York. This company, due to the laws in Brazil, is unable to remit funds for export capital. This has precluded the payment of a dividend. The result has been that the company has piled up cash balances which, eventually, should be distributed to shareholders in some form. The stock has always been a popular one in Canada and any constructive developments in the Brazilian situation or the company could easily result in a good sized move in a large part of its former popularity.

The strength in Canadian Industrial Alcohol is predicated on the reports that the company has under several substantial blocks of its securities in strong connections, this being in addition to the amount of liquor already under Government control. The time is approaching when the directors will give consideration to the matter of a dividend. Bank loans have been eliminated and the stock is popular among shareholders will be entitled to some income early in the year.

RELAXATION IN OFF-SEASON BEST SAYS LOU GEHRIG

Young Players Often Overdo Exercising in Winter Months

(Associated From Sports Stgitor)

New York, Jan. 29.—(AP)—The three time record-advocate Lou Gehrig for baseball's off-season "—"relaxation" and "recreation"—parallel closely the "prescriptions handed out by most major league matinée idols, but, unanimously, for the benefit of their athletes.

Lest it be supposed, that they are speaking mainly from personal fondness for ease slippers and a comfortable place by the fireplace these frigid winter months, Dr. Rogers Hornsby, the Rajah of the St. Louis Browns, commends:

"I admit fellows like Frankie Frisch and I have to take it easy during the off-season but younger men too often overdo because they figure they can get no shape for playing baseball easier in the training camp. They should not play basketball or take part in other strenuous competitive sports. They should stay away from gymnasiums. Hunting is all right, in fact anything that takes a lot of walking is good."

Considering Major League Baseball involves years of skilful and concentrated agility, Frisch's tip to the youngsters to "relax" and "rest" rates the winner, to "concentrated loafing."

Banjo-playing Charley Grimm, popular pilot of the Chicago Cubs, takes issue with Frisch. Declares Says Charley: "Players should keep in the best possible condition during the winter. Hunting is the best sport to keep the legs hardened and the muscles from aching up. The more a fellow keeps in shape during the off-season, the easier it is for him to get in playing condition in the spring. Pitchers should rest their arms completely."

Golf is all right but anything more strenuous is frowned upon by Manager Joe Cronin of the Washington. Mickey Cochrane of the world champion Tigers and his old boss, Connie Mack of the Athletics, endorse this general policy.

FIVE INFIELDERS TO ANSWER CALL

Cleveland, Jan. 29.—(AP)— Just five voices will answer the roll call when Cleveland baseball fans hear sounds off in spring training unless the Cubs tracks down another seasoned lieutenant.

Hal Trosky at first, Bill Knickerbocker at shortstop, and Odell Hale at third take care of three positions. It is up to Lonnie Warneke and Roy Hughes to decide, which gets the Indians' job. There are no other candidates at present although the Cubs has its lines out for a cash purchase.

There will be six player donning Cleveland uniforms for the first time, the Indians' roster shows. Four are pitchers.

The catching staff gets Joe Beckert, a young fellow from San Francisco who showed some promise last season in the west coast League. Comparatively new to baseball fans are two other receivers, Bob Garbark and Willie George, late of the American Association.

That leaves the heavy catching responsibility on Frankie Pytlak, the diminutive backstop, who dropped out last season because of illness.

Morenz Flashes Old Form Playing in Ranger Uniform

Scores Goal And Assists in Other When Canadiens Defeated 3-2

(By The Canadian Press)

Howie Morenz, the "old hoss" of hockey, still has a few kicks and a whinny left in his aging hide.

Last night the kicks were for old teammates of Montreal Canadiens and the whinny for the Chicago Black Hawks' management, that traded him to the Rangers after a reported disagreement.

Playing his first game in a Ranger uniform, the 33-year-old Howie, who soared to greatness the decade he was with Canadiens before going to the Hawks, contributed a goal and an assist to the Rangers' 3-2 victory over the Flying Frenchmen. In effect he gave the lie to the assertion, that he is only a shadow of the player of old.

Less than two minutes from the drop of the puck the "Stratford Streak" caught Lynn Patrick's pass, backhanded it to Cecil Dillon and the latter scored. Pit Lepine evened the count for the Canadiens on a rebound of Aurel Joliat's shot and then Morenz went into action again. The Rangers were crowding the Canadien goal, when Morenz swept in, picked out the rubber and whipped it home to send his team into the second period leading 2-1.

"Old Hoss" slowed up a bit after that, but he already had done more than his share.

George Mantha tied the score again in the third period in a combination play with Goldsworthy and Haynes, but in the overtime Dillon got his second tally of the night. After passes from Babe Pratt, Just Cain, Philadelphia Ramblers of the Canadian-American League, and Frank Boucher.

Rookie Makes Good

The 16,000 who watched the reinvented Rangers couldn't help but approve the work of the four newcomers. Alex Shibicky of Winnipeg and Mac Colville of Edmonton, also up from the Philadelphia farm team, were the other first nighters.

Both Colville and Shibicky showed fine fighting spirit. They flanked the veteran Bill Cook on an attack line that bothered the Canucks on occasions. But Pratt, a raw-boned youngster from Kenora, Ont., was the star among the erstwhile minor Leaguers.

The Habitants flashed fine hockey from bell to bell. Overskating passes on both sides a few chances. Armand Mondou had a penalty shot but missed the net completely.

The victory permitted the New Yorkers to hold their third-place berth in the last half of the standings in the American section of the National League.

The free scoring Bruins recovered their poise in the last half of the match against Detroit Red Wings and trounced Chicago Black Hawks 5-3 before a large crowd during the early part of the basic played Tuesday night. The Bruins' win came on to notch the first goal through Bill Cowley late in the second frame and clinch the "four-point" bout with another tally early in the third session. Red Heatlie got the last marker, while Eddie Shore, dynamic defenceman who has been playing a leading role in the Boston uprising of late, earned assists on both goals.

KINGSTON "Y" HOPES FOR WIN

Can Cinch First Place by Defeating Local Quintette

Thursday evening at the Collegiate gymnasium, local basketball fans will have their last opportunity to witness an E.O.A.B.A. game when Belleville "Y" plays host to the league-leading Kingston Y.M.C.A. squad. Coached by Andy Reekie, the Kingston team has been a major threat in the Eastern Ontario division for the past three years. Bolstered by the addition of Harry Playfair such as Bob Elliott, Wilf McMahon, "Spen" Thompson and McLaughlin, the Limestone City aggregation presents a scoring punch in every position.

With successive victories over C.M.C., Belleville "Y" and Queen's to their credit, the Kingston players are out to clinch first place in the league with a victory over Belleville here on Thursday. With elimination all but conceded by the locals after their single-point defeat at the hands of Queen's University last Saturday, the Belleville players would like nothing better than to spoil the chances of Kingston by handing them their first loss of the season on Thursday. Improvement in the form of the locals has been noted since the B.M.C. game here and Coach Ken Campbell's game can rest assured that they will provide plenty of action from the first whistle.

Handicapped by the loss of their coach, Ralph Morden who has been confined to his home by an attack of influenza, the Campbell Street squad has been practicing faithfully under the leadership of Captain Al Wickerson. Vic White, Ab Faulkner, Art Cole, Herb Burley, Dawson Maclean, Abe Tobe and Al Wickerson will be in uniform, with a possibility that new players may don the "Black and White" for the game.

Tells Reasons For the Trade

New York, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Before Howie Morenz skated out in his new Ranger uniform last night in the first game for the veteran Chicago Black Hawks.

Howie said, "I'm only human and I've had a bad night" in a recent Hawk engagement against his teammates of old, Montreal Canadiens, whom he helped Rangers defeat 3-2 with a goal and an assist.

After the Hawk-Habitant game, Morenz continued, Major Frederic McLaughlin, Chicago owner, came to the dressing room. The veteran quoted the Major as saying, "Howie, I could have done better out there than you did." Other words followed.

Morenz said he figured there was time and place for everything and he didn't consider the bed game was cause enough for dressing him down in front of his club-mates.

PRESENTING—

JIMMY CONNOR,one of the eleven good reason why Boxsdeard are leading the English First Division. Born in Scotland, learned his football under the watchful eye of Bob Mirren and played in their colors until 1930 when he was transferred south to the Roker Park team. Hailed by critics as "Alan Morton's successor" he was capped for Scotland against Ireland during his first year with Sunderland club. His dribbling is a model of neatness, while he packs a shot in the left foot that spells trouble for goalienders.

Knickers Back In Golf Dress

Toronto, Jan. 29 (CP)—Knickers are back in golf. How legs knock knees, long hose, plus fours and plusettems, carefully hidden in slacks these last few seasons, are exposed for public view once more, according to clothing experts at the convention of the National Association of Merchant Tailors of Canada, Inc., and Master Tailors' Agents' Association here.

The 1936 golf knickers will be less baggy than the old plus-fours, however, says Raymond G. Twyford of New York, Chairman of the fashion committee.

Golfers return for a practical reason. Golfers reported cuffs of slacks pulled wet ground, collecting mud and water until they were so heavy and awkward they affected the play of the wearer.

For die-hards and compromisers there are the new "Trouser-slacks" which are a cross between slacks and knickers. Knickerbocks are slacks amputated below the knee or knickers without a gathering below. Socks to fasten them in the legs. They were just plain "knee pants" when grandpa was a boy.

RONNIE MOFFATT STARS IN WIN

Windsor Bulldogs Shutout London Tecs 5-0, Moffatt Scoring 3 Times

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 29.—(CP) —It took four games for Windsor Bulldogs to score a victory over their bitter Canadian rivals, London Tecumseths, in the current International Hockey League race but the win when it finally came was nothing if not decisive.

Before a crowd of 3,000 here last night Bulldogs routed Tecs 5-0 to mark up their third victory in a row and their first of the season over the Londoners. In three previous starts Tecs garnered one victory and tied the other two.

Ron Moffatt, who has been threatening to do big things ever since the season opened, finally found his shooting eye and fired three pucks past goalie Herbie Smart in the London net, getting assists each time from Connie King. King also counted a goal while Aubrey Webster accounted for the other tally on a shot from the defence.

Goalie Bert Gardiner, whose work has featured Bulldogs' present string of victories—only seven goals have been scored against him in six contests, scaled the heights to hold Tecs scoreless.

Dave Downie, tiny Windsor wingman, picked Bill Gill, London defenceman, off his feet with a smash on the ice, to swap punches with in a scrappy bout and both were banished for five minutes.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

Promises that there will be a change in the local Senior Intercholastic Hockey League standing, after yesterday's game on the Arena, were made by Coaches Eddie Schreiber of the Collegiate and Chuck Cunningham of the O.S.D. "My kids are improving each time out and will give the Collegiate gang their first reverse tonight", predicted Mr. Cunningham today. Incidentally the O.S.D. squad boasts of a kid line, all under 16 years of age and the trio certainly made stick-handle and generally play hockey is nothing short of miraculous. The boys are not exactly giants in stature, but what they lack in size they more than make up for in ability and willingness in the game. Their names are Walton, Kimball and Greer, the one to appear in the red and white sweaters. Coach Eddie Schreiber's "fathers" have their backs to the wall tonight and have to reverse matters over Coach Bishop's team or drop further in the league mire. As a matter of fact all four squads face tough propositions and doubtless only the fans will be thankful. Inter-dogs, the trailing St. Mikes and the O.S.D. Last week the pups acknowledged these games to be thrillers.

Following tonight's Senior Intermediate game the Arena will be no further major hockey fixtures at the Arena until Friday night when the Belleville Juniors travel to the local ice palace for a regular Junior O.H.A. fixture. Should the form of the Limestone City kids has garnered together at mart team a Belleville team Shippy Thomas' gang have promised to hand the Kingstonites a real lacing in the current season. It's a case of win or face probable elimination for the Junior squad and then, see can always be assured of a good game when the Kingston Frontenacs and Belleville clash. For those more interested in basket ball, reserves of the Y.M.C.A. and "Grads" and the local Deacon A.C. kids open the proceedings at 8.15 p.m. E.S.T. A. at the B.C.I. gym on Friday eve. also, but the big cage tilt will be the Senior game when the Kingston "Y" at Belleville "Y" Intermediate E. O. A. B. A. tilt. This game promises everything to the Morden-coached outfit, as a reverse will just about mean goal nip for the season. The Keefe-led Kingston squad is the leading team in the group by a large margin, but a defeat tomorrow night at the hands of the Cole-Wickerson-Faulkner crew will change matters considerably.

Convener Eddie Thomas announced today that the Trenton intermediate had defaulted their game next week and would not play their return game in Napanee tomorrow night. This decision by Trenton officials leaves the Gibbard's team free to be satisfied with whatever competition they can procure in this locality. Back in until the O.H.A. playdowns get under motion, which incidentally won't be long now.

Something new in the annals of Bay league baseball was established yesterday, when it was announced that Dolly Stark, Intermediate League umpire, was a hold-out. Stark was recently voted the most popular and most efficient umpire in the senior circuit, and apparently his standing in the league votes swelled his head to such a degree, that he has drawn his last dough, requisite fee. President Ford Frick of the National League refused to accept Stark's resignation, asking the official to reconsider his move. "I want more money, that's all there is to it," commented Stark in reply.

General hodlam, free for all fights and action reigned supreme at the Peterboro Arena during the Belleville at Peterboro O.H.A. fixture on Monday night. Fans stepped over the boards and took the well-known poke at some of the Belleville players, while even the police authorities held a few local players while the Petes were allowed to swing at all and sundry. The locals returned home a disgruntled crowd and stating, that the trouble was started, not by those boys of Bellamy and Weir of the Petes, who just couldn't take it, that is until St. Lesle manager Weir and showed his pugnacious ability. At any rate a merry battle ensued and a revered good time was had by all, but here the local fans will pray to re-act when the Petes return to town next Monday night in a horse of another garment. Already comments fore as extra cordon of police have been made and the local town officials have said that no unnecessary disturbances and disorderliness will be tolerated in Percy Beard's home town, are allowed locally. When fans flow and open the ice and attack visiting player, it's high time a halt was called and any proceedings, some Arenas have been barred from the O.H.A. for the self-same attacks in the past.

To our Oshawa contemporary, who takes out his personal grievances on local officials, individual, we say—Naughts, Georgie, just common naughts, my frend". The Oshawa scribe does not like the Belleville Arena, nor its officials, but it looks like a case of the latter calling the pot black, how about the Motor City and Diamond Arenas under an infielder and a catcher can display his wares in a capable manner, owing to the inadequate playing field?

In reference to Monday's hockey game at Peterboro the Lifluck City scribe says—"There were no real stars, though we'd say Jopling and Gardiner looked best. The former doesn't bodycheck enough but his poke-check helped Joplin on three occasions and gave some quinine counters. Geddes went good in spots, figuring in on three goals, but roamed around the ice too much. Weir went better the last half. Virarelli and Calladine kept trying. The others too. But we've seen the whole gang go bad better. Bishop, St. Louis. C. Morgan—and that hard-hitting defence—kept Belleville in the hunt till the last shot was fired."

Dale Plays The Game

BY
Ann Forester

Lieting..... buying..... packing ..... the days passed in a whirlwind of energy which shut out cool thinking. Dale said nothing to the arrant of her hold grim. That be grateful job she left for Sandy when she had gone. She felt the concentrated stare of Colt Clay on her; she went about making the final arrangements. But Colt City didn't matter now. There was too much to think about. Food and bedding..... feed for the chickens. Ross would pay a ten pack in his household economies. Kerosene for the stove and gasoline for the accident automobile.

Sandy saying goodbye with a face as dolorous as though she were going out alone to face certain death. The long, rough ride through the brooding land to the valley. The express truck bumped its way into the desert, with her piled up stove in the rear and Dale sitting up on the seat with the driver. Beside her was Major, Brant's collie. The day after his master had been taken to the hospital the dog had come slinking into Sandy's kitchen. Dusty and unkept his beautiful silver coat soaked with burrs, he was like a broken aristocrat who had fallen on bitter days. He had eaten the lunch room mercifully, peering into corners and uttering low inquiring whines.

"Poor old Major." Dale had called softly. "You will find him, can you?"

Major had come over to fasten his head on her knee, his ears back, his eyes slanting slits of anguish. After that he never left the side of his sight as though in her he recognized the one who would lead him back to the beloved presence.

When Dale stood alone in the desert shack, listening to the express truck rattling back to town, she was grateful for Major's companionship. How still it was..... ghastly still with the tingling silence of the desert. To ward off the fear creeping over her she plunged into work. Days of heat and cold dust and constant toil. Dark nights of fear when only Major's protecting presence kept her from panic.

As the days passed dread began in Dale's heart. Had she been too headstrong in this matter? What would Brant say when he found out she had spent his money?

Frightened shyness swept her on the morning he was expected. It unsteadied her and made her clumsy. In her immediate desire to straighten the place she ran a silver in her hand crying with rags and pain she slumped down on the wooden doorstep. So it was through a blur of tears that she saw the automobile bumping through a cloud of dust toward the house. Brant Kendall coming to his new home.....

CHAPTER 15.

THE STORM BREAKS

Dale rushed in the house to put a powder puff over her red eyes. She heard the car drive up and stop. Heard Major's frantic yelps as he caught sight of his master.

She was surprised when she went out, to see that it was not the doctor's car nor yet Sandy's little runabout. It was a large, showy car, even under its pallina of dust seeming ridiculously ornate for that desert country. Large and floridly handsome too was the strange man who sat behind the wheel.

Brant Kendall sat in the back seat well propped up with pillows. He was shockingly thin and the strain of the ride showed in the lines and hollows of his face. When his gaze met hers through the setting dust, Dale gasped as though water had been dashed on her, such cold fury was in those steel-grey eyes.

"Well, here we are, Mrs. Kendall" — the voice of the driver broke in on the girl's sick admiration. He climbed out of the car and opened the rear door. "Guess I shook you up a bit, Brant, but there's road in save a corker! Here, I'll help you out."

"Thanks, I'll be all right." The other man's voice was thin. He steadied briskly to the ground though the effort brought out beads of sweat on his forehead.

He stooped to pat the frantic collie. "Proof old pup—glad to see me, aren't you?" The sudden warmth in his voice made it seem like a stranger speaking.

When Dale would have taken his arm to help him into the house he straightened up and his eyes narrowed to slits of steel.

"Please don't bother," he said coldly. "I can manage."

Rigidly he entered the space to the house and disappeared, closely tagged by the adoring Major.

Feeling numb and sick, Dale turned to meet the other man's unfriendly eyes. "I want to thank you for bringing him out here," she said with quiet dignity.

"Oh, that's all right," the man replied sadly. "I was coming this way." His gaze took in the girl, lost in admiring. His smile widened. "I'm a neighbor of yours. A couple miles up that way—" he jerked a thumb over his shoulder. "I have an orange grove. My name's Steve Kenn. Guess I'm your nearest neighbor, though there's a sort of cross-roads store a bit beyond me, kept by an old town couple."

Reluctance to further this acquaintanceship was stealing over the girl. Something about this man there was which she didn't like. He was too glib. His eyes went over her body like a furtive caress. Quick shame followed on the wake of this thought. Was she becoming embittered? All men weren't beasts of prey.... Certainly Steve Kenn had been kind. To combat the slight distaste she felt she was particularly gracious in her goodbyes.

"I'm sorry I can't ask you in just now but I think—he—will need me. Some other time....."

"Oh, sure. Neighbors shouldn't be strangers. By the way, the Doc told me to give you this—" He reached in the pocket of the car and brought out a flat package. "Prescription for Kenny." He lowered his voice so that it would not reach to the house. "Doc says to give him one shot a day. He's tapering him off on drink. Dole it out like it was maddike. Well, I better be moving. But I'm coming soon to see you."

The look which accompanied this made the girl uncomfortably nervous and he held the hand she extended until she drew it away.

As she walked into the house Dale knew with a little contemptuous bitterness that he had heard of Brant Kendall's hasty marriage and he had been curious to see her. But her thoughts did not linger on Steve Kenn driving back to his orange grove in a cloud of dust. There was Brant Kendall to be faced.....

He was sitting on the edge of the bed, his face bowed in his hands. Major was fastened on the floor at his feet. As Dale appeared in the doorway the dog thumped a welcomer tail and the man looked up. For a moment their glances fenced. The man's voice was hard.

"If you have some Pollyanna notion that I'm thankful for your interference, you are deceiving yourself. And if you expect my family to do the pious you my children' stuff and be financially grateful, you are entirely mistaken. My precious family wouldn't give you a thin dime for me even in the best of health.

"I can believe that," the girl said coldly.

He gave an angry little laugh. "Please leave out the comedy. We have no audience. Now then, what's the fool idea of doing this? Sandy said you got the money from Pickering and bought this place. You think you had a right to do that?"

"I did it because the doctor said there was a chance for you to get well," she defended herself.

He shot her a somber glance. "Why are you so sure I want to get well? Let me tell you one thing I'm not deceived a bit by this. You think you have me pretty well penned up in this matter, don't you? Well, you have, I admit it. But let me tell you it won't do you any good. You're simply wasting your time—and that's the truth; you can take it or leave it!"

Bewilderment was painted on Dale's face. "Why—I don't know what you're talking about!"

"Oh, don't practice your acting on me!" he said roughly. "I haven't the energy to talk about it. Go away, please."

He slumped down on the bed and flung one arm over his eyes in the shut off the glare from the window.

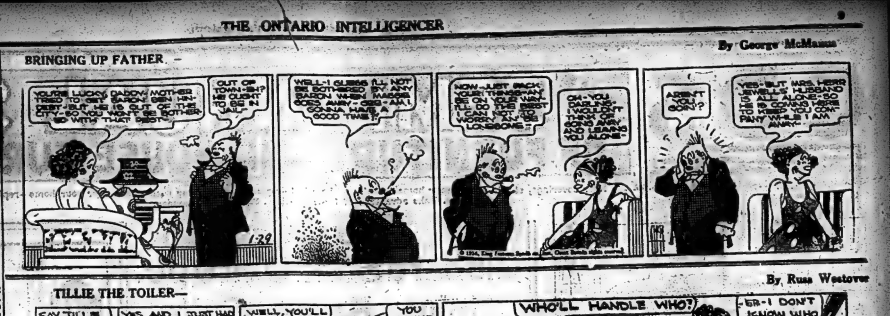
The man continued to lie in the brooding heat miserable and bitter. Brant had his own conception of this impetuous move. Since that incredible moment when Sandy had haltingly told him of Dale's action, a growing resentment had been welling in his heart.

This girl was only a little gold-digger after all. Like all of her class, he told himself contemptuously, she was looking for a wealthy marriage. Without doubt she had recognized the name on the marriage license—for is failure's daughter she was no stranger to the financial world. It was a golden opportunity for a penniless chorus girl. And he had been the easy mark! Brant reflected with bitter humor. Now she was determined to hang on, acting the part of the dutiful wife, trusting that his family would relent and receive them both into favor.



What a blind fool he had been, snared the man. Here he was, virtually a prisoner in this stifling desert, shackled to a girl he felt he hated!

FLYERS FATALLY INJURED

Washington, Jan. 29 (AP)—Two United States' Army fliers were injured fatally today when the plane in which they left Pope Field, Fort Bragg, N.C., today crashed in landing at Bolling Field.

They were identified as Second Lieut. W. E. Payne of the Air Corps Reserve and Lieut. Dudley Whitten of Wharton, Tex.

Zora realized that the situation was extremely dangerous. She saw that if she would save Tarzan she must act quickly. "Send the others away," she said to Zveri. "I have something to tell you before you kill this man." For a moment the leader hesitated.

Then he turned to Dorsky. "Have the fellow securely bound and taken to one of the tents. We shall give him a fair trial when he has regained consciousness and then shoot him." Then he turned to Zora. "Come with me; I will listen to what you have to say."

"Well?" inquired Zveri as the girl halted before the entrance of his tent.

"What have you to say? Have you changed your mind?" "You will change your mind before I shall not kill him," repeated the girl, "because if you do so I shall tell them all that you yourself are a traitor."

"I shall tell them," continued Zora, "that you have been using them all to advance your own selfish ambition to make yourself Emperor of Africa." "You would not dare!" cried Zveri. "As much as to interfere in my plans."

KIDNAP WORKED AS INSIDE JOB

So McCardell Testifies at Trial of Russell Knowles

London, Ont., Jan. 30 (CP)—The kidnapping of John Labatt was "worked as an inside job" by Russell McCaughey, the Brewer's aide testified Mitchell McCardell, one-time Thorndale hotel keeper, in the trial of Russell Knowles. The Detroit man pleaded not guilty to connection with the kidnap.

McCaughey, said McCardell, was "the man behind the gun," the reason money for his services," delivering it to Knowles and sharing in a five-per-cent.

Earlier McCardell testified it was he, and not Knowles, who pulled the brewer from his car on the night of the kidnap between Barnia and London. Mr. Justice C. P. McFayne brought the jury together again for an erroneous report Canadian Press that Monday morning paper.

McCaughey took the stand he told of acting at border points in charge of "the money" on the night of 1982. He said he had never met Knowles until the time of the trial when he was called to Hotel London to discuss beer business.

He said he knew only a man he said he thought was Rossi and Knowles (introduced to him as Rossi).

McCaughey swore Rossi suggested kidnapping Labatt as a "modest man." He said Labatt had been ordered to "bring the boys why they got Burns".

Competing Brewery.

"Burns was the president of Carling's (Brewery) and Rossi said that Labatt owned the boys why they didn't go after Labatt because he was more important than he did," McCaughey added.

"That is the competing brewery, Hit, I guess," he added.

"Yes," said Mr. Sedgewick.

Burns' kidnapping was revealed during the trial of David Meisner for the John S. Labatt snatch. Ransom of $50,000 was said to have been paid for Burns' release.

He said he had advised them to get out of town.

Three or four months later, McCaughey declared, Knowles had called him to the hotel and said he had a gang together and was ready to kidnap Labatt.

Again, he said, he had tried to frighten Knowles out of town.

Asked why he had not revealed the matter to his employer or to the police, McCaughey repeated his life were sealed by the fear he had "of myself, of the face of the earth" if he talked.

TALK PREMATURE SAYS LONDON ON KING'S TOUR

Daily Herald Suggests King May be Crowned in Each Dominion

AFFAIRS OF STATE

King Edward VIII Receives Hungarian Foreign Minister

London, Jan. 30 (CP)—"Widespread interest was aroused today by a prediction in the Daily Herald that King Edward would make a tour to all the Dominions of the Empire, as well as to India, next year.

The diplomatic correspondent of the newspaper said it was felt there ought to be an extension ceremony of some kind in all the Dominions with the King present to take part. An actual coronation ceremony in each Dominion capital was suggested as impossible.

Since King George ascended the throne in 1910 the Duke of Windsor has visited the self-governing Dominions to full equality of status with the United Kingdom. The King is king of Canada and of all the Dominions, just as he is king of Great Britain.

No suggestion has been made in responsible quarters that King Edward tour the Empire.

The suggestion in the Daily Herald that His Majesty will make a trip through a British Commonwealth of Nations and visit the colonies and India is regarded in London as premature and unauthorized.

Little Entente Conference.

The king was scheduled to receive today Hungarian Foreign Minister, in a reception of the series of audiences to continental statesmen with which he inaugurated his participation in the affairs of state.

Particular significance was seen in the appointment of the Hungarian Foreign Minister at Buckingham Palace in the light of the Little Entente conference yesterday among King Edward, British, Austrian, Hungarian and Little Entente statesmen.

These conferences were seen to have as their object the creation of closer relations between Austria and Hungary on one side and the three members of the Little Entente, Czechoslovakia, Rumania and Yugoslavia, on the other.

It was learned in his talk with Prince Von Starhemberg, Secretary of State for Austria, that the visit of Austria and Hungary in a future Danubian pact.

Hugh Butterfly's Heart is Twisted, Doctor Predicts Death in 2 Years

Rutland, Vt., Jan. 30 (AP)—Doctors in Boston told Hugh Butterfly he would die instantly if they tried to restore his badly misplaced organs to their proper places. So he returned to Rutland today—prepared for death which local physicians predicted would come within two years. Butterfly's heart is twisted and in his right chest cavity.

The 46-year-old former chef suffered a broken back in a railroad accident fifteen years ago. Since time went on, Dr. Gordon Smith of Rutland Hospital said, Butterfly's stomach collapsed his left lung, crowding the heart to the right side of the chest cavity.

Butterfly had no money when he came back home Wednesday. He couldn't go back to his old lodgings, so the city gave him a room at the poor farm.

Air Excursions to North Pole Predicted by Russian Builder

Igor Sikorsky, builder of Airships, Clipper ships and other airliners is "sure to come" within the next few years may make it relatively feasible.

"One of the most interesting possibilities of the large future airships," the Russian-born designer said in his precise, faintly accented English, "will be excursions flying visits to the most remote parts of the globe.

The jungles of Africa, Central America, Greenland and the North Pole will be easily accessible.

"It will be possible to see more of the globe in two weeks in these large ships with sleeping and dining accommodations comparable to those of a modern liner than in a year otherwise.

Sikorsky believes land planes of 50,000 pounds and flying boats of 100,000 pounds gross, approximately twice the size of ships now in commercial use, will be built "very soon".

"They are possible within the next five or ten years, he said, "after much bigger ships will be built — the limit in size is not yet in sight."

HEAVY SNOW FALL GOOD FOR CROPS

Motorists may revile its clinging, head-locking qualities, and still muscled housekeepers of the city who have been forced out of bed an hour earlier than usual for the past days for a bout with the shovel on the front walks may wax wrath at the successive downfalls, but there are smiles on the faces of the farmers of the north and west of the belt of the heavy covering of snow in their fields this winter.

"Snow," comments Mr. Wm. Michael, Dominion district agent of the C.P.R. at this office "is the farmer's best ally. Heavy snow in years good crops is the following season.

Further research on the snow question made among those who promises to know of its beneficial qualities reveals that Nature's protective covering is a real boon to the man who makes his living from the soil. It acts as a blanket to protect soil or crops from frost; it adds to the depth of the soil and is a source of ground water; it facilitates transportation in winter and it clears the air of dust and germs in its fall.

Even in the city dweller's view of it: It makes walking difficult, delays transportation and interferes with ordinary communication.

Dense Snow Four Proctor

As a protective covering or blanket, snow serves very much like leaves and grass. It keeps in moisture the poorer it is as a protector. Loosely packed snow with a melting mouth air mixed with it serves as the best blanket. Besides being a poor conductor of heat, therefore a better protector, than ice, loose snow prevents destructive or interrupting frosts from reaching one crop report survey. Grass and grain are protected from winter killing, through alternate freezing and thawing is converted into ice.

Action of Wind Wears Down New City Flag

Some idea of the constancy and force of the wind generally experienced at the top of the city hall may be gained through examination of the city ensign flag which was removed from its staff on the tower this morning after the November period. Due to action of the wind, between three and four inches of cloth have been whipped from the ends of the flag. The new flag which measures 12 feet by 6 feet was flown for the first time on the death of the late King.

FINE QUALITY ICE NOW BEING STORED

Plenty of solid blue-white ice will be available for local refrigerators next summer. And the quality of the natural ice will be of the best, for the companies are now in the middle of an annual harvesting of the Bay of Quinte which is reported to be one of the best years. The ice is never over two of two companies, the Cornell Ice Company and the Harry Smith Co. companies are whining their way through a solid twenty-inches, with a number of trucks speeding back and forth from the ice houses. Ingenious adaptions of old automobile engines is lightening the labors of the men, to the extinction of the horse altogether in one company.

The challenge is issued without reservation, however, while the challenging team will be composed solely or police officers of this community. Of course Chief Kidd reserves the right to augment his local force packsters with players from the Belleville Intermediate or the constables. On the other hand the challenging police officials state they will take on all comers for this charity purpose, but as stated above direct their challenge to the league in the general direction of the local Rotary or Kiwanis Clubs.

The game is to be played under regulation rules, unless either team can inject new rules or ideas into the pastime, and at the Belleville Arena. DOCTOR TALKS ON MEDICINE IN RED RUSSIA

Address is Delivered Before Tabernacle Y.P.U. by Dr. Stobie

The Y.P.U. of Tabernacle United Church held their regular meeting in the Church Parlors last night. George Wright, the President was in the chair and Miss L. Dougherty and Miss M. Wright presided over the devotional exercises. Dr. G. H. Stobie gave a most interesting lecture on "Medicine in Red Russia". In describing conditions in Russia Dr. Stobie said,

"For the past 15 years we have heard and read a great deal about the tremendous upheaval in Russian social and industrial life, some of it authentic, but some if it undoubtedly written as propaganda, but tonight I will tell you something about what the Soviet, Union has done to improve medical service in Russia since they started the most colossal revolution the world has ever known.

"It is necessary to take into consideration the whole framework of Russian society in order to view medical needs, for nation, as all health is a function of society. The practice of medicine both institutional and domiciliary had been socialized and is controlled and supervised by the public health organization in each of the seven provinces that constitute the U.S.S.R. Every doctor today is a government official in Russia. In judging the present medical services in Russia we must take into consideration her past one must in every other aspect part (as one must in every other as-pect) of Russian life). Russia a hundred and fifty times the size of England and Wales, with a population of 163,000,000 people—the great majority before the revolution illiterate—and as Bishop Fleming stated last year on his return from a six months' trip in Russia, one hundred years behind Western civilization. In the days of the Czars Russia had a comparatively few good physicians and surgeons, but the number of practitioners was absolutely inadequate. In 1913 there were only 11 institutions for medical training in Russia. In 1930 there were 38. There were only 9,000 doctors in the whole country before the revolution, in 1931 the number had increased to 39,000.

"The general death rate in Russia in 1910 was 771 per 100,000 population. In 1934 though public health measures, the death rate fell to 167 per 100,000. Infant mortality in Russia as well as their medical service, is still a long way behind, but they are improving.

"Much has been accomplished in its original schemes for the health and social well-being of its people according to a Canadian and other countries. Dr. Emerson Foucher, speaking of Communism in relation to America asked, "What if we Christians in America were?"

A hearty vote of thanks was extended to Dr. Stobie for his challenging address.

LEAGUE LEADERS THROWN FOR LOSS BY WOOLER TEAM

Carrying Place Take 4-2 Defeat in Trenton Hockey Loop

R.C.A.F. MOVE UP

Hinde and Dauch Takes Into Camp by The Airmen 3 to 1

TRENTON, Jan. 30.—(Special) — R.C.A.F. were again victorious as Hinde and Dauch suffered a defeat in the first game of the Trenton and District Hockey League play-offs at the Trenton Arena Thursday night. Although the Papermen had the edge on the play all through the first period they could not seem to score as Gould in the R.C.A.F. net, was in brilliant form. Time and again the Hinde and Dauch defence and Sinfield and Hood were in on Gould only to have him stave them off. The period ended with Masters of the Airmen and Wesen of the Papermen going to the penalty bench. In the second period the Airmen launched an offensive attack, which resulted in them scoring their first goal. Powers on a pass from Laing, on a down hard hitting Hinde and Dauche defencemen evened the score when he drove the rubber go at the Airmen's blue line. From then on the Airmen kept on the Papermen in close subjection and the period ended with the R.C.A.F. forwards all around Stenberg in the Hinde and Dauche net. In the third period the Airmen scored two goals and had the play well in hand through the entire stanza. The first R.C.A.F. goal came, when Powers took a pass from Laing and Papermen's blue line to skate in on Stenberg and flipped it by him. Five minutes later Hammell picked up Laing's rebound to score the Airmen's third and last goal of the evening. From then on till the end of the game Hinde and Dauch played four men up but seemed to get nowhere as the Airmen back checked hard. Lineups:

R.C.A.F.—Goal, J. Gould; defence, W. Hammell, J. Pafford; wings, D. Powers and R. Fulton; centre—B. K. Laing. Alternates, S. Sandilo, D. Cooney, H. Mallory, G. Harrison. Hinde and Dauche—Goal, N. Stenberg; defence, O. Bowen and W. O'Malley; wings, A. Hinde and Jas. Scott; centre, N. Lott. Alternates—J. McCloed, O. Wesen, R. Pernell, C. O'Malley, D. Sinfield, Referee—H. Johnson.

Wooler Tops League Leaders

The second game of the evening between Carrying Place and Wooler resulted in one of the fastest of the season and the fans saw Bill JLaton's leading team suffer a 4 to 2 defeat at the expense of the hard skating Wooler aggregation. Both teams have snappy forward lines and they certainly gave their best last night. In the first period Carrying Place had the edge on the play and thanks to Lew of Davis, Johnson and Vanderveort was a free 3 goal lead. Particularly little right winger of Wooler caused many an opportunity to Goalie Lloyd Conrad but time and again he saved the scoring list he gave they did. Much team received a penalty, and the period looked as though it would be scoreless, when with one minute to go Davis and Johnson broke away and set up the Wooler defence where Davis dropped a neat pass over to Johnson who slipped it in the net, for Carrying Place' first goal. In the second period Wooler boys certainly showed the Carrying Place team how to play hockey. Wooler forwards Gates and Long skated rings around the Carrying Place defence. Wooler got the score up when Wilson picked up the puck at his own defence blueline and right boards, faked his shot at the defence, went around them, flew down the centre ice and slipped it by him. C. Ruttan of Wooler made it a tight again and scored their second. While York of the Carrying Place team was in the penalty box Wooler boy, Johnson took a pass from Davis and scored their third goal. Sherwood, F. Pearson, of the Carrying Place team scored on a pretty bit of body checking and while he was off Wooler again took the lead, when G. Ruttan scored on a pass from the blue line. The Carrying Place team rallied and made it 3 to 2. The third period was filled with everything but goals, as both teams set and had the crowd rooting throughout. As the period opened Long of Wooler received a 2 minute penalty for tripping and with the two men Carrying Place forwards gave Brant plenty to do, but Goalie Conrad was on several occasions, as a matter of fact three Carrying Place goals were disputed and Wooler got the credit for the goal. Lineups:

Wooler—goal, M. Conrad; defence, G. Ruttan and O. Ruttan; wings, C. Wilson and H. Long; Centre, V. Gates. Alternates—Bill Johnston, Bill Ruttan, D. Putman, H. Reddiffe, P. Parrault, Bill Johnston and H. Johnston.

Carrying Place—Goal, R. Cobrii; defence, B. York and M. Pearson; wings, J. Dolan and F. Bohan; centre, G. Rocenplot. Alternates—J. Johnson, Jas. Davis, Jas. Vanderveort, O. Staples, S. Burit and J. Sherwood. Referee, Burit.

BRIDGE STREET CONGREGATION CLOSES YEAR

Congregational Meeting Shows Healthy Condition in Departments

TRIBUTE TO PASTOR

The annual congregational meeting of Bridge Street United Church was held Monday evening, January 27th. Rev. Dr. James Semple presiding with F. S. Deacon, recording secretary.

The service of worship was conducted by Rev. W. D. Hartley. A brief memorial service was held for members and adherents who had passed away during the year 1935. "Faces Kept in Memory", Miss McCormick, Mrs. Cornelia, Mrs. Sprague, Mrs. Cpatrix, Mrs. French, Mr. Charles Hally, Miss VanHaricomb, Mr. Frank White, Mrs. G. H. Bricker, Mrs. J. H. Young, Mr. W. Owens, Mrs. P. Young, Mr. W. Owens, Mrs. Turner, Mrs. Reeves, Mrs. Wallace, Mrs. A. E. Fish, Mr. Gillis Master, Donald Matthews, Leonard Anderson, Baby Clark.

"We cannot say, and, we will not say
That they are dead; they are just away.
With a cheery smile, and, a wave of the hand
They have wandered into an unknown land
And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must, be, for they linger there.
"And you, O you, who the widest yearn
For the old time step and the glad return.
Thinking of them faring on as dear
In the love of there as the love of here
Thinking of them faring on, say,
They are not dead; they are just away."

Pastor's Letter

The Recording Secretary read the Pastor's letter to the members and friends of Bridge Street United Church as follows:

The letter expressed hearty greetings in the name of the church and the Master. "As we review the activities and reflect upon the reports of our boards and organizations for the past year, we find great cause for lifting up our hearts in gratitude to the Father of Mercies and for looking to the future with confidence and hope.

"After another year of privileged service among you, I thank you for the kind consideration which has characterized your treatment of me. My every need and desire has been met in a very spirit manifested by you in every department of our work. I pray God that they may have guidance and strength to render a more faithful service in the coming year.

"Since this is a personal word to you, may I say that I have great longing for this church, and a great faith in the design of God for it in this community. We are so rich in its honorable past, and we thank God for the noble men and women who greatly served and nobly served lives in other years. But my concern is for today, and for a great and blessed tomorrow. My hope is that this Church may be famous for this, that men and women will say: 'It was here that I saw the glory of Jesus Christ plainly set out in such love and kindness that it made me believe in myself; it was here that I caught a vision of my life pitted against the injustices and evils of the world, and leagued with Christ to make His spirit and teachings vocal in all society; here I found how to base my life on goodwill and service; here I found encouragement to use the best and strain or the battle of life; here I found a wholesome and evercurching fellowship; here I found the path that leads home.'

"We are basking in such in t se days about recovery. Our task is to bring recovery in the spiritual realm. Our defeats and failures, individual and otherwise, have come from being false to Christ's ideal. When we turn back to the God of the prophets of life in the world will change from hatred to love, from defeat to glad victory. We must reach every man and woman in the church and all our splendid company of youth and boys and girls with a new understanding of the person of Christ and an acceptance of that purpose for their lives. Let us re-consecrate ourselves together to our Lord and our church and Christ's purpose unusually.

"This were my heaven; to be great enough
To take into my soul the truth I see,
And then in turn, and break the bread thereof
To feed the hunger of humanity."

"I pray that God may richly bless you in your personal experience, in the sweet fellowship of your friends, in the glorious tasks and adventures which in the name of God you pursue, and that to all of you may come renewed strength of purpose and grace that will carry you triumphantly through the years to the face of every testing."

Appreciation To Pastor

Inspector Harry J. Clarke, B.A., on behalf of the Boards presented the following resolution of appreciation to the pastor, Rev. Dr. James Semple, as follows:

"The various reports of which we have been listening are most gratifying. The growth in church membership is encouraging both as to quantity and quality; our finances are in a healthy condition and the various boards are co-operating harmoniously. For all of which we offer our humble thanks to Almighty God.

"While these pleasing results do not 'just happen.' The officials who have been most intimately associated with you in your work as our Minister, fully appreciate the fact that the success as a church has been due in a very large measure to the leadership that you have given, a leadership unprecedented in the history of this old church. We have been with us less than three years, but in that short time, you have, by the grace of God, accomplished far more than the most optimistic dared to hope for.

"As a congregation we appreciate very highly your outstanding abilities in the pulpit. You have given us sermons that have searched our inmost souls. But it is not alone as an expounder of Holy Writ that we admire and love you. Your untiring ministrations as our pastor and your messages of comfort and sympathy to those in sorrow, have won for you a place in our hearts that makes our association as 'pastor and people' something that is deeply felt, but which is difficult to express in words.

"And you are not appreciated by your own people alone, but you are recognized throughout our city as a most capable leader in every good work. We are indeed, proud of our Minister.

"And we would not confine our expressions of appreciation and affection to you alone, but extend them equally to "the gentle lady who presides over your household." Mrs. Semple's work in the various woman's organizations of our church, and particularly her deep interest in the junior congregation, is deeply appreciated. Only eternity will tell the results of her labour of love among the children at the immediate fireside.

"In conclusion we wish you both and your dear children a long, a happy and a prosperous life together, and we pray that the Great Architect and Ruler of the Universe may long spare you to serve in His earthly vineyard and when your work on earth is done, that the Master's 'Well done, good and faithful servant' may afford you an abundant entrance into that eternal reward that awaits those who have faithfully served Him.

Signed on behalf of the congregation,

F. S. Deacon
J. G. Galloway
F. E. Houston
H. J. Clarke.

His Honour Judge Deroche, W. B. Deacon and others spoke to the address. Rev. Dr. Semple made a feeling reply.

15 YEAR OLD GIRL DIES UNDER ETHER

Toronto Girl Was Having Broken Leg Set After Toboggan Accident

Toronto, Jan. 29.—Her leg broken in a tobogan accident at High Park on Monday, 15-year-old Jessie Wilkie, 765 Dufferin street, died in Toronto General Hospital last night while under an anaesthetic. Her heart stopped as splints were being put on the injured leg.

Terming the case most unusual, Chief Coroner Dr. M. J. Crawford immediately started an investigation, and announced that an autopsy would be held. Medical officials said the child had an enlarged thymus gland which, when combined with the anaesthetic, made a patient's breathing difficult. The matter of an inquest will be determined by the results of the autopsy, Dr. Crawford stated.

Late yesterday afternoon the girl was brought into hospital, her right ankle badly swollen. She was taken to the X-ray department and then removed to the ward where preparations were made to put the leg in splints. Her father, Alexander Wilkie, a 13th battalion veteran, was waiting anxiously in his bed at the Christie Street Hospital for word of his daughter's condition after the operation. He was in a state of near-collapse when informed that she had died, but climbed out of bed a few minutes later and left the hospital.

Respiration Unreviling.

Nothing in Jessie's condition appeared unusual when Dr. H. Stewart, senior housesman, and Dr. Carl Abernart and R. G. Clark started to work on the girl after the anaesthetic had taken effect. When the heart action slowed and then stopped altogether, artificial respiration was immediately tried but efforts were unsuccessful.

The girl injured her leg while tobogganing with schoolmates from Brock Avenue School at High Park slides Monday evening. Jessie's sled which was being held by the other in front of her, slipped from the other girl's grasp and struck a tree on the side of the slide. She was taken home from the park by her father of one of the members of the party.

Tuesday morning, when Jessie's ankle was still badly swollen, parents decided to take her to hospital. Police report that Mrs. Wilkie gave her consent to the doctor to give the anaesthetic.

VERY HUMAN NEWS

News in the press of the world has been very human for the past week and a half because a great personality and a human figure and great thought dominated men's minds. It is rare that such a world drama is enacted as was unfolded after King George passed away. Not in years has there been so much sincere interest in any event if indeed there was ever such interest at any time in history.

The late monarch was known more than any other monarch as he moved among the people of his land and earlier as prince throughout the Empire. The development of radio had brought his voice to the fireside of the humblest subject in all quarters of the earth and to others who were not under his sovereignty.

His funeral contrasted sharply with the funerals and triumphs of ancient potentates and rulers. His funeral was the triumph of the human heart. In his train on the last ride through the streets of his capital walked many of the kings and rulers of earth and nearly fifty nations were represented in the cortege while millions of his people jammed the route. Kings of old delighted in triumph, with captive princes and representatives of subjugated provinces, but King George, even in death, by the sincerity and devotion of his personality, was the conqueror by goodwill and love. Expressions of love sincere and deep, followed him as men felt the duty to pay tribute even to nobility itself in the monarch. There have been rulers whose very life was followed by curses loud and deep from men who had suffered inhumanity from tyranny, and from men degraded to make an imperial triumph, from muddied race ground into subjection. But it was quite otherwise with this good king as he went to his long home, blessed with the memories of a sorrowing world. Of him it is so easy to say in the lines of the poet—

"How sleep the brave who sink to rest
By all their country's wishes blest."

Only in his case it was not only his own country and empire but humanity itself, whose thoughts will bless his memory and linger round his tomb.

Indeed the news has been very human. It is not always so and cannot always be so, because the great human interest is not always there. But during these ten days and more the world sa reflected in the press and in the conversation of the people seemed to be a world of greater humanity, greater purity, a world of less sin, and less crime. It seemed a finer world than ever before because this life was thought of in the light of the life of the king. Every motive which was mentioned was uplifting, every word was more kindly, because the King's wishes and his words had been kindly. Such was the influence of a noble heart and mind, such is the quality of those good deeds which shine so brightly in a distressed world.

WHAT BROADCAST DOES

The science of radio is a help for world unification or federation for with it barriers and boundaries and orders are overcome. The distance of thousands of miles, did not prevent many millions hearing the wedding service of the Princess Marina to Prince George a little over a year ago, it did not prevent the people of the world hearing the voice of their sovereign, King George Fifth, a year ago Christmas, again at the time of his silver jubilee and on the occasion of his Christmas celebration at Sandringham a little over a month ago. Radio took the vast world within the precincts and boundaries of ancient Westminster. Sandringham House and inside that noble chapel of St. George's at Windsor Castle to hear the last rites for the deceased monarch.

Radio multiplies one. On Tuesday morning early, millions at their radio sets were transported in fancy to Westminster Hall, a little later they were carried in a fraction of a second as the exactest science can measure it, to the front of St. James's Palace, and then later to the Windsor chapel, and to many different places in that chapel. No person at the scene of the rites in the streets of London or in front of the chapel or in the chapel at Windsor, could have been in so many places.

Though millions witnessed the royal cortege, only a fraction of those who would have attended had attendance been possible, (which for the people of the farflung portions of the Empire was not possible) could have done so for the streets would not have been large enough to accommodate the hosts of men and women. The streets of Windsor would have been too small, and the chapel should accommodate only a very few. It was the broadcast made it possible for a world to participate in the last ceremonies.

This is something a generation ago did not know. In a far-ago age ability to broadcast would have been looked upon as witchcraft and would have end-ngered the lives of those who possessed that knowledge and such instruments.

Surely this generation is blessed in what its inventions have brought as it opens up a whole new world. It brings the great of the earth to one's heart and hearth, indeed transforms the entire field of human interest with its adaptability.

ROBERT TO A PEER

This poem long hidden from the world, was composed by Robert Burns and presented to the nobleman addressed upon being called up from the servants' hall (where he had been sent to dine with them) to add to the entertainment of his company, along with which company he had been invited to go on an excursion to the Stan Rock. On presenting it, he put on his hat, turned on his heel and retired.

"My Lord, I would not fill your chair,
Tho' ye be proudest noble's heir,
I came this night to join your feast,
An equal of the best, at least!
'Tis true that caste with me is scant,
And titles trifles that I want,
The King has never made me knee,
To stamp my manhood with his seal.
But what of that? The King on high,
Who took the pains with you than I,
Has filled my bosom and my mind
With something better in its kind
Than your broad acres, something which
I cannot well translate to speech;
But, by its impulse I can know
'Tis deeds, not birth, that make men low.
Your rank, my Lord, is but a loan!
But mine, thank Heaven, is all my own!
A peasant, 'tis my pride to be:
Look round and round your halls to see
Who boasts a higher pedigree!

I was not fit, it seems, to dine
With those fox-hunting heroes fine,
But only came to bandy jests
Among your Lordship's hopeful guests.
There must be here some sad mistake—
I would not play for such a stake.
Be a buffoon for drink and meat,
At (and) a poor Earl's tax-paid seat!
No, dis, my heart, ere such a shame,
Descend on Robert Burns's name."

Robert Burns.

WHEN BLIZZARDS STRIKE NEW YORK CITY much misery result. The great metropolis of Uncle Sam has an enormous appetite and consumes an immense amount of food every day. So much food is consumed daily that it is said there is little more than twenty four hours supply on hand at any time. Last week a milk famine threatened the city on account of country roads being blocked with snow making it impossible for many farmers to get their milk to the distributing stations. One New York dealer expecting a shipment of 1500 cans received 100. New York city drinks an enormous amount of milk, and is supplied by solid milk trains which start at the Canadian border at Ogdensburg and other points and run right through to express in New York. New York, Pennsylvania and other states keep New York supplied with milk but from the nature of the commodity there is no storing it unless of the canned condensed variety, and fresh milk must be despatched every day. Most of the milk trains start early in the evening and rush through the night to reach the metropolis early in the morning. This is especially necessary in the summer when the distribution must be made before the heat of the day. The great Blizzard of 1888 in March caused a milk famine and women were begging in saloons for milk fortheir babies. Owing to the great scarcity of milk the New York Beer Barons restricted sale of milk across the bar to one glass per customer. Many a milk customer was observed pouring his glass into a bottle. He or she would visit several bars, get a glass of milk in each for the bottle and the baby at home. Believeyoume a milk shortage is one of the most dreaded things that can happen New York City and when thousands of wee babies demand their fresh milk regularly or they will refuse to crow, refuse to grow, and if they don't peg out altogether, come so near it that the family is disrupted for some time to come. T'is a far cry since Dutch farmers pastured their cows on the Bowerie, and attended church at Old Trinity on lower Broadway just opposite Wall street.

HOME RULE FOR INDIA WOULD MEAN the replacement of British rule by Hindu rule. The first thing the Hindoos would be likely to do would be to consolidate their position as rulers of India by putting the next numerous clan in their place, the Mohammedans—and the place of the Mohammedans, according to Hindu philosophy, would be as fee or less under ground. Hindoos prefer dead Moslems to live Moslems every time, and the Moslem reciprocates the feeling very fervently. So a nice time would be had by all, if British rule and forces were withdrawn from India

For some times the marble quarry just south of the village of Hancroft, has been operating upon a small scale. Recently, however, business improved and the staff of workmen is working over time to fill rush orders. Last week one car load was shipped and the management has another shipment well under way. The quality of the marble is said to be the best in Canada. There are now about twenty-five men employed and it is possible that this number will be increased if the demand for marble continues.

SCOTT'S SCRAPBOOK

Stirling and District

...bell within a few hours after the official word was received of the death of our beloved King George V. had Monday, St. John's Anglican Church began its period of mourning.

On Sunday morning, Jan. 26th, the service was of a memorial character with the choir marching in silence. After taking their places in the chancel the congregation joined them in the singing of "O God Our Help In Ages Past." Later in the service, after the singing of the National Anthem, a period of silence was solemnly observed and with the choir the congregation knesling all sang, "Peace, Perfect Peace." Rev. S. A. McCready gave a special address dealing with the characteristics of His late Majesty King George V. Dwelling on the genuine honesty with which he ruled the Empire, his greatness as a statesman and as a Christian; he loved his people and in return was loved by them.

On Tuesday, the day of His Majesty's funeral, special services were conducted when Holy Communion was celebrated in Trinity Anglican Church, Frankford, and St. John's Anglican Church, Stirling, after which the members of both congregations joined in the observance of the communion service conducted in both municipalities.

St. Paul's, F. L. U.

The regular meeting of St. Paul's Young People's Union took place in the church basement on Monday evening. The president, Miss Mary Mallory, was in charge of the devotional period and opened the meeting with a short song service, after which Miss Mary Cleveland led in prayer. The Scripture lesson for the evening which was found in the 13th chapter of 1st Cor. was read responsively. Mrs. Nora Wescott then gave the secretary's report of the last meeting. The remaining portion of the programme was under the direction of Miss Dorothy Eggleton, 4th vice-President. Following the singing of another hymn Miss Hilma Matheson offered a most pleasing solo, "Say Hello to the Folks Back Home" accompanied at the piano by Mr. O. Code, who was the accompanist for the evening.

The speaker of the evening was Dr. C. F. Wall who gave a splendid address on "Citizenship." Before entering upon his topic, Dr. Wall led in an open discussion asking members of the meeting to give their opinion on various important phases of Citizenship. He spoke of His late Majesty King George V. as the tremendous responsibility that was his when he took it upon himself to address the entire world on Christmas Day through the aid of the radio and the splendid manner in which he carried out his duty. Dealing with the question of Citizenship, he spoke of the many nationalities which were here and an important part in the formation of Canada as a nation. The speaker pointed in a very capable manner the process through which each must pass before becoming a full fledged Canadian citizen. They must acquire an adequate general ledge of the language, sufficient knowledge of the governing machinery of the land, and swear allegiance to the King. Numbered among the rights that citizens possess are "The Pursuit of Happiness," liberty and life. Return for have to citizens or citizenship to fulfil as individuals, the duties of all as outstanding leaders but we can be loyal and intelligent followers. This was a most interesting address and the entire membership of the Society was grateful to Dr. Wall for his splendid talk.

Mr. William Jones gave an instrumental selection, in honor of the late Rudyard Kipling, after which Miss Mallory read a poem from his works which was particularly appropriate to the occasion, "For All We Have And Are." The final number on the program was a musical contest conducted by Miss Dorothy Eggleton, in which the Blue Birdies gained the honors.

St. Andrew's Guild Reorganized

A meeting for the purpose of reorganizing the St. Andrew's Guild took place in the Sunday School room on Monday evening under the direction of a committee appointed to supervise the work. The meeting was under the direction of Mr. Duncan Montgomery, who presided with a hymn. Mr. Roy Juby then led in prayer and the minutes of the previous meeting were read by Miss Margaret Rosebush, retiring secretary. Mrs. Fred Hulin then offered a solo accompanied at the piano by Mrs. C. N. Baker. The topic, "My Responsibility to the Church" was very ably dealt with by Miss Mae Johnson. During the latter part of the meeting a period of silence was observed in honor of the late Majesty King George V. Mr. William Dermidy and Arthur Duncan offered a vocal duet accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Baker. The election of officers which followed by Mr. Montgomery resulted in the following executive being appointed to direct the activities of the organization for the coming year. Hon. President—Mr. D. W. McIlhinney; President—Mr. Duncan Montgomery; 1st Vice-President—Miss Isobel Murray; 2nd Vice-President—Miss Aleitha Spry; 3rd Vice-President—Mr. Lorne Johnston; 4th Vice-President—Miss Winnifred Ward; Secretary—Miss Gena Spry, and Arthur Duncan; Assistant Treasurer—Mr. Roy Juby, and Jack Ormiston, Assistant Pianist—Miss Johnston; Assistant Pianist—Mr. Kotfend. Four group committees were appointed to assist each of the Vice-Presidents in the sponsoring of a program. Those to assist Miss Murray are—Mrs. R. Matthews, Mrs. Harper Rollins, Miss Drewery, Miss Anderson. To assist Miss Spry —Mrs. C. N. Baker, Mrs. Montgomery, Mrs. Dafoe, Miss Christian Parry; Those to assist Mr. Johnson are—Miss Lenora Ward, Miss Trebalda Eggleton, Miss Rose Spry, Mr. Foster, Assistants to Miss Ward—Mrs. Hulin, Mr. Ross Spry, Mrs. Casemore and Mr. William Dermidy. Membership Committee—Mrs. C. N. Baker, Mrs. H. Trulock, Miss Evelyn Drewry and Mr. Arthur Duncan.

At the close of the meeting Mrs. C. N. Baker directed an interesting Biblical Contest after which refreshments were served and a social half hour greatly enjoyed by all present.

Mr. C. N. Baker and Mr. T. Scott Stirling Hydro Commissioners, are spending a few days this week in Toronto where they will attend the Ontario Hydro Convention being held this week at the Royal York Hotel.

In 1923 he went to Belgium and later revivified the battlefields where he had served prior to taking another unofficial trip to the United States.

After observing the polo matches between England and America, the prince called on President Coolidge and then visited his ranch in Alberta.

"Annie Oakley"

Hickey Expands Theme on the Screen As Annie Oakley and Buffalo Bill Live Again

That ancient bromide, "History repeats itself," is not difficult to swallow when "Annie Oakley" is released to America's cinema-goers.

For "Annie Oakley" is a realistically visualized chapter of glamorous American events. The career of the famous markswoman has been dramatized by conscientious screen adaptors, a sensitive director and a group of qualified actors led by the intelligent Barbara Stanwyck. The spacious days of "Annie Oakley" have passed, but the screen brings them all back with vivid, lightning intensity.

Hollywood's designers of film fantasy have taken liddeties in the life and career of Annie Oakley and fashioned a modish picture which offers a blood-tingling insight into this period. Annie Oakley was an Ohio backwoods girl engaged in an odd way of making her livelihood, she used to shoot quail with a single bullet through the head and sell them to a Cincinnati hotel. In the film, the proprietor, impressed with her ability, has her accept a sharp-shooting challenge by Cody Tuby Walker. Her performance is so astounding that Buffalo Bill signs her up for his show as a counter attraction to Walker.

Touring with the show, Annie gives command performances before crowned heads. The picture duplicates her real-life feat of shooting a cigarette from the mouth of Prince Wilhelm, later the ex-Kaiser of Germany. It has been intimated that Annie might have changed the history of the world, possibly redrawn the present map of Europe, if her stunt had resulted in a fatality.

Through Annie's life can the course of romance, something which could not be altered by the lavish praise showered on her by paramour and potentate. As in the picture, she married the man she defeated at the Cincinnati Gun Club in her initial exhibition.

History in figurative form, but none the less colorful and dramatic, repeats itself in "Annie Oakley." The high appeal of the Annie Oakley legend is idealized in the Buffalo Bill drama, is related with impressive fidelity. The remarkably hued life of its heroine is depicted in all its authentic glamor. Barbara Stanwyck stars as the glamorous Annie Oakley. Preston Foster portrays Walker and Melvyn Douglas as Buffalo Bill's partner, is Toby's rival for Annie. Marcmil Owen breathes life into the characterization of Buffalo Bill, and George Hermis directs the players under the aegis of RKO Radio.

See this marvelous drama at 2.10, 7.40 and 9.50; also selected short subjects which include Buddy the "O' Man; Shirley Temple in "What's To Do," also latest Fox Movietone News.

AT THE BELLE

"Ah Wilderness!"

Seven Grand Stars in Eugene O'Neill's Sparkling Romantic Drama

"Ah Wilderness!" Eugene O'Neill's great romantic stage drama, brought to the screen in glorious form by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, is the attraction at the Belle tonight, and Friday, matinee daily.

A smashing triumph for both Wallace Beery, who stars as the wrathe alcoholic, Uncle Sid, and Lionel Barrymore, who plays the father rôle enacted on the stage by George M. Cohan and the late Will Rogers "Ah Wilderness!" tells the story of an American family in an intensely human manner and with characters every person in the audience can recognize.

There is hilarious comedy in it, charming romance of both youth and middle age, and the moments of dynamic drama that holds the audience in its spell. In it O'Neill has brought to the screen a great American drama, and a literal cross-section of American life.

Barrymore rises to dramatic heights in the scene where he tells his son what every father must inevitably tell his boy on the threshold of manhood.

The youthful romance is charmingly carried out by Eric Linden and Cecilia Parker, and Cidney Rooney, Spring Byington, Charles Grapewin, Frank Albertson, Edward Nigent, Eleanor Knarville and Helen Flint are others who deserve mention for excellent characterizations.

Its quaint location scenes in the New England town of Chatham, Mass; its Fourth of July celebration, its high school graduation and its many touches of typical American life add a striking reality to the production.

Manager Forhan places his personal guarantee behind this attraction in the Belle Theatre advertisement today is the announcement that any one who can see "Ah Wilderness!" without a laugh or a tear of happiness . . and will say so in writing to the Belle management, ed will be gladly refunded their money.

"A Tale of Two Cities"

The brilliant pages of an immortal novel come to life on the screen of the Belle Service, starting Saturday when Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's magnificent production, "A Tale of Two Cities", opens a three days' engagement.

Ronald Colman is starred in the unforgettable role of Sydney Carton. With him appear a cast of truly all-star caliber, including such favorites as Elisabeth Allan, Edna May Oliver, Reginald Owen, Basil Rathbone, Blanche Yurka, Henry B. Walthall, Donald Woods, Walter Catlett, Fritz Leiber L. B. Warner, Mitchell Lewis, Claude Gillingwater, Billy Bevan, Isabel Jewell, Lucille Laverne, Tully Marshall and almost one hundred other great players.

This is the second of Charles Dickens' works to reach the screen from the M. G. M. studios. The first was "David Copperfield", an international sensation. Now "A Tale of Two Cities" eclipses even that classic work in romantic appeal, dramatic action and spectacular production. Set against a vivid background of revolution in France in the late eighteenth century, the story singles out a group of characters and follows their lives, their adventures, their joys and their sorrows through a period of fifteen years.

Those familiar with the book will find it faithfully translated into action on the screen. Those who did not know the book will find that it combines every element of entertainment, and on such a scale as the screen has attempted but seldom.

PROPHECY IN 1936 ADDRESS THEME

At the close of the lecture on Bible Study given in the Belleville Y.M.C.A. last night, a large number of those present remained to form a Branch of the Federation in Belleville. The election of officers resulted as follows:—President, Mr. Burton F. Jennings; Vice-President, Mr. C. F. Sparrow; Secretary, Miss Isabelle Farrell; Treasurer, Miss Marcella Fitzgerald.

The new organization decided to hold weekly meetings each Tuesday night, in the Y.M.C.A., starting next Tuesday, when a regular course of study and discussion will be followed. These meetings will all be open to the public and all persons interested in the study of prophecy and British-Israel identity are cordially invited to attend.

Bartering the history of the beginnings and endings of the punishment periods indicated on the Israel nation for disobedience to God and His laws, Mr. R. E. Wemp of the British-Israel-World Federation stated last night that from the year 1926 was a significant one in the history of the Anglo-Saxon race. He stated that 1926 in line with the Deliverance of Jerusalem in 1917 should witness the final end of the punishment periods, then end of Gentile world rule as represented by the Mohammedan succession nations depicted by Nebuchadnezzar's dream of the Great Image; and the restoration of the Israel-British nation to the power and influence once held by Israel under the reign of David and Solomon. Mr. Wemp emphasis in pointing out that this does not mean the end of the age and the beginning of a new world order which will be God restored to the statute books of Anglo-Saxondom.

Beginning with the captivity era of the Israel-Judah nations the speaker pictured each by blackboard illustrations that as the end approached the people's belief has shown a reversal of action in fulfillment of prophecy that after the punishment periods expired Israel should be restored finally to the distinction of the Israel nation by the Assyrians between the years 721 and 718 B.C., when Israel forfeited life and death struggle for existence as a nation and host. Mr. Wemp pointed to the reversal of action 2,520 years later when Israel-Britain was in life and death struggle against Napoleon, and that finally by the Treaties of Versailles and Trafalgar they won. Jerusalem was enthroned in July, 1917, and exactly 2,520 years later General Allenby at the head of the British forces marched into the city and set it free, fulfilling half a dozen prophecies right to the minute at the same time. Between 587 and 583 B.C. Nebuchadnezzar marched against Jerusalem again and this time he burned the Temple and took away the city. Two thousand five hundred and twenty years later Britain was in the year 1934 and 1936. The speaker said the Bible gives no dates after 1917 in the prophecies and therefore unable to tell what might happen in 1936 to the end of the Gentile world. The end of the "Great Seven Times" punishment period, he said, transition of the world's power to the Anglo-Saxon nations as the most memorable one in the history of the Israel-British nation and to all the nations of the world is 1936.

Mr. Wemp closes his series of lectures in the Y.M.C.A. building when he will speak on "Britain's Imperishable Throne."

METAL STRATEGY

NEW YORK, 30.—(AP)— The stock market ran into stubble profit taking today but, on the whole, was not particularly disturbed.

Among Dominion stocks, aside from weakness in Dome and International Nickel showed small net gain. Hollinger and Lake Shore ruled steady. Government Bonds were quiet with virtually no change. Canadian funds eased 1-32 of a point to 99 1-16 on demand.

A number of new highs for the past several years were recorded in the share market, the selling set in. Radio Preferred "B" was a stellar performer with a gain of about 5, A. O. Smith was 3 higher, Douglas Aircraft and then recovered for an advance of 2.

Improvement was shown by electric Bond, American Steel Foundries, U.S. Steel, Republic Steel, Delaware & Hudson, Central Warner Bros., General Asphalt and most of the Utilities and Oils. Case and U. S. Smelting dropped each. The motors were backward, with Hudson, Packard, Nash, American Radiator, American Can and Continental Can lost a point or so each.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

Toronto, Jan. 30.—(CP)— Liquor stocks were quiet in sympathy with precautionary attitude in the industrial section of Toronto Exchange today. Other interlisted leaders were unchanged to fractionally lower with a note of depression in the New York market.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Jan. 30 (CP)—Mining shares registered about equal advancing much progress on Toronto exchange today, action especially mining in the medium-price and penny golds. Senior golds were moderately weak. Base metals and silvers held steady and some of the oils registered minor gains. An early show of weakness on the New York market was an adverse influence locally.

Central Patricia and Pickle Crow were featured in both selling at new highs the former at 2.60 and the latter at 1.37 1-2. Sudbury Basin, Faymaster and Perron registered moderate gains.

Pioneer and McIntyre displayed heaviness, the former losing 60 cents and the latter a half point.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied by Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

Hollinger

The showing made by Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines, Limited in preliminary report for 1935 is in line with expectations. Net earnings are approximately $1,900,000 lower than in 1934, this being accounted for chiefly by a rise in operating expenses due to substantially higher taxation.

During 1935 the Mine milled 1,-827,163 tons of ore against 1,900,456 tons in 1934. The recovery per ton for 1935 is shown at $7.69 as against $7.36 for the preceding year. The grade of ore which has been milled during the past three years is much below mine average; as is well known this condition is a result of the management's sound policy adopted some three years ago, to go back in big sections of the property and take out ore which previous management during earlier years ago was non-commercial but which can be had through the mill at a profit with the higher gold prices.

It is only a matter of time now before these big sections will have become depleted and a greater proportion of the ore coming from the new sections carrying a much higher grade of ore. It appears safe to infer that the average in future will be higher than has been the case in the past two years.

Granada Gold Mines

The Company has acquired through field men who staked late last year, a group of claims in the area to the West of Wood-Green-Miller-Cousens discovery, located in the Township of Hislop, Province of Quebec.

Hollinger Consolidated last week completed arrangements to acquire a one quarter interest in Florence River, purchasing from the Coniagas.

L. B. United

The L.B. United company plans to get to work right away on the property in the Porcupine area which is controlled by the company. They figure they will give this ground a thorough going over, according to official statements. Considerable operations are reported to be proceeding smoothly up at the Company's Centennial mine. During the week ended January 19, the mine treated an average daily production record of 50 tons.

The first month of 1936 is closing after having shown definite signs that the public is steadily entering the market in a big way. The rise has included many issues that quotations have been dormant for some time and this is very encouraging, as in the case of Brazilian Traction. The trading public will continue to buy, providing it has some merit, and exhibits a good deal of activity accordingly during February.

The monthly earnings of Brazilian Traction for 1935 indicate that the net earnings at $16,077,272 were approximately the same as in 1934. The company, however, should be able to report higher net income due to the fact that $25,000,000 of bonds were retired in the last twelve months. In 1934, Brazilian Traction reported $1.72 cents a share on the common, with net working capital the highest in many years at $34,920,247.

Recommend Sale Of Cheese by Board

All cheese offered for sale should pass through a recognized cheese board, the Ontario Cheese Patrons' Association resolved at the third annual meeting of the Association which opened in Kingston on Wednesday.

It was urged by members that the Ontario Cheese Marketing Board pass an order, effective April 1st, that all cheese produced in Ontario each of Toronto, be sold through the medium of a cheese board, with the exception of specialty types such as "twins" "triplets" "flats, high cooked" and any other type other than the usual export type.

The suggestion that cheese boards be required to include in their by-laws regulations that any cheese offered for sale must be sold to the highest bidder, or if refused, cannot be offered for sale until the next meeting of the board, was also advocated, as well as the second suggestion that all cheese buyers be required to state the extent of their average purchases between payments to either.

COLLEGIANS ROMP TO EASY VICTORY OVER O.S.D. TEAM

St. Miloes and Albert Battle to 1-1 Tie in Second Fixture

SECOND GAME THRILLS

B. C. I. Win Puts That Team in First Place in Loop

B.C.I. moved into sole possession of first place in the Inter-City Basketball series with a 7 to 5 victory over the O.S.D. squad, while St. Michael's and Albert Lyons split points as they battled to a 1 to 1 tie in a fast game that Arena fans might. Over 400 students and fans saw the "Collegiate" team come to an easy victory over the weakened "army boys" in the first game of the series with ten points piled up their score in the first two frames, the game ending with scoreless. All of the scoring in the B.C.I. game was done in the first frame as the teams staged a hectic battle. The latter two cagers endeavour, in vain, to eke out a win in a thrilling twenty minutes of play, but personal contact and flare-ups, that ended in neat fouls, were numerous. Following last night's tilts B.C.I. hold first position, with seven points, a slim one-point margin in front of the St. Mikes' squad, with the O.S.D. trailing.

The night-cap affair between Albert and St. Michael's was packed with thrills as no quarter was asked or given and it's a game that may be remembered. Hughes for the "Irish" and Hollingsworth for the Albert Lyons' formerly stand-out as the individual stars of the game, both accumulating a respectable rose to deep heights to threat the opposite net, with Tommy Hughes being the main offensive thrust called on to make the most points each time. Fox, Albert, Burton, Burgess and LaPalm led the Albert team on the offensive with O'Neill, Feels, Dinnie and Doran holding the fort for the "Irish" on the night's play.

Diminie Opens Scoring

Diminie opened the scoring for the St. Mikes early in the initial frame, but Fox soon evened matters up, tucking the ball into the corner of the Albert net after a beautiful solo effort. Burgess sank the equalizer a short time later, when he beat Burton's defensive play to a scramble around the Irish net. No further scoring was in evidence during the period. Although both teams carried the ball right to their respective basket-mouths repeated efforts to score and numerous shots at the net, failed to find it the nets. Albert looked stronger and were the more effective as the final bell sounded, the "Irish" showing signs of fatigue under the dizzy pace, that was set-up by both teams in a thrilling manner.

The lineups:

Albert Lyons: Goal, Hollingsworth; defence, Fox and McDonald; centre, McMahon; forwards, Burton and Burgess, subs, LaPalin, Sybrecht, Kilgour, Hughes, Bell.

St. Michael's: Goal, Hughes, defence, Feels and O'Neill; centre, Dinnie; forwards, Doran and Hanley, subs, Votsin, J. Doran, Diminie and Sharpe. Referee, Alex Weir.

Summary:

1st period—
St. Michael's: Diminie 1.10
Albert College: Burgess (unassisted) 11.10
Penalty: Fox.
2nd. period—
No score.
Penalties: LaPalin and Votsin.
3rd. period—
Collegiate: Yes Fox
Showing his speed and combination and a rugged and sturdy defence, the seven lot strong of the O.S.D. the B.C.I. bagged three goals in the first period and added two more in the second to down the army men in the Cunningham-led crew 7 to 5. In fairness to the "army boys" might be said they were minus the services of two of their regular players, Boase and Kimball, while Lavalle, the O.S.D. netz, had literally taken off night.

Muir, Perry and Morris scored for the Kingston "Collegians" to the initial frame. While Muir, Boase and Hamilton added to the fight for the winners in the second stanza. Burgess, with two goals, one on a pretty solo effort and Mike Fraser, by very well-balanced defence of Logie and Perry proved a power of strength in front of Lavalle. The B.C.I. goalie, while Morgan, Muir, Ronay and Hamilton starred for the army men consistently. Green, Bostnar and Wallen worked hard for the O.S.D. as did Hawthorne and Ryan, but seemingly the "guns" would do nothing right and not a bad game out of their system.

The lineups:

B.C.I.: Goal, Mcouck; defence, Logie and Perry; centre, Morgan; wings, Muir and Hanna, subs, Hoskey, Morris, Rowbotham, Liddle, Culhane and Green.

O.S.D.: Goal, Lavalle; defence, Hawthorne and, Kodd; centre, Arthur; wings, Byers and Boustead, subs, Walton, Green, Major, Melnyk and Hemphill.

Summary:

1st period—
B.C.I.: Muir (Morgan) 5.50
B.C.I.: Perry (Rowbotham) .. 7.10
B.C.I.: Morris (Rowbotham) .. 17.15

2nd. period—

B.C.I.: Logie 4.00
B.C.I.: Ronay (Perry) 4.50
B.C.I.: Hoskey 7.05
Penalties: Muir and Kodd.

JUNIOR REDMEN FACE ACID TEST

Win Over Kingston Jrs. Friday Will Create Tie in League

With four wins and not a defeat to their credit Coach Wally Kiner's Belleville Junior invade the Belleville Arena for an important junior O.H.A. struggle in group No. 1 on Friday night. The locals, better known as "Redmen" have only tasted defeat on one occasion, however, being beaten 8 to 6 by the Limestone City kids in their initial game of the season. The Thomasite juniors on the elevate themselves into practically a tie with the Kingston kids by beating them into camp on Friday night. So close is the race in the local junior group that every game is considered valuable to both Belleville and Kingston.

Eddie Thomas' charges are a move fast aggregation on the whole and they were, when Coach Kiner's gang faced them, hard to win the opening game in Kingston. Of course if the local "red-clad" juniors should drop Friday night's tussle it would mean practical elimination for the Thomasite crew, but the locals with Coach Thomas feels assured that his team will turn the trick on Friday night and hand the highly heralded Kingston Junior Juniors their initial defeat of the season.

Skipper Thomas kids have been practicing hard since the first of the week and have polished off some of the rough edges. Junior Coach Kiner always provides plenty of thrills for the fans and he has his charges primed into the game with plenty of determination. The Kingston team got off to a flying start in their O.H.A. pre-season Kingston loop, but took the knocks in their stride and came to match strength with the powerful Kingston crew. Juniors their initial defeat of the season.

Added to a couple of new faces to his junior roster, all being star players from the Prince Edward County League, who add plenty of color and ability to the Belleville squad. A win for the "Redmen" Friday night will elevate to a tie with Kingston, where a play-off with Kingston kids will be assured.

JUNIORS EASILY TAKE GANANOQUE INTO CAMP BY 8-3

Tompkins is Leading Scorer of Team With Three Goals

FINE SECOND LINE

McCreary on Defence Plays Bang-up Game

Showing too much speed and general hockey ability the Belleville Junior "Redmen" hops well up in the O.H.A. group No. 1 standing as the Gananoque scribbles 8 to 3 on the latter's ice last night. The Thomas-led squad moved into the leadership of the game in the early stages of the first period, never to be headed. The homesters hung on desperately in the last frame, when they faded and the "Redmen" rallied home sufficient goals to coast home to victory. Belleville was leading all the way, the score being 3 to 2 at the end of the first and 6 to 2 in favour of the "Redmen" at the end of the respective periods. Last night's game in Gananoque elevates the local junior O.H.A. squad into a considerable position in the group race and makes the Kingston at Belleville junior game here on Friday night, the battle for the group leadership.

Tompkins Leads Scorers

Tompkins of the locals is scoring as he rifled home three goals for the "Redmen." Gaseley getting two with Johnston, Burley and Phillips finishing the red light. Scoring for the Gananoque juniors Mc-Creary played his best game of the season, going both ways, while Munro, in the local nets, was given ample protection by Wilds, a new recruit and McCreary. Tompkins Johnson and Howie teamed well together at Burley, Storms and Phillips went to make up a splendid working second line. St. Denis continued to be a defence star, and Hardy, Thom is a hard worker and can hand it out and also take it. The first fall went to Gaseley at the end of 15 minutes of play. Tompkins scored the second in the 16 minute mark, Gaseley duplicating the impression that the boot was in a net 2 falls, one time limit, had the men going for 28 minutes straight in the local round, until it was a 30 minute affair. Tompkins let at once rang the gong; but for Gaseley's goal at the end of the first

OTTAWA ASKED TO DISALLOW ONTARIO HYDRO ENACTMENT

Hepburn Says Veto of Legislation Would Mean Election

DISALLOWANCE RARE

New Contract Not Yet Approved by Ontario Cabinet

Montreal, Jan. 30.—(CP)—Battle over the Ontario Government's action in declaring null and void the contracts between the Ontario Hydro Commission and Quebec Power Company has been joined by the Justice Department at Ottawa, it is announced.

Montreal Light, Heat and Power Consolidated, acting on behalf of Beauharnois Power Corporation, has asked Ottawa to disallow the Ontario Legislation, G. H. Montgomery, K.C., said last night.

Should the Ottawa Government disallow the legislation—as it has the power to do with any provincial statute although the power is rarely used—there would be an immediate election in Ontario, Premier Hepburn said when informed at Toronto of the development.

"I don't look on it as serious," Attorney-General Roebuck of Ontario. "That's their privilege. I haven't heard of it before."

Disallowance disadvantage was dealt with W. Stuart Edwards, Deputy Minister of Justice at Ottawa. Such allowance may be executed by Order-in-Council. Each year the records of Justice reviews all acts passed by the various provincial legislatures. Disallowance is rare.

Disallowance Rare

No official hint has been given as to the application, will be considered at the Dominion Capital.

Mr. Sepburn said several months ago he had summoned an election if the sister province would follow his legislation, were disallowed at Ottawa. He did not believe the Ontario Company's application would be granted.

The Act under attack—known as the Dominion Act—was passed last spring by the Ontario Legislature but was not proclaimed until autumn. It cancelled contracts to purchase power from Beauharnois, Ottawa Valley, Gatineau and McLaren Quebec companies.

The cancellation new stands to have been approved by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission with Beauharnois and MacLaren, but they have not received approval of the Ontario cabinet.

Ottawa Valley with a bondholders' deficit Act also is in litigation against the Hydro Commission, Premier Hepburn, the Attorney-General and Provincial Treasurer Gemmell.

DIG UP CAVALRY IN GERMAN BOGS

Victory of Swedish Forces Over Prussians 300 Years Ago

Kassel, Germany, Jan. 30 (AP)—Drainage operations in the so-called "dead man's bog" between here and Giessen have brought to light horsemen's equipment and accoutrements of exactly a whole army, and incidentally put an end to many a spook story.

It was here that towards the end of the 30 years war, in 1640, a Swedish force routed the Prussian Imperial Cavalry. There was only one safe, narrow pathway through the marshes. In heading flight, the horsemen plunged pell mell into the bog, trampling on each other and there perished almost to a man.

Until recent times, the local peasantry shunned the moor as a haunted place. Now, the spade is turning up hundreds of skeletons of men and beast, mouldering saddles and bridles and rusty weapons.

SKATING PARTY WAS SNOW-BOUND

Wellington—When the raging blizzards of last week clogged highways with drifts of snow, a number of keen skaters decided a Community skating party were forced to remain here for two nights and a day.

At the conclusion of their party a driving snowstorm made travel impossible on the Concession-Wellington highway. The youngsters were forced to remain here where they were the guests of municipal councillor Tom Stevenson in his home on Friday via train.—Picton Gazette.

CHARGES HYDRO IS ANTAGONISTIC TO THE O.M.E.A.

Dr. Chapman Says Head Office Is Ordered Employees to Not Attend Meeting

CRITICIZE LYONS

TORONTO, Jan. 30.— (CP) — Dr. W. J. Chapman of St. Catharines at the opening session of the Ontario Municipal Electrical Association Wednesday, charged Ontario Hydro Commission heads had advised Hydro employees they were not to attend the meeting. It was done "with the deliberate purpose of wrecking the O.M.E.A." he said.

There was no discussion on Dr. Chapman's charge. Many Hydro employees are meeting in the same hotel as the O.M.E.A., attending a convention of the Association of Municipal Electrical Utilities.

Non-appearance of T. Stewart Lyon, chairman of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, and the absence of his name from the Agenda, was sharply criticized.

H. O. Hayes of Galt, wanted to know why the Commission Chairman was not on the program. It is a slur on this organization and we are entitled to know the reason," he said.

Secretary Hannigan said Mr. Lyons had been invited to speak to the convention. At 11:just the Hydro Commission chairman agree but later he wired the secretary stating he would be unable to speak, owing to the situation in regard to the Quebec power contracts, voided by the Ontario Government.

Convention Chairmen F. C. Elliott of Ingersoll said Mr. Lyons had informed him as there had been no settlement in regard to Quebec power contracts, it would be unwise for him to make any public statement as the matter was up to the Government for ratification.

ITALY'S PUSH IN SOUTH HIGHLIGHT

Armies in North And Southeast at a Standstill

BY OSCAR LEDDING

(Copyright 1936, by The Associated Press)

London, Jan. 30 (AP)—The fourth month of Mussolini's venture in Ethiopia drew toward a close today with Italy's drive on both the southwest sector holding the spotlight for the moment, while the armies in the north and southeast were at a standstill.

Ethiopian officials asserted the 1935-36 Italian campaign could be "easily described as a failure," pretending no time remained to carry out any major operations before the heavy rains set in during the late spring, to continue until September.

The Italians, however, were entrenching their lines on both the northern and southern fronts. Observers accepted as at no time indicative the positions probably would be held throughout the rainy season.

From the active southwestern sector, The Associated Press correspondent, Mark Barron, reported Wadara, where Ras Desta Demtu had intended to make his last stand against the columns of Gen. Rodolfo Graziani, had fallen into Italian hands.

Blackshirt Fursaiers also were advancing much farther along the Uaea, Fafen and Uebi Shebeli, land, cutting off any possibility of supplies coming into Ethiopia from the British Kenya Colony.

General Graziani is moving into that portion of Ethiopia which would have been awarded to Italy as a zone of influence under the Anglo-French peace proposals, drawn up by former Foreign Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare and former Premier Pierre Laval, only to be discarded.

The Italians regard this area as one of the richest grounds of Ethiopia, much more valuable than the territory occupied in the north.

The Ethiopians deny the Italians are within miles of Magale, 225 miles north of Dolo, or the Fascists are attempting any advance up the valley of the Webbe Shibeli in that direction.

Unemployment Shows A 5 Per Cent Decline

Ottawa, Jan. 30 (CP)—Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported a December employment decrease of 53,976 persons but said the drop, usual in that month, was only about 50 per cent as severe as in this month over the past fifteen years.

The bureau's figures showed 9-per cent gain in employment in the monthly ration-wide survey reported a total payroll of $33,107 compared with $30,340 last Dec. 1, a decline of 5.3 per cent.

It said the combined employment index based on the figure 1926 was 93 compared with 94.4 at Jan. 1 last year, a low of 74.5 at the start of 1933 and a high of 111.2 at the beginning of 1930.

The most pronounced drops in December, the report said, were in construction and manufacturing, almost 25,000 persons were released by the construction industry, an unusually large figure, and 31,000 were dismissed from manufacturing employment, a figure only slightly greater than last year's record for any December decline in the last 11 years.

Dale Plays The Game

—BY—
Ann Forester

CHAPTER 16.
IN THE NIGHT.

Dale found herself lying tense in her narrow cot, which she had placed in the middle room; staring wide-eyed into the dark, unable to sleep.

How dark it was..... darkness, somehow thick and strangely enough, it lacked the menace which it had held every other night. That was because she was not alone, of course. Yet even as the thought came she rebelled at it. Impossible that there could be anything of comfort attached to the thought of Brant Kendall. Ill and weak, he could be no real protection in time of danger. But the fact remained that the grip of fear had loosened this night.

A long, silent interval while she watched the moon rise and shine in the window. How late it must be getting!

Her thoughts went back over the day, and in the darkness her cheeks burned. Well, she reflected hardily, she was in this now. Make the best of it, that was all there was left to do.

Painfully alert, she heard the man in the next room stir restlessly. A chill of doubt crept over the girl's heart. How had she dared so lightly to consider plunging into the mad scheme.....boldly playing fate. All her former courage had seeped away in the darkness. Why, it was a crazy thing to do! Why, indeed, to cut herself off from all companionship save this stranger, she had never seen the face of whom she knew nothing!

She stood suddenly erect. Was that a footfall in the next room? Her throat contracted, her lips grew cold, as a tall, dark figure suddenly appeared in the dim doorway.

Lying awake in the front room, Brant, too, had been fighting a losing battle. Quite as keenly as Dale he was tasting the bitter aftermath of this impetuous marriage. And out of the past which he had tried to brush aside came a ghost to haunt him..... a ghost with allluring eyes and a provocative mouth. As always, the spirit cried out for the quaff of Lethe which would bring the sea of forgetfulness.

A drink..... The idea seemed trailing like a demon, to pounce upon him. The mere thought brought the unbearable desire. He rolled from one side of the bed to the other seeking rest, his brows knitted, his body feverish. It wasn't the taste of the thing, he told himself, not the acrid bite of the alcohol on his throat that he wanted, it was the instant relaxation it brought, the dulling of this old pain in his heart.

Mind..... Out of the past came the memory of her. Yet when he capitulated and tried to picture her in his mind's eye, the image faded. It was the other appetite which swayed him now. The craving for alcohol had taken the place of the craving for Mimi.

Not conscious that he did so, the man rose and felt his way along the wall to the door of the next room. It was like a dream to feel the knob turn under his hand. The moon-flooded room dawned slowly on his eyes. He saw the girl on the cot sit suddenly upright, watching him in silent terror.

Some detached and critical part of the man's brain snapped shut on the picture, as the shutter of a camera snaps shut on a scene. On that long afterwards he was able to recall vividly the girl's face as he saw it now. In the mountain light it looked like a diverted pearl, dim-white and strangely lovely. Her shadowy eyes were dark with alarm. Her mouth was a soft, dark flower.

"You don't have to be afraid of me," he heard a voice which did not seem to belong to him saying gently, "I just came for a drink. I get me a drink——"

But when she stayed motionless, as though frozen with fear, he made an impatient gesture.

"Oh, don't pretend—I know you have it. That brandy the doctor sent. I saw Kemp put it in the cot when he thought I wasn't looking. Where is it? I have to have some. I tell you! I'm in agony!

Something about the sharpness of that restored Dale's self control. She answered him soothingly, as one would calm a fretful child.

"All right, I'll get it. But first go back to your room. I'll bring it to you."

When he had silently obeyed, she rose and flinging on her satin robe, she crossed to her trunk, standing below the window. Here she had hidden the flask Steve Kemp had given her. Moving cautiously, that he might not guess what she had concealed it, she measured out a careful dose. Her hand outside the door she stopped. Deep breathing came from the room beyond. Breathing of her patient. Brant had cast himself across the bed to wait and sleep. Dale straightened, shuddered at her own weakness, she emptied the little bottle outside the open window. Strangely tranquil after that, she went back to her narrow cot and fell into a dreamless sleep.

Brant was taciturn in the morning. If he remembered the scene of the night before, he gave no sign. The strain of the ride he proceeding day was telling on him.

By ten o'clock a blanket of heat had closed down over the house. Major padded restlessly about the place, miserable in his heavy coat. He gave Dale a sidewise glance of misery and flopped heavily in the kitchen corner behind the door.

Going into the front room some time later, Dale found Brant lying motionless, with closed eyes. An unexpected rush of tenderness swept over her. The long, shabby figure looked so oddly helpless. Even this way, without the ideal defiance of the grey eyes, his face was disarmingly weary, wasted and damp with weakness. He wore his faded khaki trousers and shirt, but the coat had been hung over the back of the bed. The ripped lining of one sleeve caught Dale's eye and with a warm little glow of pity the girl took it up and softly passed into the other room.

She hunted up a needle and thread, then shook the torn sleeve to turn it inside out. The movement loosened the wallet in the breast pocket. It dropped to the floor spilling its contents, a worn check book, old bills, a newspaper clipping.....

CHAPTER 17.
MIMI

Brant Kendall's face looked up at her from the creased newspaper clipping — some years younger, happy and confident in expression as she had never seen him—yet unmistakably Brant. Coupled with his was a girl's picture.

"Sutherland-Kendall Engagement Announced," ran the head lines. Dale picked up the paper and read the item written with the best flourish of a society reporter.

"Local society will be interested —though perhaps not surprised— to learn of the engagement of Miss Mimi Sutherland to Mr. Brant Stuart Kendall of this city. The engagement comes as the culmination of one of those girlish love affairs which seem the essence of true romance.

"It will be recalled that, following the tragic death of her parents on the ill-fated Titanic, Miss Sutherland, then a small child, became the ward of Judge Kendall. Mr. Kendall's father. The engagement now marks the climax of the long companionship of the two young people.

"Since he left college some years ago Mr. Kendall has been connected with a well-known architect firm."

Unfolding the well-creased clip as she read, Dale found that it held a smaller clipping. Only a picture from a tabloid edition this time, and apparently of later date than the other.

A full length photograph showed the same woman leaning against a steamship rail. The caption read

"The Countess della Curcia who has just returned from Italy. The engagement now marks the climax of the long companionship of the two young people.

"Since he left college some years ago Mr. Kendall has been connected with a well-known architect firm."

Unfolding the well-creased clip as she read, Dale found that it held a smaller clipping. Only a picture from a tabloid edition this time, and apparently of later date than the other.

A full length photograph showed the same woman leaning against a steamship rail. The caption read

"The Countess della Curcia who has just returned from Italy. The Countess was the former Mimi Sutherland of this city."

Dale stared at them with wide eyes. Here in her hands she held the broken romance of Brant Kendall.

She studied the fur-wrapped figure of the woman by the rail. Beautiful, polished, exquisite in every smallest detail.... A hot flame of resentment which she did not recognize for jealousy was lit in Dale's heart. At the same time she felt an exasperated desire to shake Brant Kendall. Just like a man to be taken in by a flawless face and charming manners! Couldn't he see that those long narrow eyes were shrewd and calculating? Couldn't he read the wilful selfishness of that lovely cured mouth? Dale's own honest brown eyes were contemptuous as she returned the pictured stare of the other woman.

So that was what had happened! Mimi Sutherland had married the Countess della Curcia instead of her girlhood sweetheart. Mimi the fairplaer had thrown over her fiance and married the count. And Brant Kendall had gone down the toboggan at dizzy speed and landed as a derelict here in this western desert.

Dale's eyes clung to the smiling and confident Brant of the picture. On this man she would look, the embittered man she had married blindly eyes—a look of breaking point like the face which even Phil Clifford with all his romantic good looks could never attain.

"When you have finished going through my private effects," came Brant Kendall's exaggerated drawl "perhaps you'll be good enough to give them back to me."

"You do dare kill me," taunted Zora. "You have antagonized every man in the camp, Peter and Dale killed me. Keep Tarzan of the Apes a prisoner if you will, but on your life, do not kill him!"

Zverl sank into a camp chair. "Everyone is against me," he said. "Even you, the woman I love."

"I have not changed toward you," said the girl, "but that has nothing to do with the point. "Are you going to kill Tarzan of the Apes or are you not?"

"For your sake, he shall live," replied Zverl, "even though I do not trust you nor anyone else. Look at him! He took a code message and handed it to her. "This came a few days ago. I wish I could get my hands on the traitor!"

Zora took the paper. Below the message it had been decoded in Russian script. "I should like to have killed the American myself," said Zverl, "but he is probably dead already." As Zora read, her eyes grew large with astonishment. "It is incredible!" she cried.

County Finances Excellent But Economy Still Required Says Warden West in Address

Installed in Office by County Clerk Erle Jeayes

SHORT SESSION

Silence Observed in Memory of Late King George V

TAKE Deputy Reeve Jordan of Hungerford asked if representation had ever been sent to this council and Reeve Churcher replied, that it was one of the first organizations for agriculture in the Province and that the council should be represented. "Last year the chairman of the Agriculture Committee was sent", said the speaker, "the question of a grant was sent to Ways and Means. It is likely a membership will be taken in the Canada Honey Association as this request from that body was sent to the Ways and Means. Other requests for grants were received from the Institute for the Blind, Women's Institute of North Hastings and these were sent on for further consideration.

Roll Calling

The council was called to concert in a resolution from Peel County, that all members of a County council responsible for the cutting of weeds in front of their own property be fined, not matter the penalty when the communication was ordered filed.

A letter from the Hospital Board drew some discussion, when it was suggested, that a social worker be appointed by the City and County to investigate cases coming into the hospital as many are found to be using the public ward, when a better class could be admitted.

L. J. Neal—"That is a man's own responsibility."

James Bronson—"I think they want more people at the hospital."

Wesley Gray—"Does the hospital ask the county to pay for this social worker?"

Reeve Robert Woods, "When a man comes in the hospital for good care gets he has to submit to the social worker treatment."

Warden West—"I think that is getting away from the point."

It was moved that no action be taken, and the matter was shelved.

A request for representation at the London convention, for Homes for the Aged and further discussion of this year was referred to the Ways and Means and a motion carried that no action be taken. Reeve Gray led the council in the consideration of the resolution stating, that any person able to purchase their own home should not be assisted. Reeve Moore was also in favor. Deputy Reeve Jordan stated he thought it would work a hardship and on a vote the matter was carried.

Deposits Grow By Over $7,500,000

THE DOMINION BANK 65TH ANNUAL STATEMENT CASH AND LIQUID ASSETS IN HIGH PERCENTAGE A GENERALLY STRONG BANK STATEMENT

At the Annual Meeting of The Dominion Bank held in Toronto on January 29th a very satisfactory statement of the affairs of the Bank was presented to the shareholders. The outstanding features of the Statement are, a particularly strong cash and liquid position, a splendid growth of deposits, and an increase in total assets.

The Total Deposits stand at $168,837,000 compared with $161,289,000 in the previous statement, which is an increase of $7,668,051 within the year, and a dividend issued equally between interest bearing and non-interest bearing deposits. During the year there has been the already strong liquid position of the Bank has been further strengthened. Immediately Available Assets which stand at $76,206,000 are 65.29% of Public Liabilities. Last year the percentage was 61.03. The Cash Assets thought to be $34,995,000, or 21.28% of Public Liabilities. These Investments consist of Dominion and Provincial Government bonds and other high grade securities, and total $39,518,000, the largest item in the Assets of the Institution.

Current Loans and Discounts in Canada are shown at $44,039,000, a gain over $2,000,000 than the year end. This reduction is a natural reflection of liquidation of loans, and a decline in commercial advances and grain loans.

Net Profits while slightly less than a year ago, are $1,130,-000 after providing $700,000 for dividends, making a contribution of $70,000 to Officers' Pension Fund, providing for insurance, Dominion and Provincial taxes, and writing off $75,000 from Bank Premises Account, $51,566 was added to Profit and Loss Account, which now stands at $582,699.

The Statement shows Letters of Credit at $4,032,000 compared with $2,116,000 a year ago. This advance indicates greater activity in the foreign business of the Bank's customers, both in Exports and Imports.

Bank Premises Account stands at $5,853,000, $75,000 having been written off the year as compared with $30,000 in 1934.

The Capital of the Bank remains at $3,000,000 and its Reserves at $7,000,000.

Frost Kills 150,000 Apple Trees in Que.

Montreal, Jan. 30—(CP)—Quebec farmers will suffer an estimated loss of 150,000 apple trees from frost damage in the last two months, President Phillip F. Smith told delegates to the annual meeting of the Quebec Pomological and Fruit Growing Society.

It would be several years before trees could be obtained for replacement, he said.

O.M.E.A. ASKS NEW AMENDMENT

With No New Contracts Signed Unless Municipalities Agree

Toronto, Jan. 30 (CP)—A resolution requesting the new Power Bill of Ontario Hydro Electric to sign no contracts for Hydro Power may be entered into by the Government or the Commission without first obtaining consent of the municipalities was to be submitted today to the annual convention of the Ontario Municipal Electric Association.

Another resolution will be a renewal of the request Hydro municipalities be represented on the Board of the Commission. Secretary-Treasurer T. J. Hamilton restated the request would not be abandoned. Premier Hepburn-Attorney-General Conant and Premier Hepburn's statement no change in set-up of the Board was considered.

Chairman Edward Bryan of the Hydro Commission last night declared Hydro staff and Hydro employees had been instructed to remain away from O. M. E. A. meetings as a result of the convention yesterday. He said he himself could not attend because contracts were still under negotiation by the Government and the Quebec power commission and he was unwilling to discuss such matters until the contracts were settled.

Adjournments Annoy Sarnia Legal Light

Sarnia, Jan. 30—Sharp exchanges between Magistrate C. S. Woodrow and W. S. Haney defence counsel, featured Police Court proceedings today, states the London Advertiser when Carl Fleming and Fabian Downs of Thedford were charged with breaking and entering a house in Rosemount township. Crown Attorney Gordon Cowan, after explaining that several of his witnesses were snow bound asked for adjournment to afternoon.

Mr. Haney jumped to his feet, and said: "I beg your pardon. I will not be here at two o'clock. Have no fear about that. I will not be here at two o'clock. You can run the works anyway you want so but I shall not be here at two bells. I was here at 10 o'clock and it took a long time to get the court going. You are not going to put me through the hoops at two bells, Sam is."

After the magistrate stated he would note counsel's objection but would order adjournment Mr. Haney said:

"That's your order. There's only one person that has a right to speak in this court and that happens to be his. It's a rotten dirty trick."

Magistrate: "You will please moderate your language, Mr. Haney."

Mr. Haney: "I stand rebuked. It is a pity." "Put that on the record," he said turning to the court stenographer.

"I asked you to stop using language of that kind, Mr. Haney," said Magistrate Woodrow.

The case was further remanded when it came up in the afternoon.

Little Benny's Note Book

When you look and act like that you're ready to go to a picture show, so I told Benny I'm going out, I'm said, and pop said, wont even admit to my face that my left ear heard a faint allusion to the subject.

And he kept on smoking to himself, while I got my hat and coat on, and ma said, Speaking of movies, William, I mean not speaking of them, dont you think this room would look better if the bookcase was moved over where the long table is, and vice virtue?

I told her that's the very way they were about a month ago, and I moved them this way for you at the risk of life and limb and the loss of numerous fingers and weight, pop said, and ma said, Well, there's various cause for excitement, it was just a passing fille of fancy.

I had no intention of asking you to do any actual manual moving.

Some things are better left undiscussed, it makes me tired all over to think about it, pop said, and ma said, Dont give it another thawt. The only thing is, I'm made several inner changes in the room since you moved the bookcase and the table for me, and it's really quite a question, whether they wouldn't look better back in their old original places over, she said.

I thawt we were going to forget to do you realize you're making me quite nervise? pop said, and ma said, That's redickulous, have I asked you to do anything? Though of course I could help you remove the books and replace them, because naturally the book-case would be too heavy to move with the books in, she said.

For Feet sake lets go to the movies, this place is giving me the reeps, pop said, and ma said, Why William how silly, hes bee, but of course nothing would please me more.

Meening than the movies, and the quick got ready before pop changed the mind.

"For" said John Bean, ex-R.A.F. aircraft war veteran, "I was in a terrible state, my nerves were all to pieces, you need the mineral salts in Fellows' Syrup. "Fellows" eases the tension and nourishes weakened nerves. Fellows' Syrup helped me and my family to good health whenever we were ill."

During the 1914-18 period, Mr. Bean was a member of the Royal Air Force and was invalided out of the service with a complete breakdown. He was sent to hospital for further treatment, and was one of the first to be discharged, and when the Doctor did, was to put it mildly, a wreck. He was a victim of nerves, and could not sleep, could not eat, could not rest. I picked up specimen. "Fellows" Syrup. "Try it on my family" the Doctor said. "I'm sure it will help them." I did so, and well I did, for it brought them back to health."

4 DIE AS TRAIN RIPS BRIDGE, PLUNGES TO CANAL

Several Carried to Death As Express Train Hurtles From Bridge to Canal Bed

More than Forty Injured In Worst Railway Wreck in Years

COACHES SPLINTERED

Some Fell Across Main Highway and Block Motor Traffic

Pendleton, Jan. 31 (AP)— The Reading Company announced today four passengers were killed in the wreck of its passenger train, the Williamsporter, at Wilmington, last midnight. Earlier reports said only three were killed.

The railroad said the fourth victim was unidentified. It could not state where the bodies had been taken. 33 victims are being treated in hospital.

The locomotive in its drop, ripped off two spans of the bridge, slid along the canal bed for several feet and finally stopped, battered and crushed, as the very brisk of the frozen river.

Behind it, the baggage-mail car lay across the highway, its contents strewn around the vicinity. The three passenger cars stood upright in the canal bed.

Light Snow Falling

A light snow was falling as the train pulled into the curve in the bridge. Hubbard Beck, a nearby resident, peered through the storm at the lights of the cars as they sped along the span. Suddenly, he said, the locomotive seemed to come to a complete stop. The front of it disappeared. Then the train plunged downward.

Dwarfed against the piers of the bridge, the locomotive plunged 30 feet to the canal bed, and two of the passenger cars followed it.

The first car crashed on their sides with terrific force. Those in the rear fell across the Sandyston-Walpack trail, main state highway leading to Hardaway, the State capital, 80 miles directly south.

Canal Parallels River

The canal parallels the Susquehanna River at that point, in abandoned, bottom running but a few feet from that stream.

Screams of injured passengers, waiting in the midst of the mass of wreckage, were the first shocks.

One section of the bridge was ripped away. Then the cars were caught in the hampering rescue work and necessitating calling out of fire fighting forces from Milford, Pa., and Port Jervis, N. Y.

Every physician in the vicinity was summoned, and ambulances, rushed to the scene, made repeated trips to the hospitals with the injured. Firemen concentrated their efforts on keeping the wreckage on the bridge from causing the span to collapse, and on the other hand, streams of water were played onto the cars, to prevent the kindling embers from setting fire ablaze.

No Cause Given

The fate of all the passengers in the wreckage can not be told until it can be determined immediately, although some managed to crawl out of the coaches and crawl onto the bank of the canal.

Oliver J. Gorne, local Reading agent, described the smash-up as "the worst tragedy in the history of the Shamokin division of the Reading."

But he, like all other of road's official available, was unable to ascertain the cause of the wreck.

In plunging from the bridge, the cars tore down poles and wires, and reports reaching the Reading's headquarters here said the wires were out.

All that was available three hours after the wreck was:

"The accident occurred at 12:14, was derailed and went over the bank into the Delaware canal," it said.

Operator Sounds Alarm

First report of the wreck came from the other telephone operator in Sunbury, Miss Anna Lortad. She said she was standing at the window of her office when she saw the burst of flame on the end of the bridge across the river. She realized, she said, that a train was due at that time and suspected immediately that it had been derailed.

She telephoned police, fire, and hospital authorities immediately.

Screams and groans of the injured sounded through the hospital, and every few minutes, the ambulance of a nearby highway bridge telephoned a plea for "more help—please rush some blankets and cots and send more cars."

A number of those injured were from Bucknell University students, returning from Christmas vacation between semesters. The collision occurred a few miles north from Sunbury, Pa.

Human approach within 50 feet of the "gun" was unsafe because of the speed with which the ray destroys the white corpuscles of the blood. Likewise, Mr. Kruger has personally used for protection against X-rays and radium, are vulnerable to the death beam. The rays must be operated by remote control from a distant switchboard.

Redness While Blood Calls.

Experiments have shown, Dr. Kruger said, that the rays reduce the white blood count from 8,000 to 300 per cubic.

Although this means almost certain death to normal humans, the physicist asserted, it may prove just the opposite to victims of Lukemia, the disease in which white corpuscles grow so fast they kill off the life-bearing red cells.

Possibility of using the rays to kill excess white corpuscles in Lukemia sufferers was one test planned for the ray gun, Dr. Kruger declared.

Another possibility, he said, was use of the ray to kill the wild growing cells of cancer and Hodgkin's disease.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Every day for a week, Skolnik has hauled out 16 gallons of oil from under his house. It's a big amount. It aggravated him so he called in Prof. Bert Hodge of the Wayne University geology department to determine what it could be done about it.

Professor Hodgins explained the oil probably originated from a reservoir of Devonian limestone. Yanks showed the state to be in a good quality but Skolnik says he'll have it capped and off. "A handful has enough trouble without anything like this," he said.

Strongest Death Ray Yet Devised To Assist in Curing of Diseases

Fourteen Times Stronger Than X-Rays

BEAM OF NEUTROUS

New Hope for Victims of Leukemia

Urbana, Ill., Jan. 31 (AP)—The most potent death ray yet derived by man was assigned to the task of saving human lives today.

Two years of study in this respect were prepared in the physics laboratory of the University of Illinois.

The ray, a beam of mysterious fourteen times more deadly than X-rays, is to be shot from a scientific "gun" now being assembled under the direction of Dr. A. H. Kruger.

Only a few details had to be smoothed out before the ray generator—the third of its kind in the United States—went into regular operation, although Dr. Kruger said it may be several months before the beams are controlled sufficiently to permit their use in treatments.

Trapped in Cage When Drum of Gasoline Catches Fire

RAGING INFERNO

Guards Able to Rescue Two Only as Flames Lick Over Bodies of Victims

Scottsboro, Ala., Jan. 31 (AP) — Twenty negro convicts, trapped in a blazing cage, were burned to death and two others probably fatally burned here today as a drum of gasoline in their truck caught fire. Two white guards on the truck, named Middlebrook and Wasson, were burned about the hands and face when they broke to drag the trapped and shrieking negroes from the blaze. Neither guard was believed seriously burned.

The truck was reported to have overturned after the drum of fire carried to keep the negroes warm caught fire. The truck in which the convicts were not immediately determined.

Middlebrook said the convicts, known as "bad" had been placed in the truck here at noon at a rock crusher on the Lee Highway, Guards Make Daye

Due to the severity of the weather the negroes were permitted to place a fire in a can inside the truck. A 50-gallon drum of gasoline also was on the truck.

Middlebrook said due to the snowy and icy roads the highway truck was slipping and sliding and apparently stoked gasoline to the flames of the truck, igniting it.

The first thing we knew of anything being wrong, Middlebrook said, "we heard the negroes shrieking for help.

"As soon as I could stop the truck I unlocked the door and ran around and I unlocked the door and attempted to pull them out.

"Two men I got out, we could save but both are badly burned.

"By the time I got back reached, as the gasoline roared like an inferno".

Move to Close Children's Aid

Orangeville, Jan. 31.—Much interest is being taken in a proposal before Dufferin County council to close here this week, to close the local shelter or the Children's Aid Society. Officials claim children do better if placed in private homes and that the shelter is no longer necessary. Instead of closing the shelter, a large, modern residence on Little York, with well-kept grounds, the Council is considering using it as a home for the aged and infirm, as the county has no such institution, at present paying the County of Simcoe for aged people in their home at Beeton. Council will also consider ways of advertising Hockley Valley as an all-year-round tourist centre. A large amount of money has been expended for rebuilding the roadway and for bridges, and with Hydro to be available shortly, it will be one of the best places in the Province.

GEN. G. KONDYLIS, STRONG MAN, DIES

Powerful Greek Figure Has Been Living in Retirement

Athens, Jan. 31 (AP)—Gen. Geo. Kondylis, 55-year-old former "strong man" of Greece, died suddenly today from a heart attack, and the Athens garrison was ordered to stand by in event signals any eventualities.

Authorities said no trouble threatened immediately but they took the precautions in view of a recent statement by Kondylis which caused considerable apprehension, that he had intended to use force if necessary to prevent the Liberal Venizelists who won Sunday's elections, from taking control.

SARRAUT PRAISES BRITISH UNITY

Tells French He Wonders At Hatred Among Frenchmen

Paris, Jan. 31 (CP)—Premier Albert Sarraut lashed out today at politicians who place their hatreds and ambitions ahead of the national interest and called upon them to heed Britain's secret of uniting its leaders under the single concept of the nation's welfare.

"I am surprised at the hatred between Frenchmen," declared M. Sarraut, when he appeared before the Chamber of Deputies to reply to his critics and renew his demand for a vote of confidence.

The Premier said when his sense of duty led him to accept formation of a government, he "met with enormous scarcity worthy of admiration."

"I have travelled much," said M. Sarraut, "and I have learned the secret of certain great democracies. In Great Britain all party struggles cease when it is a matter of the higher interest of the British Empire or of communion in time of national mourning."

Naval Construction Plans Announced Yearly is New Plan

London, Jan. 31 (AP)—The International Naval Conference agreed today on a policy by which Great Britain, the United States, France and Italy will announce at the first of each year what their naval construction will be during the following 12 months.

SWAYING TRAILER SMASHES AUTO INJURING TWO

Glass Cuts Passengers as Lurching Vehicle Crushes in Top

TRUCK DID NOT STOP

Driver May not have Been Aware of the Accident

London, Ont., Jan. 31 (CP)—As a swaying trailer on a transport truck struck the side of a car on the road on No. 3 highway yesterday, two of five Brantford motorists in the machine were injured.

Mrs. Margaret Broughton, (30 Welling street), Brantford, was removed to the same hospital for treatment for eye injury of a minor nature inflicted by shattered glass.

The party of Brantford was was en route to London in a car driven by J. Leary Symons, (311 Brant avenue), son of the injured man. About two miles east of Crumlin they met a truck and trailer. The car passed the truck without difficulty and was almost past the trailer when it lurched over toward the centre of the road and struck the middle of the car, left side of the car crushing a section of the top in.

Car Not Disabled.

The motor car was not disabled and when the six were suffering bleeding from the wound he sped on into the city without realizing the enormity of the crash which proceeded eastward. The two injured passengers were taken to the hospital by Dr. A. R. Duncan.

The driver of the car, Mrs. Symons, the driver and Mrs. Eva Crosby, (60 Selby street, Brantford) escaped without injury.

Immediate notification was given the officers east to attempt to locate the truck the identity of which is not known. Police believe it possible the driver of the truck train may not have been aware of the damage to the car struck by the trailer many feet behind him. Provincial Officer MacMillan is investigating.

Injuries Not Serious.

Further examination today revealed injuries suffered in an auto mishap by Harry J. Symons of Brantford were not serious, according to the hospital staff. The injuries were painful, however. Mrs. Margaret Broughton of Brantford suffered slight injuries.

Edward Eighth is Praised by Carol

Paris, Jan. 31 (CP) — The old phrase "a royal compliment" became literal here today when Edward Eighth of Rumania spoke glowing words in praise of King Edward VIII whom he visited in London at the time of the funeral of George V.

"From the point of unusual poise of character and of extraordinary depth of thought!" King Carol told the press in part on his arrival here.

"One can have the highest hopes for the future, the fact it is too soon to predict what his reign will be like."

KING EDWARD HOLDS SECOND PRIVY COUNCIL

London, Jan. 31 (CP)—The king held the second privy council of the new regime today at Buckingham palace. Present were Viscount Hailsham, Secretary for Home Affairs, Lord Tankerton, Baron Colebrooke, the King's equerry in waiting and the Archbishop of Canterbury.

A previous meeting of this high council was held immediately after George V's death to proclaim the new King.

EGYPT'S DEFENCE LOOMS FIRST IN NEW TREATY

British High Commissioner Will Open Negotiations Shortly

PREPAREDNESS

British and Egyptian Governments Agree On Defence

London, Jan. 31 (CP)—Sir Miles Lampson, British High Commissioner, will shortly open in Cairo negotiations for a treaty alliance between Britain and Egypt. In the negotiations the defence of Egypt against external aggression comes first.

Adequate defence of Egypt especially in 'New of existing circumstances is regarded by both British and Egyptian governments as vital. Military provisions will be the fulcrum of the new treaty, it was declared before provisions can be made in a military British will adopt a rigid attitude towards the remainder. For to Britain maintenance of Egyptian integrity is vital to her empire communications.

Egypt has promised already to have a garrison of 70,000 or 80,000 troops across the Egyptian border in the sedoning colony of Libya. Anti-British propaganda from Italy is abhire in Egypt.

Result of New Cabinet

Negotiations for the treaty follow swiftly on the heels of formation of a neutral government in Egypt under Maher Pasha, political friend of King Fuad. The Egyptian delegation in the Cairo negotiations will be named by the cabinet, of which six belong to the Wafd Extreme Nationalist party. Nahas Pasha, Wafd leader, is the head of the delegation.

The coming negotiations date back to the proclamation in 1922 in which British dropped her war-time protectorate and recognized Egypt as an Independent Sovereign State.

Until then were four subject reserved for subsequent settlement. These were:

(1) The security of Imperial communications;

(2) The defence of Egypt against external aggression;

(3) The protection of foreign interests and minorities;

(4) The Sudan.

Only three points Ramsay MacDonald, Sir Austen Chamberlain and Arthur Henderson in turn vainly endeavored to reach settlement with Egypt. The British interests as the Wafdist claims always came to a clash.

1928 Negotiations Broke

In 1928 negotiations broke down over military provisions. Nahas Pasha demanded evacuation of Egyptian territory by the British army.

In 1930 the negotiations lead to Arthur Henderson round the Sudan question slumbered.

Military clauses of the draft treaty were prepared but never signed. They limited the British army to defence of the Suez Canal zone. Britain was to station troops in the Canal Zone until the Egyptian army was in a position to defend it. At the end of two years the question of whether Egypt was ready to defend itself would be referred to the Council of the League of Nations.

Now, in an atmosphere regarded in London as distinctly hopeful, negotiations for the soon signing of the military questions will be begun, committees to aim at the conclusion the treaty finally, liquidating the four points reserved until the settlement.

The fact that the Egyptian delegation will be headed by leader of both Wafdist party and the majority and minorities is considered a hopeful sign.

In a special despatch from Cairo to the Egyptian Gazette Nahas Pasha, the Wafd leader, as say "we welcome the opportunity to come to settlement with Great Britain, to put the Anglo-Egyptian relations on a solid footing of mutual friendship and understanding.

Mollison, Noted Flier, Arrested For Intoxication in Los Angeles, Offers to Teach Judge to Fly Plane

Los Angeles Jan 31—(AP)—James A. Mollison, noted British flier, was fined $10 in court today on a charge of intoxication.

When Mollison reached for the $10 he found his evening clothes did not contain the required sum.

"I'll tell you what, your honor," Mollison drawled, "I'll teach you to fly for the two pounds."

Judge Cecil Holland declined. Mollison told the court:

"Last night, when I consumed three or four more or less cocktails, it rather topped me. Not of all

'blot-to', you understand, but jingled to a great. I call 'top bole', but when a couple of your bobbies drove up along side and suggested I step into the car, I left and accepted their invitation.

"I told them I was on the way to the Tuvadero (Hollywood night club) and thought they were going to take me there, but somehow they missed directions and wound up at the police station. Then the rotten taste you know, mistaking a police station for a night club. Possibly it was a bit breezy, but it was all in good fun."

WILD RABBIT BAGGED IN SNOW, IS CAPTURED

Rendering the best of the many who sought the fish with his bare hands, Irving Pendall, local youth of good hunting yesterday afternoon brought home a plump rabbit even though he didn't fire a shot.

Hunting in small woods west of the city, Irving and a chum managed to scare up a rabbit from a small patch of briers. Pursuing the animal, the boys managed to corner it into a deep snow drift where it floundered helplessly, making it easy for its captors who brought it home. It was the only trophy of the day.

BANQUET A SUCCESS

Mayor Hill and L.P. Bernstein Preside as Joint Chairmen

The links of unity and pledges of continued friendship and good will between city and county were forged and welded anew last evening in this city at the most successful get-together annual banquet and social meeting of Hastings County Council, the Belleville Board of Trade and Belleville Chamber of Commerce yet held.

Unique in its origin, and typically Belleville's own product, forged at a meeting further cementing the friendships between the county's rural and village representatives and business men, both, the evening at the Hotel Quinte, featuring Colonel Ormsby for the dessert, the banquet and the social hour were the crowning events of the local civic movement which, through the county's newly elected Warden for the present year took a step forward in its estimate, as well as newer members of county and city council and Board of Commerce. The meeting was graced also by an address by the city's honored lecturer, historian, and author, Col. George Drew, Toronto, who is one of the most comprehensive and accomplished addressers a local audience has ever been privileged to hear.

Two Presiding Officers

Opening the program, Mayor Harry Hill, chairman, was introduced briefly by Leopold P. Bernstein, president of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, who in the absence of being given the privilege of welcoming members of the County Council to the complimentary function. "It is on behalf of the Chamber," which I represent, and the local Chamber of Commerce, that I extend this welcome," he said. "I hope you enjoy the evening as much as we do in being host to have you," he added.

Following the dinner, which was served in the community singing and individual solos by members of the Belleville Male Quartette, under the leadership of S. H. Burrows, and A. J. Graham, who accorded the honor of introducing the speaker of the evening, and his personal friend, Col. Drew.

"Col. Drew is not exactly a stranger to this city," commented Col. Graham. "On one other occasion he gave a very fine talk on 'Unemployment' to the local Rotary Club. This time, however, he has come prepared to give a talk typical of the same kind of a talk that has made him one of the most popular on coast to coast in this country. Briefly, Col. Graham explained the career of the speaker from the time he left the Canadian Army in which he served with distinction during the closing of the Great War, his graduation from Osgoode Hall, and his practice of law at present. Born in Guelph, he is a distinguished son of a distinguished city, a worthy successor being that city's, youngest Mayor for a term. He is past president of the Guelph Chamber of Commerce, former Master of Chancery at Osgoode Hall and the honored man ever to hold this important post. His writings on aviation and the Canadian Army Corps have made him an internationally known figure," said Col. Graham, "and as the old Empire Loyalist section can readily see how appropriate it is for the evening is—Gentlemen, the King."

Canada Feels Sorrow

Col. Drew, youthful, athletic appearing and with a well modulated voice, pointed out in his opening remarks the fact of his having been chosen chiefly because of the fact Canadians were interested in the causes of the significance of relationship of the King to Canada and the Empire, now before had this been so impressed as at the present time.

"Canada has felt the sorrow of the loss within the Empire as no other part of the Empire has felt it in this country," said Col. Drew.

"It was the sorrow of the loss of a personal friend, yet one of whom it could be said, how wonderful it was to have the King spared, to see the splendid progress he has made in the spontaneous outburst there was last summer of all classes and ranks. One of the thrills of my life was to see that vast crowd in London on the day that the beloved monarch, with the crowds in the background thronging the streets, waiting for hours to catch a glimpse of the face of the King but of the Queen they loved also. I heard those thousands there, when I reached London that day as the carriage rolled down the Strand from Trafalgar Square to the city, no one was more surprised than the King and Queen to see the people go that reception. One thing then and there convinced me that the monarchy will never go ahead as it is at the present time—one of the thousands of soldiers that lined the route, not one of them carried a single round of ball ammunition in their rifles.

Tells of Contrast

"Yet, a few weeks later I was in Munich and saw Hitler drive down the street. Again the streets were lanned; a guard was posted every ew yards, but instead of unloaded uns, soldiers faced the road, in Munich every second guard was loaded with rifle and ball cartridge, rifle at the ready and every gun loaded with ball cartridge.

"One searches for the reason for this contrast. It is the fact that Mr. Perkins, the Secretary of State, and a few moments ago Mr. Bernstein, the finest Old Road Boy in Ontario, and never so strong because Canada's Viceroy, the King, is the people. Not never said his kingly position to impress a rule on the people but never had his kingly position to impress the people with the fact that the attitude of the people toward the person of kings became so strong. Even in the recent broadcast around Buckingham Palace when the news that King George reached the heart of the people simply, quietly, 'Yeah, people,' he said, 'my dear wife and I send our greetings and best wishes to you all.' It was something as near to men, and to women of the Empire.

"A tremendous contrast is observed in other parts of the Empire. Even in England one sees it. In Germany it is not only respect. In Germany it seems to be a blind, almost idolatrous fidelity and leadership under which that country is moving. Italy is under the same condition we felt. In France assistance was given from the people to the throne the very earth. In Germany, and even Italy, outwardly there is a splendid appearance, compliance and smooth, but underneath there is a seething mass of very deadly cause. Germany, it was pointed out, is in the middle of a great crisis. Yet it is being carried forward with enthusiasm and with the support of the country, and it is by this very force that that country is to be brought to a position as challenging as one of the most powerful on the continent. Germany is the key to unlocking in the world, the good will and peace of the world," Col. Drew states. If anything can control this attitude it will be in the hands of Germany has assets, not natural assets such as gold mines or forests, but assets in the form of youth, young men and women that have the right spirit, enthusiasm and their country and leaders."

Depend on Youth

Italy, epitomized by the sonorous visage of Il Duce carries on without any apparent opposition to the Fascist regime, he said, and it is here again that youth has taken up the reins, continued Col. Drew, with one instance of the high regard in which accomplishment of youth is held, he remarked.

"When I was there some time ago I was introduced to a friend, one of the important persons of that place. I was taken to lunch when the phone rang and my friend was advised that the King was on the line. Under class had was a rather important event for the Government. Lunch was postponed until my friend and I had driven out to the airport. My friend congratulated the winner. There were about one hundred and fifty in the race. My friend managed to, speak to most of them. I was introduced to them as well as I watched their gaze glisten when he spoke. Then I was told that there was an important man who took time out to congratulate the winner.

"That faith is lacking in France where the people do not seem to doubt all the time. No one knows where they are heading. Germany and Italy are trying secretly to build itself up strong to be ready for the day when they take over the government. Faith will not be restored unless the King, or Fascism over the country, or some dictatorship. It is only fair that there hasn't been quite enough time to bring the spirit of the country of the kind that one sees in England. It was the faith and the loyalty and the monarchs who ruled her that brought England to the front.

"I never was so optimistic in conditions that so many countries have come to the throne so young and ever in the world as well: his training has been such that he will be a man to bring to him to the throne the affection and regard of the whole of the world. His training is of an even greater function this King is going to play. The fact that Edward VIII, Duke of Windsor, is not King was by air when he from Sandringham to London Canada in the past. During the war he frequently flew with our present day troubles will look very small indeed," Col. Drew declared. He was drunk with a rousing community song eulogizing the King, concluding the address by Col. Drew.

Past President Bert Boyce, unexpectedly called upon declared he was happy to be in the city and to take part than in the centre as said as chairman, a position he held last year. Boyce in referring to the County Council declared that they were doing a great work practically all the farmers in the county.

He used to farm with the most of them. He sold the machines and equipment and they did the work with them," he commented dryly.

William C. Weir, Stirling, newly elected Warden of the county for the year and Reeve of Stirling, expressed his thanks upon behalf of fellow councillors for the royal entertainment which had been given them, and the instructive address by Col. Drew.

Warden Weir, in his address, declared that he would do his utmost to justify the appointment. Pride in the county was reflected by the statement that its facilities for indoor sports were unsurpassed. "In winter we have the Oak Hills for skiing and other sports; in summer we invite you here to the Bay where streams will carry you to the sea. We have all kinds of sports and we will have lots of chance to rough it further back in the country. We're all proud of the residents of Hastings, and if you need anything money be loved by the natural resources of the county as an investment it will be one of the best," Warden Weir said. Special appreciation was expressed for the entertainment provided by the Male Quartette, composed of S. H. Burrows, Alfred Brous, Harold Howard and Harry Mourney, by President Bernstein, and by Reeve Hubbell during the evening as pleno accompanist.

Other guests present, who assisted the Male Quartette, with the exception of a few, were from the rural districts, all of which brought repeated encores from the gathering.

the centre of the world of commerce and finance depended largely upon the part that British navy by the greatest carriers of the world's goods.

"Today we are seeing the rapid expansion of aviation and the great advantages of freight, express and passengers. No means of transportation has ever developed as rapidly, and it is of vital importance that the British Empire be conscious of its dependence on leadership in this field.

"While we have reason to be proud of the excellence of British transport since the war, to the extent to which the United States has outdistanced us in the air, we should constantly be borne in mind. While British air services are being developed forward during the past few years, it should be remembered that the progress flying within the Empire was only a small fraction of the progress the American lines which flew more than half of the world's total.

Extensive Use of Air

"What steam was in the last century to the carriage of passengers and valuable cargoes, the air is certain to be tomorrow and it is vital to the Empire that the closest attention that British air routes expand with the utmost rapidity, that the distance between the different parts of the British Empire by air be reduced to the minimum, that the distance between great industrial and commercial centres.

"The King takes his place in this new era as one who may well give leadership to the vigorous development of what is already far beyond the stage of an experiment.

"The King's interest in aviation has been of the most outstanding character. During the Jubilee he flew with Lord Trenchard, V.C., and he was the only member of any of the royal families who has ever flown in a commercial machine. Then he was present at the opening the Great War," pointed out Col. Drew, "and he has interested in some of the human interest angles of the present King's adventurous flights.

"He was attached to the British Headquarters Staff during the early summer of 1918 and at that time he was brought in contact with the group of the front in the observer's cockpit of the British fighter. These flights were brought to an end when Headquarters discovered that the then Prince of Wales had flown with Barker back more than twenty times without the knowledge of the King for some Austrians for a little larger practice.' During these flight they did search for the enemy machines and it was the King's hope that they would have an opportunity of taking part in some of the fighting. Col. Barker informed us that the King was one of the best machine gunners he had ever seen.' The gun seemed to come naturally to him. On the way back from that trip, Col. Barker had to land in artillery fire, but no casualties were reported. The Prince's name was then and again that he was a soldier of rare courage and coolness. He was also highly regarded among the front on which he was located.

Col. Barker a Favorite

"The then Prince of Wales had always looked upon Col. Barker as his favorite flyer and pilot," continued Col. Drew. "Barker was shot down by the Red Baron in the spring of 1918. Barker was taken to a German hospital. His injuries he had received at the time he was shot down. Crew, pilot, with the wind had one arm in a sling and his injuries, he was told, were slight. He had to get a new dispatch from Gull,' that had been left at the factory. Both were anxious to try it out. They took off and for the next half hour the doners were treated to a display acrobatic display of the latest machine rolled, zipped, slipped and went through all the manoeuvres known to the air greenhorns would have been dumbfounded had they known that the pilot flying in the observer's seat, comfortably at ease and suffering from a broken arm. There was a pilot who had one arm in a sling. Those were the days when the throne! It was not long after this that the Prince brought his pal, who was a famous pilot, and since then has flown everywhere that aircraft could be successfully flown.

"It is to be hoped that the interest displayed by the Canadian flyer may have a particular bearing on Canada, as the Dominion has become, in spite of our wonderful flying in the north area, we are the most favored country in the world when it comes to inter-urban transportation by air. Canada, for instance, as suggested, the King should visit the Dominion. It would probably likely that he would do some flying on these trips, and this would be the first time that Canada will have awakened from its abstraction to the importance of other equipment available to accommodate the aircraft of our country.

"Kings in the past have given much leadership to the world, and the first possibility of an Empire by her when he ordered the formation of the British Navy. But it was the first Empire Navy. The present Parliamentary system and established the Empire Navy, and there should be no liberation without representation.

May Bring New Conception

"The present Edward, following in their footsteps, may bring a new conception of the Empire by availing himself of the means now at the disposal of the Empire, to see its over parts, and by that intimate contact between the King and his people, pave the way to an even closer federation of all British nations within the Empire extended as rapidly for the future. No King ever had the opportunity to do this before.

"The aeroplane and the radio have overcome distance. The King has no longer to be content by the inspection of his examples and the powerful influence of the Empire, but not only build a stronger Empire, but to bring about a closer unity of all English speaking people of the world which is our greatest hope for peace," concluded Col. Drew.

Voicing his appreciation for the entertainment provided by the party on by Col. Drew, Mr. E. V. Riley declared that the King was the subject of the most important days in the history of the Empire. Mr. Riley, who is a veteran of the Great War, pointed out that the King was the only man who had been in the front line trenches with the greatest of interest and the most profound admiration and thanks. We ask you to accept this thanks now."

President Bernstein of the local Chamber of Commerce in announcing the entertainment for the latter half of the evening conveyed the pleasure in welcoming members of the County Council and their guests that such an enjoyable function had been arranged. It has now been decided that entertainment that is creating closer unity between city and county. We want to do anything we can do at any time will be gladly done with you and you will find us a good member of our organization."

Leopold Bernstein then proposed the toast to the County of Hastings referred particularly to the early days of that section from the year 1792, when the county was formed, to the present day.

All Included in Toast

"When I propose this toast it will be to the old pioneers right down to the present day when the natural resources are all right, but what makes the country is the citizens and the people who live within it. Consider the early problems of the pioneers, and the present day troubles will look very small indeed," Mr. Bernstein declared.

The band was drunk with a rousing community song eulogizing the King, concluding the address by Col. Drew.

Past President Bert Boyce, unexpectedly called upon declared he was happy to be in the city and to take part than in the centre as said as chairman, a position he held last year. Boyce in referring to the County Council declared that they were doing a great work practically all the farmers in the county.

William C. Weir, Stirling, newly elected Warden of the county for the year and Reeve of Stirling, expressed his thanks upon behalf of fellow councillors for the royal entertainment which had been given them, and the instructive address by Col. Drew.

Warden Weir, in his address, declared that he would do his utmost to justify the appointment. Alderman Armstrong expressed the wish, that the deliberations of the body would be successful, and that Belleville would be favored with the fair of the next year's convention.

Chief Exhibits

Past President R. H. Ketcheson gave a brief review of the work of the Association in opening the meeting, pointing to 1935 as a year of success for the agricultural societies. At least three societies had been given a determined effort to have cheese made one of the chief exhibits, and that the Belleville and Picton fairs had done so, with out vere Belleville, Madoc and Napanee. At the last meeting of the Association, held in Toronto, several problems had been advanced, the chief of these was the matter of the Association entering into agreement among the fair boards of the various districts on the dates of the fairs so that there would not be conflicting dates for horse races. Under this new scheme one date in each district for the horsemen would be held in order that the purses could be paid. Some of the boards, it was stated by the secretary, had received this new rule kindly, while others had not taken kindly to the plan.

Tribute to the memory of the late Harry Aylesworth, a member of the Association who died this year was paid by the members standing in silence, and the sending of a message of sympathy to the family of the late Majesty was ordered. The members also stood at attention.

In the report of the auditor submitted, it was shown that the present balance stood at 23 cents, a fee of 25 cents per member had been taken in during the year.

Addresses were given by agricultural representatives A. H. Mackay, Toronto, and W. J. Ross, director of the local offices.

As second vice president of the Ontario Fairs Association, W. J. Hill, Madoc spoke on behalf of the Association, and explained that only by "pulling together" could the Association be made functioning. Belleville Fair was said by the speaker to be one of the best in the province.

"BOARDING OUT" OF WARDS BETTER SAYS INSPECTOR

T. D. Ruston Gives Report To County Council

BOARD RATE GIVEN

At Present 85 Children Are in Homes in the County

Inspector T. D. Ruston of the Children's Aid Society gave the County Council a comprehensive report of the work of that society during the past year. Owing to the changing of the rate of board, the appointment from the last of October to the first of March, the inspector was not able to give the council a full year's work for the entire year. "Although the "Boarding Home" system had been in use almost a year, I am still in favor of the system," he explained and I am of the opinion, that in the long run it is the proper method of keeping the children in the homes," Mr. Ruston stated. "I am not finding any fault with the Matron nor with the shelter, and I have no fault to find with the rate advanced and have more initiative and feeling that had been kept under strict discipline in the shelter. The children have gained more than if the children were in the Shelter," continued Mr. Ruston. The delicious meals for the children society has been given an increased amount which allows each child more money in salary, but I did not take it all off as the salary remains the same as to the 1919 scale and the other $300 has gone into the general funds. The children are more than advanced and have more initiative and feeling that had been kept under strict discipline in the shelter. The children have gained more than if the children were in the Shelter," continued Mr. Ruston. The delicious meals for the children society has been given an increased amount which allows each child more money in salary, but I did not take it all off as the salary remains the same as to the 1919 scale and the other $300 has gone into the general funds. The children are more than advanced and have more initiative and feeling that had been kept under strict discipline in the shelter. The increase has no. been all my work by any means, as the matron has been associated with an office and secretary, I have the interest of the children at heart and I do not take only wish for salary enough to keep me comfortable. He told the council that children were now being boarded in the city at $3.50 per calendar months instead of three dollars weekly as formerly.

Agreement Dictated by Hydro Sent Back by County Council To Committees for Perusal

Deals with Lines for Alarm System on Hydro Poles

BY-LAWS PRESENTED

Council to petition Railway Board to do Away with Level Crossings

An agreement between the local Hydro Power Commission and the town of Hastings and General Hospital committed to the County Council on Thursday afternoon, for signature respecting the liability of the last two named in case of accident from the wires strung on Hydro Poles over which the fire alarms in the town of Hastings—County Home and Hospital are connected brought forth some debate when on motion of G. B. Aylbart, Reeve of Marmora, the matter was referred back to the Finance and House of Refuge committee with power to act. The Warden and County Clerk must sign the agreement.

Ex-Warden Bateman stated, that he was of the opinion, that Mr. Hydro Installed lines generally had made arrangements with the Hydro for the carrying of these wires and he was of the opinion that if an agreement was necessary, that it should have been completed earlier because the one drawn for the signatures of the Warden and Clerk does not seem quite fair and not according to the rules of good business.

History Given by Clerk

County Clerk Eric Denyes gave a history of the case, stating that the Hydro would not sign the same as it stands and that he was satisfied it would be changed but the agreement, the signature, that the contract would be cancelled forthwith. He also read a letter from Charles A. Payne, K.C., giving his opinion on the agreement generally. Certain sections he changed but that the agreement must be the Hydro Commission but the Agreement came back without the changes being made.

W. H. Sayers — What is wrong with the Hydro? We are discussing the wires on the Hydro poles and they are wires on the poles and the lines were strung on our own poles and anything happening to the county council would be liable just the same as they are now.

Reeve Whitbridge and Reeve Ketcheson agreed with the report.

Deputy-Reeve George Jones stated that the wires when strung were duly inspected, and that if the Council wished the Hydro would be willing to sign the agreement as submitted.

George Bush thought that the engagement had been made with the Hydro. Reeves Ketcheson and Whitbridge were empowered to sign and Clerk sign for the County but the amendments are those to be carried and the matter was closed.

Members of the three Casualty insurance companies attended the council relative to the placing of their insurance with the county. The Zurich company gave the county a rebate of $100 on their policy and $414 for double limits. The Globe now out of existence as a casualty company had their policy carried on by Lloyds of England, quoted at $1,000 for double limits. The Canada Casualty Company carried the county buildings. The other company quoted $1,000 for double limits of life $3,000 with the Road Superintendent under another scale of $1,000 for double limits of life men. All the propositions were referred to the finance committee to be taken up later in the session.

By-laws to the number of seven, a number of by-laws were given their first readings and referred to the committee of the whole for by-laws which will convene some time Friday.

Under special orders of the day, Deputy Reeve Jones of Sidney Township, brought to the attention of the members the terrible condition of the highway at the place at the Cohstery Crossing and Sidney Township, and requested that nothing in those authority to abolish this level crossing be left undone. I think this council should do something in the matter," said Mr. Mitchell, "as human lives are being sacrificed here." A number of resolutions came in for reading, grants to northern townships, while the Reeve of Sidney moved a resolution that the Railway Board be petitioned to do away with the level crossing.

Grants Requested

Five townships, Sidney, Hungerford, Huntingdon, Tyendinaga, Rawdon asked for grants of $500 each for special road work and added to these were Marmora and Lake and Madoc and Elzevir, Grant to Ways and Means. Under the order of business Councillor Mitchell's motion was sent on to Ways and Means, sponsored by Ex-Warden Bateman, Reeve Ketcheson, that the library grants be increased from $50 to $75 and the grant to the Travelling Library be increased to $100 each, was also sent on to Ways and Means.

Administration of Justice: Davis, chairman; and Haggerty, County Treasurer report of the committee was adopted.

RAISING OF RATE FOR ROAD WORK CONTEMPLATED

One Quarter Mill was Given Enough to Repair Bridges

WAGE SCALE STRUCK

296 Miles of County Roads and 138 Bridges in County

James A. Moore, reeve of Grimsthorpe, and chairman of roads and bridges for many years, presented his January report of the County Council on Thursday afternoon and suffered raising the mill rate one-quarter mill to take care of the work that should be done in the coming year. Some discussion followed the reading of the report before it was sent on to the committee on by-laws for ratification. Councillor Haggerty thought that wages for a man and team should be increased from 35 cents an hour but the majority seemed to favor the opinion that lots of help could be secured at that figure. "I don't think a man can live on 35 cents an hour for himself and team for a day," he said, "I headed and at $18.00 a ton in the north," Mr. Sayers said.

Reeve Martin. "Where is the help at that wage."

Mr. Haggerty. "I don't think rate should be raised at this if the County rate is raised I certainly think municipalities have to raise their rates in accordance with the expenditure carrying all they can stand at present time."

Road Delegation

Later in the meeting a resolution was brought in by Ex-Warden Bateman, that a strong delegation consisting of the whole committee be sent to Toronto interview the Department of Highways with a view of having some of the County Road System taken by the Provincial Highway Department. This motion was carried.

In his report it was estimated expenditure for roads would be $65,000.00 and the estimated mill rate was struck, the bridge Stocco, Glen Miller and West Huntingdon were the repaired ses on. It was shown in the report expenditures have decreased $929 by 250 percent. There is 296 miles of county roads, 138 (81 are reinforced concrete, steel with 57 are of wood and 13 are wooden floor abutments.)

Drainages were made in scale of wages, they being, $4.00 per day for man and machine crushing work, 20 cents other 20 cents for labor, 35 cents per hour for man and team on work and 30 cents on other work. Man and steam power operate crushers.

LATEST RAGE IS SENSIBLE

Skiing has taken such a hold of the people of the North American continent that the New York Herald-Tribune devotes an editorial to it, the all important question of supplying more and better ski trains to carry the ski-enthusiasts to the hills. It asks "what matters it if commuters on a snowy evening pass trough the Grand Central Terminal in imminent danger of having an eye gouged out by a ski? This is all because so great has been the rush this winter to the mountains. After some further references to the trains and the ski parties and the rush to the hills, the Herald-Tribune goes on—"What if the railroads put on ski train after ski train and the White Mountains are overrun (often overwhelmed) occasionally by a shivering, shivering army of youngsters, many of whom heretofore never travelled under their own locomotion?".

"Clearly, it is all to the good. Of the many different crazes that have swept the country, from diabolo to treasure hunting, none has had the many advantages of skiing. Last Sunday New England alone received 250,000 ski enthusiasts for the week end. The Adirondacks had its many tens of thousands—of which New York City furnished its share. All over the hills, in small towns as well as large, the ski mania is spreading.

"But it is a sport for kings—a sport that calls for skill and nerve, both in high degree. It is relentless in its exactions. Either you learn it or you face disaster or ignominy. Once those two narrow boards are fastened to your feet and placed on the incline the spell is on you. All or none be mastered. The various turns and stems are not mere "swank". They are essential in the control of your journey. An unsuspected muscle is brought into play by every demanding quick action if you would avoid a spill. Every move requires balance, and balance implies great muscular control. But mastered, no sport yields a greater thrill.

"Unfortunately, many of America's skiers are as yet in the "uncertain" class. They are subject to attacks of nervous fright and unexpectedly, and to trying one ski around an ear. When the snow is soft and deep many show a preference for—or an inability to avoid—sudden and complete somersaults. One of the newer posts among our ski acquaintances has endeavored, by paraphrasing the lines of Shakespeare in The Tempest', to picture his sensations on such occasion:

(Where the snow flocks there flock I;
In a snowdrift deep I lie;
There I couch, in vain I cry,
Head down, feet up, I'm high.

"But they all insist it's worth it!"

Hereabouts there are of course no ski runs. But there are skis and skiers. There is a ski club and we have seen the ski outfits as one of the most suitable for winter sports.

Winter need not be dreaded. The youngest generation is not dreading it, nor complaining, because the cold winter has brought a great deal of snow and a great deal of snow has made skiing very popular.

Skiing has this advantage that it is a sport in which everyone interested participates. In this it is quite unlike so many sports in which the spectators outnumber those engaged in the sport, sometimes a thousand to one.

SNOW CLEARANCE

Conditions govern industry and activity. Were it not for freezing weather, there would be no snow, and there would be no extra winter jobs, there would be no coal burned, there would be less clothing worn and so on to infinity with the changes which would be involved.

A look at the lower river bank on the west side with its great pile of snow, which had been shovelled on trucks on the city streets, carted to the west side bank and there dumped into the river, is interesting reading while everyone knows that in the spring the snow will but melt away and if it were left on the streets it would melt there too.

But that would be an out-of-date view. Cities have found that it pays to remove the ice and snow from the streets to keep traffic free from hindrance. Besides the seasonal provides workless men, with labor on occasions.

There was a time when snow clearing was not essential in the days of cutters and sleighs. But in the days of trucks and automobiles, the era of speed, roads must be in passable shape. It was not important a matter if a sled went in a drift as it is to-day if traffic is held up. If a large truck and its trailers are caught in the snowbanks the situation is much more serious.

Piles of snow on the roads are not as sign of modern cities.

BONIFACES, REAL HOTEL MEN OF

THE OLD SCHOOL, are not common now in this age of tremendous efficiency, card indexes, elevators, revolving doors, beven age rooms, running water, but a few still linger on, and more than all the comforts of home. In the old days the hotel was less than its proprietor and half of the joy of travelling was being welcomed at a hotel by name, given the glad hand of roving fellowship by the proprietor, and an invitation to sit in on a little game, if you were known to be that way inclined. The proprietor always "sat in" but as far as our recollection goes generally played them close to his vest so that his losses or winnings were small. Diplomatic, eh, what? If he was a big winner he would probably gain the reputation of "a shark", with or without the heathen chinee's tricks that were vain and ways that were dark. So he played more for sociability sake and the good fellowship of the house and his drinks though frequent were small, while his appetite for cigars was large. Old Timers could name many names of bonifaces whose memory is more familiar than the hotels they presided over. Brockville had its Johnny Bann at the Revere House; Ab Robinson at the Queen's Hall; while travellers who visited Belleville regularly always expected a warm smile and hearty handclasp from Tom Powers, Jim Jenkins and others and realize faces were missing when they came to it, but just real folks among friendly folks. All of which is brought up by a newspaper notice that one of the latter-day hotelmen, in succession to the old type, is going to the ancient boniface with the smile and hearty handclasps, has moved to Montreal. Wilfred A. Stead, formerly of the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, and of the Royal Connaught, Hamilton, is now manager of the Windsor Hotel, Montreal, where his many friends will be glad to look him up. Mr. Stead is a hotelman of the old school, with modern improvements. His friends are legion, in fact he is embarrassed by so many friends, but as that is a part of his business and as he is a High Priest of the Modern Order of Hotel Greeters it might be said that having friends en masse is part of the hotel business. His Belleville friends will be pleased to learn of the appointment.

"SOLDIERS THREE" AND "ELEPHANT BOY", Kipling stories are being filmed in England, while Hollywood is working on 'Captains Courageous' 'Kim' and "The Light That Failed." People who have lived in India at length at time say that 'Kim' is one of the best pictures of life in India ever presented. "Captains Courageous" deals with Gloucester fishermen and the New England Banks. Outdoor scenes were taken off the Canadian coast by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, a production unit being maintained there for several months. 'Kim' a story of life in India with a native cast by London Films, and directed by a Canadian, Roberty Flaherty, who is on his way back to London with the completed film. Rudyard Kipling's "Soldiers Three" will be played by Victor McLaglen, whose acting in 'The Informer' was judged the best screen performance of the past year. He was signed by Gaumont-British for the Mulvaney part and leaves Hollywood shortly for England to commence production.

HEARD THIS ONE?

The cases before the court had been going on for many days, and concerned a claim that involved wearisome technicalities. Things were not improved when the counsel made a speech of unnecessary length. He said:

"But, my lord, comes the question of bags; they might have been full bags or half-full bags; or, even, my lord they might have been empty bags."

"Or," interrupted the sorely-tried judge, "they might have been windbags."

Much excitement was caused on the streets this morning as a rumor became freely circulated that the premises of the Sloan Company, wholesale grocers, corner of Front Junction of Station Street and the Camillion Road, had been entered by burglars, the safe blown open and a large sum of money taken. Upon investigation it was learned that the report was greatly exaggerated; the place had been entered, but the safe had been blown and only $4.00 or $5.00 was stolen. The police department had been notified that a gang of blowers, who had operated elsewhere on this their way to Belleville, and had notified all business firms here and as a consequence precautions were taken to place money and valuables in a secure place. Last evening the police were informed that the safe had been blown in the rear of the G.T.R. station and the full force went in search of them, going along the track for several miles, but none of them were found. It is likely that the Sloan place was entered while the police were out on the wild goose chase for them. It is hoped that the men will soon be caught.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was around at the firehouse tawking to Mr. Riley the hookin and ladder driver and I asked him what was the most dangerous to be a sailer in a storm or a fireman at a fire, and he said, Well, I guess life on the old sailing ships was pritty dangerous, but it seems these new floating palaces are as safe as the Bank of England. I worked on one once, he said.

What doing? I said, and Mr. Riley said, O, odd jobs. For a while I ran the express elevator that ran from the 20th deck all a way up to the deck over, and then for a spell I was a conductor on the train of cars that goes around around the promenade deck to pick up any passengers that got tired and wanted a lift. That's what I was doing, in fact, when we hit the iceberg, he said.

O, did you sink? I said, and Mr. Riley said, Dont make me laugh. I'll admit, though, I felt a little skittish myself when I saw a half a dozen full grown lookers headin up over the aft horizon, and I reported to the captain and I said to him, Captain, looberg ho!

What did he say? I said, and Mr. Riley said, His only words was, full steam ahoy. That's what he thawt of lookergs, and the next thing I knew was a big crash and making 426 nottis an hour, pritty near full speed, and then bang, we gave an iceberg quite a sock that a minute later every one of the 40 decks was covered with ice and the neatest little ice cubes you ever saw. Believe me, the captain was a cute one, Mr. Riley said.

Do you mean he did it on purpose? I said, and he said Mee Mee, captain and then he headed strate for the equator and traded the whole ship's cargo of ice cubes for ivory and pearls worth a king's ransom. He still got an ivory writing chair and a pearl button hook left from my share, and now I'm in a little polishing to do. Mr. Riley said.

Meaning good bye.

Rare French Book Brought to Light

LINDSAY, Ont., Jan. 31.—(CP) A French book given by George Menton, Sunderland farm hand, years ago has been revealed to be one of the three known existing copies of L'Histoire des Familles de L'Evil, dealing with early Canadian nobility.

A gift from a former employer, the book was kept by Menton for sentimental reasons since he read no French. When he took a Toronto book dealer he had it the dealer discovered its true worth, and immediately and bought it for $16.

WILL QUESTION LOEB'S COMPANION

Not Satisfied With Official Denials of Special Privileges Another Victim to Leopold

Joliet, Ill., Jan 31—(AP)—State's Attorney William R. McCabe of Will County turned in to Nathan Leopold on Thursday, in an investigation of conditions at Stateville prison where Richard Loeb, Leopold's partner in the slaying of 14-year-old Bobby Franks, was stabbed fatally Tuesday by convict James Day.

Announcing his dissatisfaction with official denials the Franks' killers enjoy privileges denied most of the penitentiary, where both were under sentence of life, plus 99 years, McCabe said he would question Leopold regarding the presence of prison authorities.

Day claimed Loeb promised him immunity from punishment if he would submit to improper advances which charges were made by the 30-year-old Franks' slayer.

Have you ever tried looking into a mirror and smiling at yourself? Try it, especially when you're blue and everything seems to have gone wrong. You will be surprised how well it works.

Seeing yourself smile will make you feel cheery all over. You will feel at once how easy it is to get circumstances and the ways of the world to smile for you.

There are those who actually believe it is dangerous to smile. They say, "Smile and somebody will think they are being careless, or they may be some unpleasantry to be punished if they let themselves go and laugh.

Such folks, however, have not entirely lost the ability to smile. They have merely lost the habit of it.

Every smile is worth a gallon of disinfectant. It is a carrier of sense of humor to the utmost! Put on a happy face, your own life and that of others.

DR. BISCH'S DAILY DIET HINT

A common fault which should be corrected is the overlooking of such sameness in the daily diet. It tends to make us lose our zest for food. On the other hand it is a well-known scientific fact that what we most relish does us the most good. For variety of dishes, as well as general treatment of old standbys, a dependable cook book should frequently be consulted.

Some have a more highly developed sense of humor than others, but scarcely a person exists who is entirely free from it.

Life is filled with regrets and disappointments. Life is earnest, life is often a long hard and heavy struggle.

Therefore relieve the tedium of life with humor! Laugh and be merry! By this means, ease your way and lighten your burden!

"I hadn't to laugh at everything, for fear that I may be obliged to grow," said Samarchaka.

Indeed, a disposition that commands the absurdities of life gives them a ludicrous turn, and laughs in a far greater ease than the opposite. A gloomy and despondent outlook that takes everything at its face value, and so is depressed and hangs its head.

One elevates the spirits and invites lighthearedness; the other clouds the viewpoint and invites the gloom!

To be sure, we must take life seriously sometimes. We cannot giggle all the time. It is absurd to see everything as funny. But the average of becoming too serious is greater than that of becoming too humorous.

Be sure you evaluate correctly what you see and hear, day by day. Be careful that your disappointments and the world's woes do not weigh too heavily upon you! We can very readily become too serious. Forgetting that life is checkered, be ready as well as with sorrow!

Therefore, keep your perspective, try to find the silver lining always. We are here to face the world. Preserve an inner serenity and calm. Be tolerant and understanding.

Lastly, smile!

Smile first, last and always! Practice smiling! Perhaps you've had the habit. Perhaps you don't smile merely because you've no idea of practice, and for no other reason.

TWEED

Tweed.—Tuesday, January 28th, was observed as a day of prayer and mourning for the death of our beloved Governor, King George V. Memorial services were held in the different churches and were attended by large congregations. Rev. Mr. Carthagh's Roman Catholic Church service was conducted. Requiem was held with Very Rev. Dean J. P. O'Riordan officiating.

Dr. Stevenson gave a splendid address in his address referred to the noble character of our late King, and to the universal grief attendant upon his passing.

The United Church special addresses were delivered by Mr. W. E. Tunnacliffe, on M. P. and by R. R. Nicholson, The congregation joined in singing favourite hymns of the late King, "O God Our Help In Ages Past", "Nearer My God To Thee" and "Abide With Me." The choir sang "Crossing the Bar."

BEAUHARNOIS CO. MAKES APPEAL

Premier Hepburn Satisfied Will Pay Ho Attention

TORONTO, Jan. 31.—(CP) — Premier Hepburn said Thursday he was "satisfied" Prime Minister Mackenzie King would pay no attention to the application of the Beauharnois Power Company for disallowance of the Ontario Legislature ratification of contracts with four Quebec companies.

"I haven't discussed the matter with Mr. King," the Premier said, "but I am satisfied he will pay no attention to the Beauharnois application."

At the same time Mr. Hepburn reiterated his declaration if the Federal Government disallowed the Provincial Legislature he would obtain the legislature's unanimous support and appeal to the people.

"If our legislature is disallowed, it would mean we would have to pay to Beauharnois $4,750,000 per year, or do not get and would not take delivery of," Mr. Hepburn said.

The Hydro Commission and the Government are negotiating the completion of new contracts with the Gatineau and Maclaren power companies.

COLD WEATHER STILL REIGNS

Snow Storms Hold Grip on East Coast of U.S. and Texas

New York, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Cold storms on land and sea that have lashed at the North American continent for more than a week continued only slightly abated in the United States Thursday while snowfall of record breaking proportions covered much of the south. Snow drifted from Texas to the Carolinas sparing only Florida, South Georgia and the Gulf Coastal regions, from a cold rain fall.

Coast guards searched the grey seas of New Jersey for the 55-foot schooner, Anna and Ella, unreported since she left Cape May, N.J., Jan. 18, with a crew of seven for Norfolk, Va.

The snow storm in Texas cost the life of an airline pilot, credited with saving the lives of his five passengers. The plane crashed during a forced landing in a blinding blizzard.

Other deaths were recorded in Arkansas and Alabama, adding to the more than 200 dead since the New Year data showed.

Mickey Mouse Painted in Oil Joins Art Exhibit

Chicago, Jan. 31.—(AP)—From Rembrandt to Mickey Mouse is a long jump in the world of art but Chicago's Art Institute made it today.

A likeness of the famous rodent was a feature in the Institute's annual show by artists of Chicago and vicinity.

Brilliant in red pants and yellow gloves and shoes, Mickey stands in the center of the gazing down from the roof of a city building at a bright sign on a tavern across the street.

NIAGARA FALLS FINALLY STOPPED—COLD! Like gigantic stalactites, huge icicles hang from the now solid crest of the world-famous Niagara Falls. The hard rocks in the foreground are given the appearance of soft eiderdown pillows by the coating of white. Only the wintry touch of Jack Frost can stay the power of the mighty fall. It is said to be the first time in man's memory that the American Falls have been stopped—cold.

FIRES IN ZERO WEATHER COST LIVES OF FOUR WOMEN IN ONTARIO—Two persons, Mrs. Gladman and her daughter Gwen, 24, lost their lives in a fire which completely destroyed a six-door tenement house in Ottawa. A second daughter, Mrs. Gladman, who was carried out by Eastview firemen, was badly burned and is in a serious condition in hospital. Several other persons were injured. Fire originated in basement of the Gladman home and spread quickly. The fire took place around midnight with temperatures near the 15 below zero mark, with a high wind blowing from the west. Only one of the nine families which occupied the building had any insurance, all the others lost everything. Two explosions occurred, the fire blowing the two outside walls. Above picture shows ruins.

TWENTY NEGROES

The prison trucks, used in Alabama, Texas and several other southern states, are steel cages on wheels, equipped with benches for the prisoners. There is never a provision for manacling of the convicts.

Bodies of the twenty convicts were buried beyond consolation by the time the Scottsboro fire department finally got the flames with chemicals for combatting the flames.

The two negro convicts the guard charged from the death trap were pronounced by physicians in such critical condition they could not die.

LOEB DEATH STUDIED FROM PLOT ANGLE

Joliet, Ill., Jan. 31 (AP)—Fellow convicts of Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold were questioned today by State's Attorney Will McCabe for evidence in support the prosecution belief that Loeb was deliberately murdered.

Advancing the theory Loeb—slain with a razor Tuesday by James Day, 24, of Chicago—was the victim of a "thrill murder" of Bobby Franks which sent Loeb and Nathan Leopold to prison in 1924—the prosecutor hinted Leopold was a suspect in his investigation.

Toronto, Jan. 31 (CP)—At midnight tonight the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission will turn on its system 40,000 horsepower from the Maclaren-Quebec Company in advance of an agreement which will not be signed until a power deal with the Gatineau Power Company has been concluded.

Negotiations for the Gatineau agreement will resume Monday following an adjournment last night after an all-day conference between the Hydro Commission and representatives of the Commission failed to produce results.

At the close of the conference, T. At the same time Mr. Lyon disclosed the power purchased from Maclaren-Quebec at the rate of $12.50 a horsepower.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied by Riggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

In an opinion on the Canadian outlook, Standard Statistics declares: "The new year presents definitely improved prospects in many lines; and general betterment in world trade, aided to some extent by the new tariff arrangements, should help to accelerate the rate of Canadian recovery. The long-term trend in the Dominion is upon a more rapidly rising scale than in the United States, and although 1936 prospects appear to be more moderate than those of 1935 they are nevertheless favorable in the United States. In Canada, there is ample justification for continuing participation by well-grounded investors in selected Canadian securities."

Financial Service does not agree with Standard Statistics in the statement that "1936 prospects appear to be more favorable in the United States than in Canada". There is a better prospect of this in Canada, than there appears that is true of the United States. We are apprised of a sizable improvement for the next five years, while across the border the country will be fortunate to maintain gains before another 13 months with all the unsettlement that it entails.

The improvement in sales of Dominion Stores in the last two months, after adverse comparisons for about 20 months previously, indicates that this company, dire to its control of a chain, is looking forward to better results in 1936. With the total capitalization standing at only 353,363 shares of no par common, it is evident that any improvement in sales with a consequent recovery in earnings, will built large profits for the common shares. The dividend is still $1.40, improvement in sales with a consequent recovery in earnings, will built large profits for the common shares. The dividend is still $1.40, improvement in sales with a consequent recovery in earnings, will built large profits for the common shares. The dividend is still $1.40 payable quarterly, or $1.60 a share per annum.

Canadian Pacific Railway

C.P.R. enjoyed the distinction of being the fourth most active stock on the New York Stock Exchange on Tuesday. Although having experienced a shrinkage in gross revenues scarcely less severe than in the case of the principal steam carrier operating within the confines of the United States, the C.P.R. has, in every depression year, been able to sustain full coverage for its fixed charges including requirements of the debenture stock. In 1934, the company's profit rose to 1.36 from the 1.05 indicated during the year before, and covered in 1932. And while disappointing wheat shipments combined with higher operating expenses preclude extension of the rosy picture which has been drawn of improvements of other forms of traffic augurs favorably with respect to direction of the trend from here on.

Massey-Harris

The recent activity in Massey-Harris common on the New York Curb market is interpreted to mean that an American group has become interested in the issue. The financial statement of the company for the year ended November 30th, 1935, is scheduled to appear in appearance early in March. Official utterances made in July last would make it appear as if the results for the coming document will make the best showing since the depression. have had in many years, sales will be up and inventories will be reduced. Also progress has been made with regard to "Receivables" is not known. In general it is well to recall that by reason of its diversified sales, the Chrysler Receivables of the Massey-Harris Company represent amounts owing by farmers in other countries. It is believed that the amounts owing to the company from Canada alone are considerable. A reserve of $4,944,000 was set up against bad debt losses in this connection.

The advance in wheat has had a very beneficial effect on the farmer. This improvement will undoubtedly enable him to pay off his indebtedness and to resume the purchases of new equipment.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, Jan. 31.—The demand on the local wholesale dairy produce markets continues on a low level again with butter and egg prices holding at unsettled levels while cheese sold at lower prices.

In eggs, the demand is negligible and there has been no change in prices for grade A mediums and pullets, quotations in addition being 30 and 24 cents per dozen respectively, the A large were quoted at 32 to 33 cents per dozen on the open market. While receipts so far this week are somewhat heavier than a week ago the small consumptive demand is tending to unsettle the market.

The butter market is continuing to display many indications and although there was little change in prices the lack of demand is beginning to lend an uncertain tone to the market.

On the open market the No. 1 grade was quoted nominally at 32 to 34 cents per pound, while prices on the Creamery Section, Canada Commodity Exchange were also nominal, no sales being made. Fall futures were recorded while the "spot" price for Quebec grade butter changed hands.

HOGS

Toronto, Jan. 31. (CP)—Seaboard hog prices declined fifty cents per hundred pounds fresh all report selling in a range of $8.15 at Toronto to $8.65 at Peterborough, Brantford, Kitchener, Chatham and London throughout $8.25.

STIRLING AND TWEED TIE 1-1

Two Minutes Before end of Game Stirling had ..... Game Cinched

Stirling, Jan. 31—(Special) — Stirlings smart hockey team held the league leading Tweed team to a one-all tie at the Stirling arena on Wednesday night in the most thrilling hockey match of the season. It was the first time these teams, both at the top of the league standing, had met. Play started off with both teams playing cautious hockey, with both teams giving a smart display of passing and tricky combination plays. Throughout the first two periods the Stirling team had a slight edge on the play but the defensive tactics of both teams kept the count off the score board. In the third period Tweed pressed hard and with every man up Ingram and Stollis broke away and Ingram put in the first score. In the third period Simpson in the Tweed nets for the first counter with nothing to him the last skating youngsters really turned it on and Stirling had all their could do to hang on, several times the Tweed players came dangerously close to scoring. Play was fast and stiff body checks began to come up in the struggle to hold them off. Until the last two minutes of play, it looked like a victory for Stirling, and the crowd cheered as the Tweed team opened up with lightning rapidity. Ingram was chased for a minor offence and that was the goal Tweed needed. Taking advantage of the confusion that they put on the power and Grosch went up fro m the crowd to steal behind the mix up of a scramble in front of the Stirling net to beat Morcon and tie the game up. The same skating speed was carried through the ten minute overtime period with no ultimate effort upon the score. Robinson, Stollis and Ingram were the best for the home boys with all other players turning in a good performance. The Tweed team produced a great string of real speedy youngsters on their line with clever player being under retrictions and the youngest seventeen. Last seven ten year old defence man did the iron man act playing the game on the one night. Contributing largely to the victory of the Tweed high school over the Stirling team was the opener of the double header. He then rested a few minutes and played a long up game with the senior team in the championship Tuzonson, regular defence man who was out of the game because of illness. Shannon, McGuire and Morrison were best man for the visitors with the goalies of both teams playing a great game.

Lineups:

Tweed: Simpson, goal, Leal and Marsh, defence, Morrison, centre, McGuire and Murray on the wings. Alternates Tuzonson and Provost.

Stirling: Morcon goal, Ingram and Tulloch defence, Robinson centre, Stollis and Wallace on the wings. Alternates Moon, R. Fraser, G. Fraser and Rodgers.

Referee: Grant of Tweed.

Tweed High School Defeat Stirling 6 to 2

In the game which preceded the interesting fixture Tweed high school team handed Stirling a 6-2 trimming in a game that was spectacular in spots but like in the victory for Stirling, and the crowd cheered as the Tweed team opened up with lightning rapidity. Ingram was chased for a minor offence and that was the goal Tweed needed. Taking advantage of the confusion that they put on the power and Grosch went up fro m the crowd to steal behind the mix up of a scramble in front of the Stirling net to beat Morcon and tie the game up. Royal Clemency May be Exercised

LONDON, Jan. 31.— (AP)—King Edward VIII was expected by informed persons here today to exercise the royal prerogative of mercy within the next few days by showing clemency to a number of prisoners.

A final decision depended upon the advice of Sir John Simon, Home Secretary, but such action would follow the precedent established by King George V after the World War I in 1919 for King Edward VII.

Prisoners with a month or more to serve, were likely to receive a one-week remission and those with a year or more remaining of their sentences a reduction of one month.

GROUP HONORS FOR KINGSTON IN BASKETBALL

Defeat Local Quintette 30-29 in Last Minute

FADED BADLY

Held Lead of Four Points With Only Short Time to Play

Upholding their reputation of fading badly in the dying moments of the game the Belleville "Y" intermediate basketball team was defeated from the O.A.B.A. race when they dropped Kingston to the same game to the Kingston "Y" squad by the score of 30 to 29 at the Belleville Collegiate last night. Staging a last half rally the local "Y" squad overcame the Kingston team's early lead and forged well to the front to lead by a four point margin with but three minutes of play left, but within that comparatively short time, the locals faded from victory within their grasp. The win for the Kingston quintette practically assures them of the group title and the honor to represent Eastern Ontario in the provincial play-downs.

During the early stages of the game the Kingston team, with only five players available on the remainder of their team was late in arriving, "Bill Lay" put a determined effort by the local "Y" and while clad and made the score 13 to 14 in favor of the visitors at the half way mark. Belleville forged well to the front early in the second stanza as Wilkie, Bailey and Coleman each successive baskets to put Belleville in top and after a four point lead with only three minutes to play, Speedy Locals by Elliott, Thompson and Virtan, however, gave the Kingston team a last minute victory. Fallen short of their opponents around the local cage coal the local squad the game and further possibilities in O.A.B.A. basketball this year.

J. Thompson bespectacled Kingston forward led the scoring of the night with 13 points. While of Belleville collected 13 as Cole sank three thrilling baskets for six points. Bailey and Aikins added to the local cause as Wilkerson stood out on the defence. Mcallahon, Elliott, Virtan and Thompson starred for the victorious Kingston team. The game was capably handled by Referee "Pete" Murdoch of Albert College.

The box score:

Belleville "Y"	G	F	P
Cole f	3	0	6
Faulkner f.	0	0	0
Burley f.	2	0	4
Wilkie f.	3	1	7
Bailey c.	2	1	5

Referee: Pete Beach or Belleville.

Umpire: Belleville Goodwin. One of four foul shots attempted; Kingston completed four of eight free foul shots for the game.

In a pre-game exhibition fixture the Deacon A.C. Juvenile defeated a picked team of ex-players from the M.S.B.A.U. Intermediates by a score of 35 to 10. The Deacon juveniles showed too much class and speed for the veteran players of yesteryear.

Lighting Improvement For Entire Province

Toronto, Jan. 31.—(CP)—Means of increasing the use of electrical power in Ontario were discussed by T. S. Jeffery, chief municipal engineer of the Provincial Hydro-Electric Commission, in an address before the annual meeting of the Ontario Municipal Electric Association and the Association of Municipal Electric Utilities.

He declared the Commission was prepared also to inaugurate province-wide lighting improvement.

Lack of illumination was being shown in acility ranges, he declared, and if you are just sitting down and letting the world go by, you do have to buck the long arm of the law."

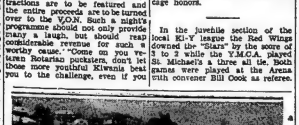
CURRENT SPORT



DAY BY DAY

The Peterboro sport scribe informs his many (?) readers of the fact, that Bill Calladine is on the prospect list of both the Boston Bruins and the Detroit Red Wings. If the Bruins pick players like Calladine as future big leaguers, we wonder they are perched on the bottom rung of the N.H.L. ladder. Calladine is a good sort of a defence'er in his own class, but we could name a dozen or more players in Eastern Ontario, we'd imagine, individually WHO will come in for considerable raising on Monday night at the Belleville Arena, unless he produces the goods himself. Local fans are all talking about Monday night's game between Belleville intermediate O.H.A. boys, some predicting that an armistice was only called in Peterboro long enough to allow the players the girl their hearts and renew hostilities here on Monday. The Peterboro lads are said to be a fare-thee-well, ask Harry Ingram, Bob Gracey and Carl Morgan, but they all can show definite proof in the matter of bruises, that are still painful, Of course hockey can be a great game, and the rougher the match the better the fans like it, and there is but time in the old town Monday night for the defeat of the Peterboro means certain elimination, there's nothing the "Redmen" would like better than to rub their Liftlook City rivals out of the picture. The old battle cry of "Hallball the gang's all here" will resound through the Arena for this game.

Three local B.C.I. interscholastic teams are in competition at Picton this evening the two girls' teams and the junior boys' squad.

The Belleville "Y" intermediate basketball team were eliminated from the championship race in losing the K.O.A.B.A. last evening, when they allowed sure-fire victory to slip from their hands and lost to the Kingston "Y" in the last minute of play, the score being 30 to 29. The local intermediate boopsters have had the happy knack of losing their last four games in the last second or play. Queer as it may seem, the local "Y" aggregation looked much better, while losing, than they did in display. They have always successfully come from behind to forge to the front, only to see out when they have had substantial leads in the final minutes of play. Whether this determines a poor system of defence in the pinches or not, we are not prepared to say, but one thing is certain, they cannot be said that the local cagers are front runners. Belleville had a good intermediate basketball team this year despite the fact they are out in the cold with pinches or not, we are not prepared to say, but one thing is certain, they cannot be said that the local cagers are front runners. Belleville had a good intermediate basketball team this year despite the fact they are out in the cold come discouraged, as they have a bright future in front of them. The Kingston team played a steady game throughout and deserved victory let's say which virtually gives them the group title. The local basketball following on Arena took to the Deacon A.C. kids for cage honors.

In the juvenile section of the local Ki-Y league the Red Wings downed the "Stars" by the score of 3 to 2 while the Y.M.C.A. played St. Michael's a three all tie. Both games were played at the Arena with convener Bill Cook as referee.

Among the great midgets of big league hockey, must be placed the name of Larry Aurie, Detroit Red-wings' personality brilliant forward, who registers his weight at not more than 150 pounds and stands five feet six inches high.

Detroit took up this puck-chaser in 1926, after he had spent a season or so with London in the old Canadian Professional League. The Motor City club had never revitalized their hold upon him, and each year his star burns as brightly as ever in the Redwing firmament.

Aurie is not a particularly spectacular player, but he is steady and plenty of it in their packsters. reliable and good hockey judges rate him high in top generality. At 28, he still has plenty of time to do his stunts and though not a pest-climber, you rarely hear of Aurie having a bad season. And his work is highly valuable to Jack Adams' crew who like speed and

NEW YORK TO GIBRALTAR—JEWISH EXODUS—Three leaders of British Jewry arrive in New York to discuss with Jewish leaders in the U. S. an arrangement whereby Jews may be assisted in an exodus from Germany and given a chance, to start at their new homes. NEW FEDERAL HARBOR BOARD MAKING TOUR OF INSPECTION—Members of the newly-created federal harbor board which controls all the ports of Canada under the Mackenzie King government policy recently concluded an interesting visit to Vancouver during which they toured the port's 48.78 square miles of water and shore line of 82 miles. Col. A. E. Duboc, LEFT, and H. E. A. Bawden, CENTRE, are seen shown with Mr. K. J. Burns, past superintendent of Vancouver, who has been in charge of harbor affairs since the harbor board resigned.

ONE YEAR AFTER, IN SAAR FINDS MANY NEW NAZI UNIFORMS—On Jan. 13, 1935, the Reich won back the Saar basin in a plebiscite that was preponderantly in its favor. On last January 13, one year later, Dr. William Frick, Minister of the Interior (standing in his car) assisted in the first anniversary of the plebiscite. He is pictured reviewing the anniversary military show and the massing of the colors. Practically all Jews in the territory have fled.

DODECANESE ISLANDS CONTROVERSY INVOLVES THREE NATIONS—Looking down we see the Island of Leros, one of the Dodecanese Islands, which the Italians term the "Eelsgland of the Aegean." The black white Italy is engaged in Ethiopia. However, the island is predominately populated by Greeks, and in view of their Hellenic culture, Greece believes that in case of redistribution she should be given the islands. In the meantime Italy is populating them with wounded and sick soldiers brought back from Africa and only the future can tell in whose hands they will rest. The island is within rowing distance of the Turkish shore.

SMILE, STAVISKY AGGRSTS NIGHT CLUB CONTRACT!—Almost unnoticed, except by newsmen, Mme. Arlette Stavisky, exonerated widow of France's master swindler, was snapped as she left Palais de Justice in Paris following her recent acquittal by the Seine assizes. Many offers were received by Mme. Stavisky; offers of engagements on the stage, screen and radio, and not a few offers of marriage, but it is reported that she turned a deaf ear to all of them except one that will give her an eight weeks' engagement in a New York night club.

THE PEDALS GO ROUND AN' ROUND—It has to come, folks; we couldn't get away from it. Things are going "round and 'round" so fast that we too, were finally caught up in the whirl. So here goes. The cyclists are going 'round an' 'round, they start over here—whoho-ho-ho-ho-and they end up here. Only it takes the six-day bikers almost a week to reach the comin-out place on that board track. TOP to BOTTOM the pedal-pushers are, Henry "Cocky" O'Neen, Saveer Van Slambruck and Eddie Ansann, a trio of the world's best on the splinter path that leads to nowhere.

RESCUED ELLSWORTH — Commander Hill of the Discovery II, which rescued Lincoln Ellsworth and his pilot, Capt. Hollick-Kenyon from the ice near Little America where their plane was forced down. SHE'S DEAF BUT—!—One of the current exactnesses of Broadway is the pictured lady, Miss Charlotte Lamberton, who performs an amazing routine of dancing at a New York night club, despite the fact that she has been deaf since birth. She has a speaking vocabulary of 100, words pronounced in the strange accents of those who cannot hear the sounds they are making. Only her mother can understand her spoken words. Miss Lamberton is 18 and truly beautiful. She has her own happy philosophy of life, expressing the thought that she "prefers" to be deaf. She said, "by the faces people make, I don't think they like hearing."

NOW ITS 75 YEARS—Defence attorneys in the Scottsboro cases, backed by world-wide liberal organizations, plan an appeal of the 75-year-old sentence accorded Heywood Patterson, negro, as Decatur, Ala. Meanwhile, the defense mapped their fight to save the eight other defendants in the five-year-old case. All had been sentenced to death for a rape assault. Meanwhile, one of their number, Ozie Powell, has been shot by a guard while allegedly trying to escape.

REPORTS DUCE'S NEW PEACE TERMS MORE LENIENT—According to information learned by Pierre van Paassen, Ontario Intelligencer foreign correspondent, Mussolini is making new overtures to Britain and the league to end the war in Ethiopia. The new proposals, the informant declares, are more lenient than previously, and are thought likely to be accepted by all concerned. If Duce it is reported, is forced to this leniency because of the necessity of ending the war, due to the terrific economic pressure. Under the new terms explained to Mr. van Paasen, Italy asks for a section of Kenya, a British mandate territory taken over from Germany after the great war. They also want all of Ogaden province in the south, but are willing to take only a small area around Adowa in the north. In addition, they ask for railway privileges across the heart of Ethiopia linking Eritrea and Somaliland. This is believed to be objectionable to Britain. In return, Italy would grant Ethiopia a seaport at Assab in Eritrea. The above map shows the area affected, by the proposal, shaded areas being portions asked by Mussolini.

WHERE OLYMPIC SKI-JUMPING CHAMPIONS WILL BE CROWNED—The ski jumps of Garmisch-Partenkirchen are in for a terrific beating when the best of the world amateur ski jumpers swing into action for the Olympic crowns. Here are two scenes from the huge slides which will help to make the Olympic history. At the RIGHT the steep runway is shown at night, illuminated with floodlights and presenting a beautiful and remarkable picture. At the RIGHT a competitor has just left the taking-off platform and launches out into the atmosphere. It's a long way to the bottom, but this jumper looks to have the idea. In the BACKGROUND is the Surpitze Mastif, highest mountain in Germany which overshadows the little Bavarian village.

Dale Plays The Game

—BY—
Ann Forester

Dale. She was smarting with a sense of injustice. At this was the very last time she was going to do her right thing! What a fool she was to stick by a bad bargain, she told herself hotly. Everything was going against her—strong her every nerve and muscle to fight against it. Suddenly she opened it standing by the wall, she opened it and began to pitch in her toilet articles and clothes.

"Pay the game," Sandy had said. Well, she had tried to play the game and look what it had brought her! That cold grey angel in his snow..... And the perfectly politeness of his voice! It was that polite voice of Mimi which had started it all, of course. Beyond doubt, Mimi had been starting all sorts of lies about girl her! Well, she thought Dale viciously, flinging in her hose negligee. She was the type to be avoided! She was the type of Brant should have come to Valentine, Sr. going to please. She was the cause of a girl she had never seen, slaving here alone in this stifling shade, sore at heart.....

Dale was not packing now. She had stopped with one hand on her hose, staring at the open suitcase with hostile eyes. The suitcase seemed to have gained a weight of misery rolled down on her.

She closed it dully. She didn't think ahead. What was she to do now? Get to Coit City somehow, get a room, somehow, get a train for the city. She had the money which was left after buying the trousseau, she divide it evenly. Her share would be enough to get her away from here.

Dale tried to think what it would be like to be in the city again. How strange it would be to think of this little apartment as home! Brant Kendall..... where?

She was crying now, a forlorn little heap beside the half packed suitcase, while Dale paddled unsteadily about her trying to stick a comforting wet nose in her face. Oh, it was strange, strange to Dale that she was crying over Brant Kendall, that her heart was breaking because she had to leave Brant. She had to leave Brant, that was all. It was over, finished, done with. Now she must get on with living. The present moment, for good or for ill the per sonality of Brant Kendall ..... overshadowed everything else.

She hated him, Dale told herself. She had been in her thoughts constantly since the day he had made his mad proposal. Even before then, in fact—since the first day she had looked up to see him standing in the doorway of Sandy's lunch room watching her with wondering amused eyes.

Of course she hated him; never so much as that mad moment when he had taken her in his arms in the hotel and she had felt her own heart surge up as he comprehended the sweet fire of his kiss. The memory now made her clutch go hot and she suddenly rose and slammed the suitcase shut. She hated him then. It was the end of responsibility which made her stick. Well—she was all over now. Brant had gone away..... Even if he came back it wouldn't alter matters. She was going away herself. Dale told herself proudly. After this, whatever Brant Kendall was—whatever he became of him, would not matter to her!

And all the time her ears were strained to the ringing silence outside to see if she could catch the sound of a returning motor.....

She saw Brant's cool lying on the floor where it had fallen in the heat of the quarrel. With a little movement of distaste she moved it over with her toe. Then, impetuously she picked it up and hung it on a nail behind the curtain stretched across a corner to form a clothes closet.

After the manner of women the world over she began searching for excuses for Brant. At least he had not been selfish and deceitful like Phil. If he had gone to the dogs like this he must have cared for this Mimi—Oh!, how he must have cared for her! thought Dale with an odd little feeling of wretchedness at her heart.

"One of those girl and boy affairs" the paper had said. Dale's imagination conjured up menial pictures of Mimi and Brant. She saw the girl and boy drifting together through childhood. Saw them laughing through glamorous youth to reach a youth as little Dale Brant had never known in all her weary young life. Mimi and Brant dancing together—Mimi and Brant playing tennis—his ruffled brown head close to the dark one. Mimi would be Brant's "prom girl"; she would wear his colors and cheer for him at football games. Doubtless they had drifted into an engagement at the end because everyone expected it. It had been arranged, arranged from the beginning like the marriages of royalty. Brant had never doubted it would be different, and when the time came it was no doubts smarting pride and a sense of personal outrage as well as a broken heart which had sent him spinning down to the bottom like this.

Like all women Dale found it easy to forgive a man the mistakes he does for love, and she found herself relenting somewhat toward Brant. But just the same, she thought resentfully, as she remembered the cool heavy-lidded gaze of Mimi, he was an idiot not to see that she was a calculating vamp.

Still—Dale's honest nature asserted itself—look how she herself had been deceived about Phil..... Strange.... today her thought of Phil could not bring his usual heart stab. The present was too overshadowed for her to wonder about the past.

Dale closed the half-packed suitcase and put it away. After all, she had no duty of getting to Coit City. She might as well tidy things up and get something to eat.

As the long hot day wore on an under current of anxiety slithered beneath her thoughts. What could Brant be doing? He had very little money. He shouldn't be out in this hot sun. Maybe if Sandy saw him maybe Sandy would bring him back.....

The idea grew to a certainty by the time Dale sat at the dinner table—a white cotton cloth over the kitchen table in the kitchen with sprig of bright green grease-wood in a jelly glass for a centre-piece. But the sun went down and the swift desert dusk fell without Brant putting in an appearance.

Dale broke from her mood of tense waiting. What was Brant Kendall to her anyway, that she should be watching and waiting for him, she demanded angrily. The reason could not reach her tonight. Her mood lay deeper than reason.

Then she was standing tense in the gathering dusk, her hands pressed tightly together. Oh! the .....far away but unmistakable ....the sound of an automobile. She was to the door and strained her eyes over the darkening country. Down there—barely discernible amid the clump of sage brush bordering the road—a moving shape..... Her heart sunk as it drew nearer. Unconsciously she turned to re-enter the house. But it was too late. The driver had seen her, for he stopped his car with a jerk, waiting as the car pulled up to a smooth stop before her and Wes Kemp got out.

"Speak no more of Tarzan," said Zveri. "I have told you that I would not kill him," but in his treacherous mind he was formulating a plan whereby Tarzan might be destroyed while still he adhered to the letter of his promise to Zora.

"The message is the truth," said Zveri. "I always suspected Coki," and he added with an oath, "I think the Mexican is just as bad. Fortunately the American's message did not get through, but it has made me suspicious of everyone. I am going to hurry this campaign."

"Everything is ready, then!" Zora asked. "Yes, everything is ready," he replied, "and no one can interfere with my plans. We march tomorrow morning. And now tell me what happened while I was away. Why did the Arabs desert and why did you go with them?"

Zora told him of her capture by the Arabs and escape, but she did not mention Coki's name in connection with it. She let him to believe that she wandered alone in the jungle, until the great ape who had captured her. She dwelt at length upon the man's kindness.
